Illinois Man Speeds Up His Haymaking

Tractor-Drawn 'Sled' Used to Pick Up Bales

A clever method of saving labor in haying has been worked out by I. E. Houser Jr., near Farmer City in DeWitt county, Ill. On his 560-acre farm Mr. Houser has a herd of 60 Hereford cows and he has fed out as many as 175 feeder cattle and 1,000 western lambs in one year. To provide enough hay for this livestock, he fills two barns, each holding about 80 tons in bales.

Mr. Houser hires a pickup baler. The bales are dropped in the field as they come from the baler. To pick up the bales and haul them to the barn Mr. Houser built a sled which is pulled by a tractor. The sled is 20 feet long and 4 feet wide, and made from two logs and old lumber; it carries 33 bales, when loaded three bales high.

In picking up bales two men work on the sled with hooks: the tractor does not stop but moves continuously at about 2½ miles per hour. When they come alongside a bale one of the men on the sled hooks it and pulls one end onto the sled. The forward motion pushes the bale onto the sled, where both men pile it in position. The Houser's find it much easier to load this way than if the sled is stopped. They wait until the baler has made two rounds and pull the sled between two rows of bales, driving back and forth to load from either side. With the method used the three regular men on the farm can put up the hay as fast as it is baled and Mr. Houser feels that the additional charge made if a loading device were pulled directly behind the baler would not be justified.

At the center of one barn there is an elevator running up over the roof like an outside corn elevator. It consists of a wooden chute a little wider than a bale and a single chain, from a corn elevator, with four steel cleats. Power for running this continuous chain is provided by an electric motor. The end of the elevator is close to the ground so that when the bales are pulled up to it on the sled they can be tipped onto the chain without lifting. Instead of the chain Mr. Houser originally used an old thresher belt with wooden cleats.

Make those mower repairs now, before haying starts.

Larger Hybrid Acreage To Swell Corn Output

Increased plantings to hybrid varieties accounted for a large percentage of the 2,721,000-acre rise in the farm-area devoted to corn in 10 Midwestern states this spring, according to a statement made public by the Middle West Soil Improvement committee, based on an analysis of U. S. department of agriculture figures.

"This increasing trend to hybrids will swell the Corn Belt's 1944 output," the statement points out. "While hybrids outyield open-pollinated varieties by 20 to 25 bushels per acre, they likewise make a bigger draft on the soil's plant food resources. Thus they create the need for better crop management methods, including the use of fertilizers not only to help produce bigger yields, but to replace to some extent at least, the soil wealth removed by the crop."

More Citrus Fruit

Total citrus fruit production for 1943-44 is expected to be about 6 per cent above 1942-43 and about 52 per cent above the average annual production in 1935-39, the U. S. department of agriculture reports. The larger orange crop is credited with the expected increase.

Magic Words

THE Coast Guard officer shook his head. "The British are careful whom they hire."

Mark swung the launch to avoid the big ferryboat. "I get to know the crews better than the officials."

"Maybe I need training as a ship chandler," the officer grinned. "You're sure this cook is a spy?"

"No sir. I only told the commandant I was suspicious."

"And you also said the man knows it."

"Can't prove it, but those accidents came too fast."

The officer said: "Once a week some housewife in Norfolk reports a spy. We're used to it."

Mark's nostrils flared. "So I'm crazy! Bet being gassed is no joke. When I jumped off that chain I went looking for the cook—all the way down to the hold. When I opened the bulkhead door I smelled gas. You know—they get rid of the rats that way. All of a sudden the door started to slam, and I had to hit it with my shoulder quick—or be locked in."

"That would have been curtains for you."

"Right—and my lad was on the other side of that door."

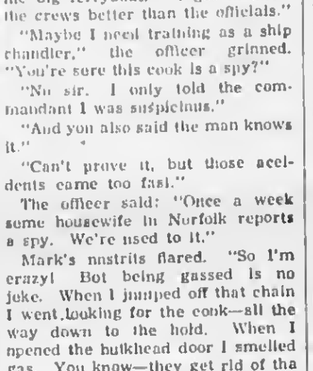
"What did he say?"

"Got kinda red and stammered something about the door should be closed."

"Listen, son, you haven't much to go on. I'm doing this because I'm on assignment. Has he filled his order yet?"

"The captain has to O.K. it. I'm to pick it up today."

"All right. While you talk to him I'll ask the captain to help me search his cabin—and I hope you're right."



"You can see those flags from here."

The stocky, kindly captain shook his head. "Nothing there, boy," he said.

Mark's eyes were pleading. "But I know there's something wrong. Did you look well?"

"So well we didn't pass up so much as a tobacco crumb."

Earnestly Mark said: "Captain, do you know the skipper of that British tanker yonder?"

"Indeed. He served under me as first mate."

"Please, sir, we've got to make this man give himself away. A friend of mine in that crew has been all over the world. He'll be able to wigwag a message. If I'm wrong the signal won't mean anything."

"Mystery, eh? Come along then, we'll have a try."

When they returned to the freighter, Mark turned anxiously to the captain. "Is your mate still checking that list of provisions with the cook?"

"I fancy he's finished now."

"Good, that means he hasn't seen the Coast Guard officer. Will you please keep out of sight, sir?" He swung on his heel and hurried to the mate's cabin and met the cook at the door. He tried to appear casual, though the words began to trip over his tongue. "Oh, hello—say, while I was waiting, I saw somebody on that lanker wigwagging."

The cook sneered. "Kid games, eh?" He stalked up to the deck—then he froze. "Who is that man in uniform?"

Mark dropped his voice. "That's a Coast Guard officer. Said he had to see the captain right away."

The suspect slipped behind a ventilator. "Know what he wants?"

As if he hadn't heard, Mark said: "You can see those flags from here. Can you tell what they say?"

The mate's black brows came together as he looked. Mark watched his body stiffen and his eyes shrink to pin points. He whirled to run and Mark sensed his purpose. He yelled breathlessly: "Captain—quick, grab him." But the wary skipper and two crewmen had him before he reached the companionway. Mark ran up excitedly. "Captain—his shoe. The sole's loose."

It took only a second to extract the telltale identification card. As they dragged the culprit away the Coast Guard officer turned to Mark. "Son, how did you trap him?"

Mark grinned expansively. "Just had my friend say, 'Officer coming to arrest you. Destroy your papers.'"

"But surely he didn't fall for that—anybody could read it."

The captain's eyes twinkled. "Not the way this lad did it. Seems his friend is something of a linguist. He said it in German."

"MR. AND MRS. SAMUEL BARTON KITTRIDGE announce the engagement of their daughter Sarah Chilton Kittridge to Craig Harrison III of West Branch Road. The wedding date has been set for—"

Kit's hands crashed on the typewriter keys. Never in the three years since she had taken over the society desk of the Clarion Courier had a story been more difficult. Sarah Chilton Kittridge and Craig Harrison III! Clarion's glamour boy number one, the papers called him. A series of eastern schools, travel, vice president of the Harrison factories. The desire of every mother with an eligible daughter, the hope of each of those daughters. Yet Craig was well-liked. Easy-going, good-natured, a bit on the spectacular side.

Kit ripped the paper from the machine, viciously squeezing it into a hard ball. She aimed at the basket and hit Barry Bradley as he came through the door. "Ye gods, Kit, won't you ever learn to throw straight? See, you hold a ball this way." His fingers gripped an imaginary missile.

"The pride and joy of the sports department plays he's another Bobby Feller, does he? If a girl could throw straight she might be anything else, but with you she'd be O.K."

"Do I detect a trace of sarcasm from our Kit? It doesn't become you, darling. What's cooking with society today?"

"Nothing. Go 'way, will you? I've a deadline in an hour and no lead."

"You can always dig up the Harrisons, you know. They're good for a line or a column any day. Always reliable Harrisons, I calls 'em."

"That's just what I was doing when you came in."

"Um, and what has Mamma Harrison joined this time, or is it our white-haired boy who is in the news again? Well, you keep him on your page, sister. My pugs are particular about the company they keep."

"I'm announcing Craig's engagement."

"No foolin'! So somebody hit the jackpot. Who?"

Kit hesitated a moment and her voice was low. "Sarah Chilton Kittridge."

Barry stared at her. His voice, usually so strong, was uncertain. "You're kiddin'."

"Am I? Look at the paper in your hand."

Barry unfolded the crumpled sheet. "Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Barton Kittridge announce the engagement of their daughter, Sarah—" he read aloud, easing himself to the corner of Kit's desk. The pain in his eyes made Kit wince. "So Sarah Kittridge is marrying our glamour boy! I suppose I should offer congratulations. I thought I knew the Kittridge gal pretty well. Seems I'm wrong. What a laugh! It doesn't make sense. Sarah Kittridge and Craig Harrison. What's she really like, Kit? You ought to know."

The girl raised her dark eyes to look deep into Barry's stormy gray ones. Her voice was weary. "I don't know, Barry. She's twenty-four, has had a good education, traveled a bit. Rides well, plays rotten golf, dances divinely I've been told. Not much to look at."

"I thought her very pretty."

"Did you? Well, if you care for that type."

"I do. Very much."

"Oh!"

"And this guy, Harrison," Barry probed, "what about him, Kit, is he a stuffed shirt?"

"Not at all. He's all right when you know him. Too much money, perhaps, but he's worked hard for honors at school, tennis titles . . ."

"Well, he can give a girl whatever she wants."

"Maybe."

"What d'ya mean, maybe? Position, houses, furs, jewels, cars. What more could a girl ask?"

"What more is there?" Kit walked over to the dirty window looking out on a brick wall.

"I suppose so. Sarah Kittridge has never missed much. Perhaps she's old-fashioned enough to think she owes her family a good marriage. Perhaps she wants to have a home and children. Perhaps she—" Kit's head dropped. Her small hands covered her face. The slim shoulders shook with sobs.

Barry was on his feet in an instant. He swung her around to face him. "Kit, don't cry. Look at me, darling." Slowly he tilted her head back until their eyes met. "You crazy little fool. You darling idiot. And I'm the world's prize dope." His lips met hers in a kiss. Sometime later Barry held her away from him. "Say, gal, you've a deadline to meet. Come on, let's write the story and get out."

"But I haven't a lead," wailed Kit.

"Oh, haven't you? I'll draft it for you. You type it. Ready?"

"Yes." Kit's voice quavered.

"Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Barton Kittridge announce the engagement of their lovely daughter Sarah to Barrison Bradley. The wedding date has been set for—"

"For when, Barry?"

"Just write 'darned soon,' darling."

Potato Harvest To Start Soon Recent Rains Will Greatly Increase Yield

Good quality potatoes are certain to receive a premium on this year's market, so every precaution should be taken in harvesting and storing. Briefly, several important points in harvesting potatoes are: First, the potato digger should be delven slowly which avoids the bouncing of potatoes on the elevator. Dig deep enough to prevent the cutting of tubers. This puts more soil on the elevators which also prevents bruising.

Care in picking up potatoes is always worth the extra time involved. It is best to use the half-bushel size baskets and avoid tossing into the crates. Early digging of potatoes is recommended where the tubers are of sufficient size. This prevents frost damage. Allow the potatoes to dry out before being picked up — and in clear, warm days this only takes a short time. Keep the vines green by constant spraying. This will prevent late blight and will add to your production. Thus far late blight has not been observed in the county, so keep your fingers crossed. The recent rains have greatly increased our prospects for a good yield. However, in the majority of cases, two or three weeks of good growing weather is necessary before the potatoes will reach maturity.

Poultry Culling Demonstrations Scheduled for Sept. 29 and 30

Poultrymen should be highly interested in culling out their poor layers. Certainly with the high price of feed and increased costs of management, it will be a distinct saving to eliminate the unprofitable producers. An opportunity is offered poultrymen to receive help in learning the art of culling on Friday and Saturday, September 29 and 30.

J. M. Moore, Extension Poultryman of Michigan State College, will spend these two days working with a group of 4-H Club and Smith-Hughes boys. On each day, we will find it possible to cull some five or six flocks. At the end of the day, these boys will be sufficiently trained so that they can cull poultry for other farmers throughout the area. At this time, we will be pleased to have your request for this service if interested. It is entirely free and will save you many dollars in feed bills. Kindly drop a card to your extension agent if you would like to have your flock culled under the direction of the specialist. Each bird will be handled in the flock and from this experience you will be in a position to cull your own flock in the future. First come, first served, so let us know at once.

Feed Trough for Hogs

I DON'T know about you folks, but mine have very poor table or trough manners. A hog has a diet ruined to make a hog of himself, and of course, nobody complains much about it, especially if there is the makings of pork.

However, it's a good idea to see that they all get their share when they line up at the feed troughs.

To minimize crowding and keep the hogs out of the feed trough, nail slats on the trough as shown in the illustration. Place them about one foot apart, and have the slats long enough to project at least twelve inches beyond the sides of the trough. This will form stalls to keep them from crawling. The slats, of course, should be fairly sturdy.

A white pelican has fished daily since late August from the roof of a partly submerged boat house at Rose Lake near Lansing. The big bird, with a wingspread of more than six feet, is far east of its usual haunts in the Mississippi valley. Other reports of white pelicans have been received from Michigan residents this summer, according to the conservation department. A number of the birds visited Isle Royale several weeks ago. They nest in western provinces of Canada.

Fifteen downstate game areas administered by the conservation department will be ready for hunters with the opening of the pheasant season October 15. Large signs identifying the game areas will be in place and direction signs along highways will guide hunters. Boundaries of the areas will be posted so that hunters will not trespass on adjoining privately-held lands. The game areas now embrace approximately 55,000 acres.

Average ground water levels fell six-tenths of a foot during August in the northern part of the lower peninsula, a record decline for the period and about 50 per cent more than normal. However, August levels were above the 10-year average for the month, having been exceeded in 1942 and 1943 only. They were one and three-tenths lower than a year ago, and nine-tenths of a foot higher than the record August low of 1936.

The average trend of ground water levels is a slight lowering until September, when fall rains usually provide slight recharge of the underground reservoir.

Inland lake levels fell two-tenths to one-half foot during the month, according to the geological survey division of the conservation department. The average decline was about three-tenths of a foot.

Renewed interest of Michigan employers in the post-war fate of "free enterprise" reflects a growing apprehension that the state — meaning government in general — may be forced into the employer's role of guaranteeing jobs and wages as an expedi-remedy for widespread unemployment.

For example, business groups in Detroit recently combined to sponsor a series of public lectures dealing with the future of management and labor. The theme was "free enterprise!"

Henry (Buck) Weaver of General Motors has described "free enterprise" as being "freedom to compete with one another in serving the public better." Behind the employer's apprehension that the post-war period may speed up the present drift toward state socialism is a strong fear of non-incentive controls and confiscatory taxation. This fear is linked to the public debt, now of staggering size, and the possibility of renewed public spending and continued federal deficits, both on a large scale.

As one observer put it the other day, what American needs most for the post-war period is more employers! The implications are tremendous, both economic and political.

Anticipating the return of peace, a large number of Michigan war workers have been buying small farms. The GI Bill of Rights allows liberal loans to veterans wanting to purchase farms.

The agricultural committee of the Michigan Planning commission recently reported that more farm land changed hands in Michigan in 1943 than in any previous year on record. About one-half of this land was purchased by city buyers.

That inflation in land prices is already here is shown by studies proving that many farms are being sold today at prices higher than the level justified by the farms' long-time earnings.

Getting security against a depression by buying farm land at inflated prices is, at the very best, a gamble. The soil may be inadequate for farming; soil fertility may be badly depleted; interest on a sizeable mortgage may force the owner, during an era of low farm prices, into unnecessary personal hardships.

Suggested controls for wartime land inflation, as proposed by Dean E. L. Anthony, school of agriculture at Michigan State college; P. J. Hoffmaster, director of the Michigan department of conservation, and Howard Nugent, speaker of the Michigan house of representatives:

(1) A public land appraisal service whereby a fair valuation of farm land could be determined.

(2) Loans on farms could be limited to 50 per cent of the "normal" value of farm land.

(3) Buyers could be required to obtain a permit before they could purchase a farm. This idea, drastic as it sounds, would safeguard a city buyer against purchasing land that was known by the county agricultural agent to be poor for farming. Farm buyers would have to certify that they had consulted an "official" land use map prior to entering into contract for purchase of farm land. Land speculators will fight this requirement.

(4) "Profits from the sale of farm land could be taxed on a graduated scale inverse to the length of time owned."

These facts are significant. Fifty-seven per cent of the decline in farm land prices during a 13-year period following 1920 came in 1921 and 1922.

This was due largely to non-support of farm food prices by the federal government as contrasted to the present policy of guaranteeing a price floor. The post-war cost of such a price guarantee would run about $2 billions a year —enough to stave off a depression.

Agriculture appears to be in much better shape to face the future than it was in 1926. Between 1914 and 1920, value of farm real estate rose from $39 to $66 billions, whereas farm mortgages grew from $4.7 to $8.4 billions.

Today, it appears that the value of farm real estate will have risen between 1939 and March, 1945, from $33.9 to $52 billions, while mortgage debt will have FALLEN from $6.8 to $5.2 billions. Note the difference!

The post-war prospect of agriculture is one of chronic surpluses (within two to five years after the surrender of Japan) and an excess of farm labor over actual needs due to increased farm mechanization or technology.

Our farms are going to produce more at less effort.

Farm earnings have been relatively good during the war; savings have been high; farm indebtedness is being reduced by thrifty-wise established farmers who remember the last depression.

That is why Michigan's agricultural leaders do not want a land boom.

This farm land inflation is one of the September trends in Michigan which foreshadow the coming of V-Day.

LOCAL MAN WRITES PARENTS ABOUT ENGLAND

Major Clair Bartholomew, who went to England recently and has since then been transferred to France, wrote the following letter to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Bartholomew, about England. We arrived safe and sound a few days ago after a nice trip. We had a long train ride after leaving the ship and the British Isles, the portion I saw, are beautiful. Some of it was quite mountainous and other parts were nice rolling country. Farm land must be of excellent quality as all crops looked good. Oats, potatoes, rye, hay and cabbage seemed to be the principal crops. There is much green pasture land and plenty of dairy herds and sheep. Haven't seen a field of corn and don't believe it grows here, as it is pretty cool. Charlevoix is about 45 degrees latitude and we are about 54 or 55 degrees latitude, pretty far north. This climate would be much colder if it weren't tempered by the Gulf stream, the same one that flows past Florida.

Stone fences are very common and look very nice. They are laid up with cut stone and are about 12 to 18 inches thick. No mortar is used. Suppose they have been there for centuries.

—Yesterday we changed our U. S. money to British money at the rate of $4.03 per pound sterling. Last night we went to town and did we have a time trying to figure out our money. The British don't use the decimal system. They have farthings, half pennys, three pence, sixpence, shilling, florin, and half crowns, all in coins and 10 shilling and pound notes. Do you wonder that we have trouble?

We are quartered in tents in a fine farm district. We sleep on canvas cots and without mattresses. The weather reminds me of our October weather at home. Days are warm when the sun is out but at night it's really chilly. The climate is damp and penetrates. If we had mattresses we wouldn't need as many blankets. The first night I used two blankets, the second four and the third six blankets and my wool shirt.

Three Charlevoix County Men Accepted

OPEN HOUSE AT HIGH SCHOOL MONDAY EVENING

A program of much interest is planned for Monday evening, Sept. 25, when Dr. T. L. Purdom speaks to a general gathering of parents, faculty members and any others interested.

Dr. Purdom is the Director of the Bureau of Appointments and Occupational Information of the University of Michigan. He has served as Administration worker in public schools in 1918-21, has appeared at the University of Missouri as Professor of Education and Dean of Men during 1925-1926. His present position has been held since 1929.

This variety in interests and background serves Dr. Purdom in a remarkable way as he unfolds his tremendously interesting factual addresses. No one ever attends one of these inspirational talks without realizing the insight into human beings that has become a part of Dr. Purdom's philosophy of living and teaching.

This highlight of the evening's program will be introduced by the High School Band under the direction of Mr. Gray. Mr. Gray will also present cornet and clarinet solos, accompanied by Mr. Trumpour, also a member of the faculty.

The teachers will be in their respective rooms ready to receive parents and friends of our students.

A cordial invitation is extended to the people of Charlevoix and surrounding districts to attend and become acquainted with the teachers and the building.

Refreshments will conclude the evening. The arrangements and organization are being handled by Miss Frances Milner, Mrs. Mary Cooper and H. E. Bingham.

MARRIAGE IS ANNOUNCED

Announcement has been made of the marriage of Miss Margaret Burr, of Detroit, to Sgt. Raymond J. Nowland USMC, at the post chapel at Camp Pendleton, Calif., on Friday, September 8th.

Sgt. Nowland, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Nowland, recently returned from duty in the South Pacific with the Marine Corps. He is now stationed at Camp Pendleton.

Norwood Couple Hear from Grandson

Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Jones, of Norwood, received the following letter from their grandson, Pfc. Glenn Teeple, who is stationed somewhere in England. Here I am writing to you from England after a pleasant journey over. The people I've seen and met so far are all very kind and gracious to us and in spite of their hardships, they can still laugh and joke. It's a mystery to me how they do it. You know, the people in America don't even know there's a war on compared to these people.

This country is very beautiful and no matter what kind of a house the people have, they always have a nice flower garden. You have to walk wherever you go unless you can find a bicycle and then you have to be careful or you get knocked down. Everything here is so different from things at home from money on down to houses and rooms. Some of the houses are as much as five hundred years old. I went to a nice English church and it was so different I hardly knew what to do.

PYTHIANS TO HOLD GRAND LODGE SESSIONS

LANSING—The 71st annual Grande Lodge sessions of the Michigan Knights of Pythias will be held here on Thursday and Friday of this week, September 21 and 22.

Over 200 delegates of Michigan lodges are expected to be in attendance.

The convention will mark the retirement of two veteran Grand Lodge officers, Will E. Hampton of Ann Arbor who has served as Grand Keeper of Records and Seal for 38 years and Oscar Peteron of Holland, Grand Master of Exchequer for the past 10 years.

Myrtle M. Furgeson Married Monday

Miss Myrtle Marie Furgeson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Grant Furgeson became the bride of Pfc. Lawrence H. Burkle, M. P., of Percy Jones hospital, Battle Creek, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Campbell, of Petoskey, at a Nuptial Mass at the St. Francis Church, Petoskey, at 8 o'clock Monday morning. Rev. Austin Monaghan O.F.M. officiated. Bouquets of Fall flowers decorated the altar.

The bride wore a white satin gown fashioned with a sweetheart neckline, bracelet length sleeves and a net overskirt. Her finger-tip veil of bridal illusion fell from a tiara of seed pearls. She carried a bouquet of peach and white gladioli and white asters and a white prayer book.

Sends Thanks To CSO and Courier

Clifford Mayhew SC3c, of the Navy, who is at San Diego writes: I'd like to thank the Courier and the CSO for the paper which comes each week and also to thank the CSO for the card sent to me.

I've been watching the paper for someone stationed in San Diego but haven't found anyone yet. While in Portland, Ore., recently, I saw Dick Hull one morning in the mess hall. We had a good time together that afternoon and evening but he was transferred the next morning.

I'll tell you about my ship, an LCI. She's about 180 feet long and is built so we can run her bow on the beach. It is used for landing troops and will haul 250 men besides the crew. We've finished a shakedown cruise and are now ready for duty so will probably be leaving before long.

ADULT EDUCATION CLASSES PLANNED

Courses in adult education are being planned by the school for this winter. Classes in commercial work, manual arts and other subjects for which there is a demand will be offered.

Charlevoix opens the 1944 football season with Mancelona on the home field on Friday, September 22, at 3:30 p.m. Charlevoix will have four home games this year, with only three days away. Six of these games will be Northern Michigan Class "C" conference games, with Harbor Springs being the only non-conference game.

Coach Jack Geniesse stated that the team is not shaping up as well as he had hoped due to the small, inexperienced squad which reported for practice. He has only five returning lettermen this year, with two of them in the backfield and the other three in the line. One advantage which Charlevoix will have this year is the fact that they started practice one week earlier than the neighboring schools.

Coach Geniesse also stated that it was too early to tell the members of the team, but gave a pro-

VOLUNTEERS ARE WANTED FOR U.S.O. SCRAPBOOKS

The USO Scrapbook is a forty-eight page book nine by twelve inches, light weight and flexible for when it gets into circulation it travels far and fast. It is filled with magazine clippings, well arranged and carefully pasted, to provide as much reading matter as possible within its covers. The inside cover carries full directions which should be closely followed as they come from experience gained in inspecting thousands of these books.

The completed USO Scrapbooks go to American hospitals overseas and on small ships leaving eastern ports and to men on duty in isolated outposts on the continent and off shore bases.

No matter when the war in Europe may end, there will be a demand which will continue for several months, at least after that and operations in which entertaining reading matter is welcomed and needed.

A typical testimonial from a Servicoman:

"Dear Mrs. S.——

Just a note to thank you for the pleasant surpise the book from the USO. It came packed in with some magnet wire and as I am an electrician, we use wire. By now the book has been pretty well around the barracks and enjoyed by all. We had some Arabs helping us that day and they got a kick out of looking at the pictures too.

Sincerely,

B———W

Navy Fleet P.O."

(From a letter written to a New York woman who has turned in many completed Scrapbooks. This one was put in a box with same supplies sent out by the U. S. Navy.)

The initial shipment of Scrapbooks has arrived and anyone desiring to complete these, please contact Ralph Hamilton, Chairman Charlevoix USO.

MICHIGAN MIRROR

This may be news to some folks: There's going to be an election in Michigan November 7.

With Generals Eisonhower, Patton, Bradley and a million or so Yanks on the victorious march in France, Belgium and Germany, newspaper headlines have been dominated by happy war news. Approach of V-Day in Europe has put domestic affairs into near eclipse. When do we celebrate?

World history is rushing past with breath-taking speed.

Even a prospect of 16 years' residence by one president at the White House — something we would not consider seriously in normal times — scarcely evokes more than a mild discussion from the Man on the Street.

It's the war, war, war — and a fervent hope for a quick victory—that we're thinking about this September, 1944.

When you go to the polls November 7, you will receive a presidential ballot and a general election ballot for state and local candidates.

This change in voting was authorized by the Michigan state legislature at the suggestion of Republican legislative leaders who suspected that too many people were in the habit of riding presidential landslides.

To put the state ticket on its "own feet", free from any influence of a national political trend, legislators provided for a separate ballot that listed nominees for

Playground News of Field and Stream

No limit is placed this fall on quantities of young pine and hardwood trees that are supplied free by the conservation department to communities, schools, and organizations that arrange approved reforestation programs. Shipments to groups in previous years have been limitd to 5,000 trees.

Also, the department will supply young trees without cost to service organizations such as boy scouts and 4-H clubs for planting on lands owned by such groups. Previously, trees were supplied free only when planting was to be done on publicly-owned land.

It is unlawful to shoot waterfowl, coot, rail, gallinule, or woodcock prior to one-half hour before sunrise or after sunset.

So-called "muskrat farming" is a risky business and is almost certain to bankrupt those who engage in it, according to the conservation department.

The warning is given because more persons are inquiring lately about this method of making a postwar living.

Except in some especially favorable locations in the Saginaw Bay area, ventures in muskrat farming have been uniformly unsuccessful in Michigan. In fact, the only places in the United States where muskrats are raised with substantial profit are in the saltwater marshes of Maryland and Louisiana.

SCHOOL NOTES

Kindergarten

In the morning Kindergarten there are 33 children and in the afternoon there are 35. Last Wednesday the boys and girls took a walk around the outside of the buildings and on Thursday they got acquainted with the inside of the buildings. They visited all the grade and high school rooms. They enjoyed the gym where they played ball, most of all.

On Friday the children had their first rehearsal of the Rhythm Band. Sometime soon they are going to invite the First Grade in to hear them play.

Second Grade

We have thirty five children in our room, eighteen girls and seventeen boys.

Each one in the room has told the story and drawn a picture of his vacation.

We have been studying about the squirrel, his habits and the way he lives. We have learned a song about the squirrel and know several stories about him.

The following people are away on trips with their parents: Mona Davenport, Sonden Von Dohlen and Faye Meggison.

Third Grade

We have a roomful of thirty-eight smiling boys and girls. Everyone seems happy and ready for work and fun together.

Last week we enjoyed the story of "The Pied Piper of Hamlin". We dramatized it, too, and for awhile there seemed to be rats everywhere. However, the Pied Piper soon took care of them.

We are watching a pretty green and gold cocoon. Who knows what we may find some morning when we come in?

Fifth Grade

We have 35 boys and girls in the 5th grade.

Elnora Carpenter entered school today.

We are starting to study about the United States.

Most of our boys and girls have signed up for 4-H.

The teacher is reading us a story of The Secret of the Chestnut Tree.

The first day of school we went to the beach and picked up Petoskey stones.

Sixth Grade

The sixth grade, numbering 37 in Mrs. Cooper's room is beginning the second week of school in real earnest. Each of the 25 girls and each of the 12 boys are doing really fine work.

Today we are starting on 4-H Clothing and 4-H Handicraft projects.

Twenty-two girls have enrolled for clothing and the 12 boys are enrolling for Handicraft.

Overflow Room

We have thirty-nine enrolled in our room, in the fourth, fifth and sixth grades. We are beginning the study of Michigan. We hope to make an exhibit of Indian relics.

The 4-H activity program started Monday with a large enrollment in both Handicraft and Clothing.

Special Room

There are 36 pupils in our room.

The first grade have learned the story of "Little Black Sambo." They played the story and drew pictures to illustrate it. Everyone in the first grade has learned to print his name.

Parents are cordially invited to visit our room.

Funeral of 'The Powerful One'

Killed by mortar fire in the town square of Florence shortly after the Allies entered the city, the body of "Il Potente" (The Powerful One), leader of the Arno division of the Garibaldi patriots, is being borne through the city while townspeople salute from the sidewalks. Entry of Allies was signal for outbreak against Fascists.

Captured 700 Nazi Prisoners

Sergt. Rodney Cloutman, 26, of Athol, Mass., (left) singlehandedly captured 400 Nazi prisoners, outdoing the famed Sergeant York. Like York, he was armed only with a rifle. Capt. J. R. Willingham, Tuscaloosa, Ala., (right) captured 300 Germans by circling overhead in plane and herding them to the Allied armored columns who took charge. Due to this exploit, he has been called the "flying cowboy" of the American Air forces. The German prisoners stated that they were tired of fighting and in addition were afraid of being fired upon.

Latest Moves Against Nazi

Heaviest opposition of the southern France invasion was met between St. Raphael and Cannes and from there to Nice. Glider hordes were dropped all along the Riviera, and huge landings were made in St. Tropez bay zone. It was announced that bombers had destroyed every small rail bridge in Rhone valley, indicated by large arrow.

President and Vice-President.

Now the same Republicans are beginning to wonder.

In the first place, will the average voter remember to mark TWO tickets instead of one?

The democratic column on the state ticket will carry, as its party insignia, the picture of President Roosevelt. Nervous Republicans wonder if Joe Donks will mark an "X" along side Roosevelt's picture, thinking they are voting for Mr. Roosevelt.

If enough people do this, then any advantage enjoyed by Governor Kelly as the incumbent at Lansing might be nullified, so goes the reasoning. It's a bit hard to stretch your worrying this far, but such is the honest ense of one Republican nominee on the general ballot.

Secondly, there is the much-discussed Detroit News public opinion poll, known as "Detroit Speaks."

Conducted along the established methods of the Gallup polls, whereby a cross-section of population is used by trained interviewers to determine mass trends, the Detroit study has revealed a 64.36 per cent preference for President Roosevelt and a 17.6 per cent preference for Governor Kelly among Metropolitan Detroit citizens who have an opinion.

Roosevelt's popularity in Detroit is not surprising in view of the city's recent record of Democratic election majorities. In terms of votes, as we pointed out last week, the Detroit swing would require an upstate majority for Dewey of around 250,000 to put Michigan safely in the Dewey column.

Kelly's popularity in Detroit is subject to interpretation on many angles. Is it because more people today know Kelly than they do Edward Fry, nominee of the Democrats? Perhaps they would prefer Fry, if they knew more about him. Such is the campaign speculation, and time is a big factor.

Certainly the high command of Michigan Republicans do not consider that Michigan is in the bag, politically.

Starting Sept. 19, Governor Kelly and one or two other party candidates are going to make a 1,300-mile swing of northern Michigan, going as far west as Ironwood. Nominee Edward Fry and other Democrats are rolling up their sleeves, too, for a vigorous campaign, hopeful that the voters will lend an ear long enough for presentation of the candidates' messages.

A third ballot for Nov. 7 will contain four proposed amendments to the state constitution.

Three were sponsored by the state legislature, as follows:

No. 1—Permitting a municipality to supply and sell water to houses outside the city limits.

No. 2—Permitting state legislators to run for state office and still continue as members of the legislature. The present law requires a resignation when a legislator becomes a candidate for state office.

No. 3—Increasing the compensation of state legislators from $3 to $5 per day.

No. 4—Amendment would give home rule to Wayne County.

Running an election and running a war is the double responsibility imposed on American democracy this Fall.

If public opinion polls of recent years are any index, domestic issues still are of more interest to American voters than international affairs. Despite our newest venture into world politics, we're concerned primarily with the things which are immediately about us and which concern our daily living. Self-interest remains the key to much of our thinking.

That boy who is overseas, our gasoline rationing, shortage of sugar for canning, overtime wages and food prices — these are part of our war-time thinking.

How much will the war influence our judgment on Nov. 7?

A lot of Michigan candidates would like to know the answer.

What's the Rush?

INVEST IN VICTORY — BUY MORE WAR BONDS

It's the telephone rush. Every night thousands of service men and women dash to the nearest telephones to talk with families and friends at home. Most of the Long Distance calls from camps and naval stations are crowded into a few short hours.

Many circuits are likely to be crowded at that time and it helps a lot when you "give 7 to 10 to the service men." That's about the best time for most of them to call.

TOWN and FARM in WARTIME

Prepared by OFFICE OF WAR INFORMATION

Blue Tokens, Farewell

If you've got some blue tokens in your purse, better use them now, because after September 30 they will be good only for the kids to play with. Until next Sunday, the Office of Price Administration says, you can use them just as you always have used them. Beginning Sunday, September 17, retailers will cease giving blue tokens to consumers as ration change, and shoppers will be able to spend them only in groups of 10. If necessary, shoppers may pool tokens to make up groups of 10. Removal of practically all canned and bottled vegetables and fruit specials and specialties from rationing September 17 makes use of blue tokens unnecessary. Beginning September 17 point values on canned fruits, canned juices, canned tomatoes, catsup and chili sauce will be designated in multiples of 10.

Those Tire Inspection Records

Keep those tire inspection records until you get your new mileage rationing record form along with your new "A" book, OPA says. Since discontinuance of periodic tire inspection last April, tire inspection records have been kept primarily as a record of gasoline rations issued each automobile, and will no longer be necessary when the new form is issued. Outside the East Coast States, the new "A" book will go into use September 22, and in the 17 East Coast States, February 9.

Loosen Lid On Stove Rationing

The rationing of coal and wood stove to consumers will end October 15, the War Production Board and OPA have announced, although rationing of oil and gas stoves will continue. Supplies of coal and wood stoves have grown sufficiently since nation-wide rationing started in August, 1943, to make continued rationing unnecessary.

Shoe Rationing Still With Us

Civilians cannot hope for an early end of shoe rationing, WPB says, unless imports of hides increase or unless there is a large cutback in military orders. Hide shortages continue in spite of a large domestic kill of cows and calves. Heavy civilian and military consumption and decreased imports account for the shortages.

Returned "G. I. Joes" Get Jobs

More than 50,000 returned veterans of the present war were placed in jobs during July by the Veterans Employment Service of the War Manpower Commission, thus making a total of more than a half million who have been placed. Employers are offering veterans the cream of the jobs that come within their capacities, WMV says.

Whether commercial fishing in Great Lakes waters is helped by plantings of hatchery-reared lake trout may be determined through a projected six-year program which got under way at Charlevoix federal fish hatchery last week.

Some 150,000 fingerling lake trout were held at the hatchery for fin-clipping and planting in Lake Michigan in the vicinity of the Fox Islands before September 15.

The Wisconsin conservation department is cooperating in the marking operations.

In the future, states bordering Lake Michigan will pay rewards of two dollars per fish for legal and undersized lake trout which show fin markings, taken by fishermen. Data collected may provide needed information concerning survival rates of artificially-reared fish and their migratory habits.

The program contemplates similar marking and planting operations to be carried out in Wisconsin hatcheries and waters next year with assistance of Michigan authorities. The marking and planting operations may be continued through 1948 and during the three years to follow there may be no taking of lake trout allowed during the spawning seasons.

Claims are made that artificial propagation and planting of lake trout is wasted effort. The six-year experiment may provide the answer, as well as showing whether Michigan is paying for fish that migrate to Wisconsin waters, or vice versa.

The U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service also is cooperating in the program.

Pesting of two wildfowl refuges off the St. Clair Flats, near mouths of the St. Clair river, is being undertaken as a cooperative measure by the conservation department and the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service. The two refuges embrace 1,600 acres.

Prospects for the 1944 northern upland game bird seasons are rated as poor to fair by conservation department authorities.

Hunter success is expected to be spotty, on the basis of scattered reports from department field men. Fewer birds have been seen by most observers than at this time last year, although it is pointed out that extreme drouth conditions over much of the state may have caused birds to seek lowland cover to have discouraged their movements over much of their normal range.

The take of ruffed grouse, prairie chicken and sharptailed grouse was down last year. Hunters reported a kill of 290,117 ruffed grouse as against 381,302 in 1942. The prairie chicken take dropped to 13,910 last year from 24,118 in 1942, and sharptail dropped to 12,059 from 16,942 the preceding year.

Decline in totals of birds taken last season may have reflected lowered hunting pressures in many areas, game men point out.

This year, however, the birds just don't come to be in their usual hunting places.

Pvt. Edward Thorp of Charlevoix, Michigan is serving with an aviation engineer battalion of the IX Engineer Command which is constructing airfields behind the front lines in France.

He landed with one of the first detachments of men from this battalion which started its operations on the beachhead on the morning of D-Day. Since that time, the battalion, which is commanded by Lt. Col. Max McCrory of Steubenville, O., has been constructing and maintaining airfields under fire from the enemy. These operations will continue as the Ninth Air Force follows the advance of the invading armies to provide them with close air support.

From where I sit ... by Joe Marsh

Soldiers vs. Civilians in Tomorrow's World

You hear some talk about how—when the war is over—there's going to be bad feeling between soldiers and civilians; how the country will be divided into those who fought in uniform and those who stayed at home.

Well, maybe you saw that letter from a soldier overseas, in one of our big magazines. It said that men in uniform aren't thinking any such thoughts—any more than folks at home are.

The most important thing is, that we're all engaged in one titanic struggle to preserve our freedom and our rights—not just as soldiers or civilians,—but as Americans!

From where I sit, that attitude is going to win the war—and win the Peace too. If we can respect the rights of others—whether it's their right to enjoy a glass of beer, or to vote the way they please—we've got a mighty sound foundation for our peacetime world.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Nazis Mobilize for Last Stand As Allies Draw Noose on Reich; National Income Reaches Peak

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysis and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

Common sight in spectacular Allied drive in northern France was surrender of drayes of Nazis pocketed by swift moving Allied columns.

EUROPE:
At Border

Having fallen back the whole length and width of Franco, and abandoned Belgium and Holland, Adolf Hitler's beaten and bedraggled armies holed up behind the vaunted Siegfried line to face an Allied charge across the German border to Bertin.

Even while the main body of Allied troops still were fighting through the Lowlands and eastern France, the American First and Third armies under command of Lieut. Gen. Courtney Hodges and Lieut. Gen. George Patton were reported to have penetrated Germany at Aachen and Saarbrucken in preliminary skirmishes.

As the Allies tightened their ring of steel around the western border of the reich, between 50,000 and 100,000 German troops were hemmed against the channel coast far to the rear of the forward lines. Spread thinly in a sweeping arc from Boulogne to Calais, they fought desperately along the former robot-launching coast as Canadian and Polish forces closed in for the kill.

While Allied armies pressed against the reich frontier in the north, the American Seventh army driving up from the south through broken Nazi resistance effected a junction with Lieutenant General Patton's forces near Nancy.

Nazi Die-Hards

Even as the Allies full military might was brought to bear against the Nazis' reeling wehrmacht, German die-hards gave no indication of giving up the ghost.

Said the German army's propaganda spokesman, Lieut. Gen. Kurt Dittmar, in a broadcast to the reich: "When our national strength, whose total mobilization has been the aim of all our efforts in the last few weeks, is concentrated on the shortened prepared lines, then it will be possible for us to restore the strategic balance which we have now lost in the west."

Balkan Conquest

Of all of Adolf Hitler's once formidable Balkan empire, only Hungary remained to help carry on his fight, what with Bulgaria seeking to enter the Allied camp after strong Russian forces had invaded the country after Moscow's claim that its statesmen's straddling diplomacy enabled Germans fleeing Romania safe conduct back to their lines.

Bulgaria's downfall followed closely on Finland's break with Germany as one of the terms of an armistice with Russia and came even as it was reported that the Nazis were thinking of abandoning northern Italy, where U. S. and British armies fought through the enemy's boasted "Gothic line."

Meanwhile Russian forces drove through Romania and Bulgaria for a junction with Marshal Tito's Partisans in Yugoslavia preparatory to a drive on the southern Hungarian plains.

U. S. INCOME:
At 158 Billion Rate

Indicating that the U. S. is rapidly reaching its production peak, the department of commerce reported that the nation's industries were turning out goods at a rate of 196 billion dollars a year, an increase of only 3 per cent over the last half of 1943. Government purchases approximated 66 billion dollars annually.

At the same time, the department reported that income payments to individuals were at a rate of 158 billion dollars for the year, with disbursements to servicemen and their dependents, and farm operators contributing to the new high. Reflecting the near peak production, manufacturing payrolls were relatively stable.

Although consumer expenditures rose to an annual record rate of 96 billion dollars and taxes were expected to absorb an additional 23 billion dollars, the margin of savings indicated a year-all volume of 36 billion dollars, a sizable cushion for expenditures in the postwar period.

PACIFIC:
Japs Expect Worst

While the Tokyo radio warned the Japanese that they could expect heavy aerial bombardment of their homeland and extensive ground operations against their inner defensive circle, U. S. warships joined U. S. airmen in raking the enemy's military installations and supply lines from the Bonins down to the Celebes.

Lying to the north of the Marianas where U. S. troops were catching their breath before taking the next step toward Japan, and just 600 miles from Tokyo, the Bonins were hammered by warships and planes, with numerous enemy vessels supplying the beleaguered islands blasted and sent to the bottom.

Making good use of advanced bases on northwest New Guinea, U. S. airmen attacked the enemy's Philippine outposts, concentrating on his extended supply lines to weaken his effectiveness against possible assaults. Apparently reflecting the Japs' desire to husband their limited air power, aerial resistance was negligible, in contrast to their once imposing strength reportedly scattered throughout the entire area.

SYNTHETIC RUBBER:
Bright Prospects

Opportunities for employment and increased farm income, and cheap rubber, are postwar prospects growing out of the nation's 750 million dollar synthetic rubber industry developed since Pearl Harbor to keep the country on wheels. Ninety-five per cent of the facilities are government owned.

In resigning as head of the dissolved office of rubber director, Bradley Dewey revealed that the country's synthetic capacity will soon approximate 1,000,000 tons compared with prewar imports of about 600,000 tons of the natural product, and that cost of tire-grade synthetic is about the same as that of the natural product of about 16 cents per pound.

Because an American synthetic industry based on alcohol, oil and gas can produce rubber economically, prices of natural rubber previously set by a British and Dutch monopoly will tend to be stabilized, Dewey declared. Furthermore, chemists' ability to develop almost any kind of rubber will boom the billion dollar a year rubber products industry, he said.

NEW WEAPONS:
Aid Doughboys

Built with a low cast to make it less of a target, and capable of travelling 55 miles per hour, America's new 76-millimeter anti-tank destroyer is among the new weapons U. S. engineers working in cooperation with the army have devised.

Reflecting the concentration on lighter, heavier firing mobile weapons to work around the enemy's panzer formations, the army also announced the use of a new 90-millimeter anti-tank destroyer and light tank.

To meet the conditions imposed by rugged, tangled jungle country, a new 60-millimeter portable cannon weighing 20 pounds, and capable of being carried by one man also has been developed.

Equipped with treads providing propulsion in water and traction in mud or swamp, the new Weasel is capable of carrying four men and nearly half a ton of supplies over almost any kind of terrain.

EARTHQUAKE:
Jars East

In New York city, two telephone operators were nearly tossed from their chairs; in Albany, N. Y., sleeping persons were thrown from their beds, and in southeastern Wisconsin, coat hangers, lamp shades and switchboard cords swayed.

Thus, although slight, did an earthquake rumble through most of the northeastern states, part of the middle-west, and in some sections of Canada.

Although windows rattled and houses shook in many areas where the earth quaked, no substantial property damage was caused. But seismologists who reported that the center of the disturbances occurred in the northeast, where quakes have been common since Indian days, declared that considerable loss might have been suffered if the shocks had been concentrated in a populated region.

COAL STRIKES:
U. S. Acts Swiftly

Moving fast to head off another serious coal strike with a resultant heavy loss in production, the government seized a string of pits in the Pennsylvania area, strike-bound over demands of the United Mine Workers clerical, technical and supervisory employees union for recognition as bargaining agency.

In seeking to halt a general tie-up, the government not only took over the struck mine, but also seized other pits of affected companies to assure full operation.

By acting quickly, the government hoped to avert a work stoppage in some 70 mines, employing 31,500, and producing 150,000 tons of coal daily. As it was Interior Secretary Ickes said about 300,000 tons had already been lost through the strike.

According to the War Labor Board, many of the employees had voted against the strikes conducted at some of the mines.

Postwar Automobiles

Postwar automobiles will not differ radically from prewar models and they may be higher in price, Chairman Alfred P. Sloan of General Motors Corporation declared.

In commenting upon the future resumption of automobile manufacture, Sloan said that General Motors will require from four to six months to reconvert from military to civilian production, and that postwar plans call for employment of the present force of 500,000.

In discussing postwar models, Sloan said that there will be only minor changes in designs, and that ordinary advancements made during the war years would be incorporated into the new machines. Higher material and labor costs may force an increase in prices, he said.

A. P. Sloan

BIRTH RATE:
Prosperity Helps

Boomtime wages and high employment levels have boosted the American birth rate during the last four years, statistics indicate. Principal gains were among mothers 20 to 29 years of age, who have borne their first child. Forty per cent of the births in the United States between 1939 and 1942, for instance, occurred among mothers in their 20s, while 33 per cent were among mothers 30 to 39 years of age.

Considerable increases were also shown in families having the second or third child. These gains were not influenced by the upward trend in the marriage rate, but were the direct result of better times. Many women in their 30s who had been delaying having children because of low and uncertain family incomes, have been bearing babies during the relatively prosperous war years, it was pointed out.

U. S. FINANCES

Financing the war has been a major achievement of the home front, treasury officials said, in reviewing the government fiscal position. It was pointed out that, while in the 17 months since January, 1943, federal agencies have spent more than 125 billion dollars, 75 billion of which was borrowed, interest rates have remained at low levels. Commodity prices have been held to small increases, despite the length and scope of the war period, it was added.

HIGHLIGHTS . . . in the week's news

ROMAN BABIES: The upheavals of war have reduced the survival chances of Italian babies startlingly, according to the Allied military government. In July, infants under a year old were dying at the rate of one out of every two, or nearly 500 out of every 1,000. In July, 1943, the death rate was 289 per thousand. The yearly average between 1931-35 was 104.7.

FLYING AUTOMOBILES: "Some day when you go in to buy a car, the salesman will ask whether you want it with or without wings," Roscoe Turner, famous airman, predicts. "I'm not kidding," he added. "These things have already been flown. You'll be able to drive to the airport, attach the wings and take off. When you want to come back, you will check the wings and drive home.

Convoy Ship Loss Cut to 1 in 1,000

Sub Menace Still Serious, Alexander Warns,

LONDON.—Allied convoy shipping losses were less than one in 1,000 ships during the second half of 1943, First Lord of the Admiralty A. V. Alexander told Commons recently, but he warned that Nazi submarines would strike hard again and that the British navy faces "further and greater responsibilities" in carrying the war to Europe and Japan.

He said the British fleet is now stronger "in relation to enemy" since the fall of France. He gave these distinguishing figures on Allied losses:

1941—One ship lost out of every 181 that sailed.

1942—One out of every 233.

1943—One out of every 344.

But Alexander warned that the Germans still have at least as many submarines as at the start of 1943.

He said the average loss of ships for the last eight months was below the level of 1918, the final year of the first World war, when the U-boat at last had been whipped.

But "the Germans still are making every endeavor to improve the performance and the equipment of their U-boats. They have provided them with greatly increased anti-aircraft fire power, have brought a new acoustic torpedo into service and we must expect further developments still.

"It can therefore be regarded as certain that they will try and try again to stage a comeback."

Alexander pledged the fullest British naval effort against Japan as well as in the coming invasion of Europe, but he sought to prepare the public for a full measure of bad news by noting that 25 British and European Allied warships had been sunk in the Mediterranean since the invasion of Sicily, and 13 Royal war vessels have been lost protecting convoys to Russia.

Flag Off Riddled 'Fort' To Repair Field by Base

A UNITED STATES BOMBER BASE IN ENGLAND.—They would not let the Flying Fortress Nelson King land at the home field after she struggled in from a battle on the Berlin mission in which 15 companion "Forts" were shot down, but dispatched her instead to a repair depot.

Ground crews could see many patches of sky through her wings, tail and fuselage as the ship circled over the base.

The pilot, Capt. Francis G. Lanza of 88-35 195th street, Hollis, Queens, N. Y., was radioed to "take it away" to the nearby repair depot.

Captain Lanza's group of about 50 Forfresses had a heart-breaking struggle with 60 German fighters when its escort of Thunderbolts left about an hour before it reached Berlin.

"The Nazis started picking on the stragglers and cripples," he said. "They would attack in groups of five or more, going for one ship at a time until each was finished off. They simply knocked off one after another. The rest of our formation got quite a way ahead of me when about 10 Me-109s took on our ship."

Mustangs and Lightnings finally picked up the survivors of the group.

See Enough Penicillin For All by Next Summer

CHICAGO.—The supplies of the miracle drug, penicillin, will be sufficient for the entire nation by this coming summer, Col. George Edward Meyer told the Chicago Dental society.

Heretofore, because of scarcity, the drug has been limited almost exclusively to the military forces.

Colonel Meyer, dental chief at Barnes hospital, Vancouver, Wash., told of cures effected by the drug in apparently hopeless cases, adding:

"Soldiers and sailors returning from the battle fronts have the first chance. Since production increased, there has been an allotment for civilian use.

"It is entirely possible chemists will work out a cheaper synthetic substance better than that produced by nature."

He Needs Extension of Leave to Spend Money

CAMP CROWDER, MO.—Private Thomas Williams has a new reason for wanting an extension of the furlough he has been promised.

In view of the furlough prospect he sent eight telegrams to his sisters and brothers, hoping to receive some extra spending money from at least one of them.

So-o-o, all of a sudden telegrams started pouring in, and he received money orders from all of them. The only way he can spend the money for proper furlough purposes is to get the extension.

Customers Supply Own Bottles of Catsup

CHICAGO.—Hungry customers at a lunchroom shout "Pass my catsup, please!" and they mean just that. Because of rationing, 15 regular patrons provided their own bottles of catsup and parked them on a shelf over the lunch counter, each marked with the owner's name—just like shaving mugs in an old-time barbershop.

WFA also said the support price of $12.50 a hundred, Chicago basis, for "good to choice" butcher hogs weighing 200 to 240 pounds, effective October 1, will be continued until June 30, 1945.

Knight Errant

MADELINE saw the soldier while she was some distance up the highway and impulsively she started to slow down. But as the car stopped beside him she was a trifle uneasy. She had never before picked up a hitchhiker. She scanned his face as he tugged at the door handle and a measure of confidence returned. He was lean and brown and hard and reminded her of her brother; he wore overseas ribbons, too.

The lieutenant brought into the comfortable coupe the not unpleasant odor of a mild soap and good tobacco and also, to Madeline's astonishment, a casual intimacy that did nothing to improve her driving.

He sat half-facing her, with one arm thrown over the back of the seat and his fingers played gently with the collar of her polo coat. She turned toward him reprovingly and saw that his eyes had missed nothing — from the tight roll of chestnut hair clear down to her slender ankles.

"You'll do," he decided, catching her glance.

Madeline blushed. "Thanks. I was expecting a whistle," she said tartly.

"You'd rate a whistle if you'd take off those shell-rimmed cheaters, fluff out that hair-do into something modern and slip into a jersey that should be more becoming than that gunny sack you're wearing," he shot back at her.

Madeline clamped her jaws tightly to regain control of herself, than

"She wasn't?"

asked: "You're going to Middleton?"

He nodded. "And I would that I were not."

"Home to a wife and children?" Madeline chided.

"An obligation, yes, but not that kind." He stared at the road ahead. There was silence for a minute before he explained:

"It's a long story, Beautiful. Maybe I'd have been better off in the long run if the Jerries had got me. This fellow saved my life the first day out. I was a wise guy, see, a smart aleck, but he shoved me into a hole when those MEs started coming over. I made that right a little later by drilling a sniper who had his head set on him. So we got to be buddies — the best kind. Well, I thought his sister must be all right, too—" He hesitated and Madeline gave him a look of encouragement.

"She wasn't?"

The lieutenant closed his eyes and frowned. "You can judge for yourself. I get a letter from this girl, thanking me for saving her brother's life. Then our outfit splits up and my buddy and I are separated. I don't find out anything about her from him but I answer her letter and away we go. Well, at first she's amusing. Then she begins to write about our 'glittering tanks that charged into battle like avenging angels of death.' Even that sounded kind of cute, but after a while everything gets daffy. I don't get it at all."

"No?" Madeline prompted, her twinkling eyes glued to the road.

"No. She wrote about the night having a thousand eyes that watched over me. I was her knight-errant and she was my ladylove. Imagine it!"

Madeline smiled. "You've no appreciation of romance. Besides, she probably thought it would be good for your morale."

"Nuts! Jerries on the run is all my morale needs." They were entering the town and he leaned toward her eagerly. "Listen, Beautiful, I won't even call up this gal with the fantastic ideas if you'll give me a break."

Madeline stopped the car at the curb and faced him with severity. "But Lieutenant Milton — Lieutenant James Milton — my brother never described you as a person who would run out on anyone."

She waited expectantly, but no astonishment was evident. Only a good-natured grin.

"O. K., Mary, we're even now," he said softly. "You knew me when you picked me up. But those initials M. S. on your car door were a dead giveaway, too. So forget all I said about your letters. How about tonight?"

Madeline laughed. "It's all right, but first you'll have to speak to my seven-year-old sister. Her name is Mary — and she's the one who's doing all the writing."

Why Farmers Should Buy & Keep War Bonds

by R. R. Renne
President
Montana State College

BUILDING financial reserves, paying off debts, helping to fight dangerous inflation, and patriotism, are all good reasons why farmers should buy and hold War Bonds.

A good financial reserve is an important part of sound farm management. War Bonds are safe investments and are almost as liquid as cash. Thus, they comprise an excellent financial reserve for unexpected needs and emergencies. After the last war prices fell rapidly, as they have after every major war, and thousands of American farmers lost their farms because they could not weather the economic storm. No other factor is more essential for continued satisfactory farm operations, through good years and bad, than adequate financial reserves.

In addition to unexpected needs for emergencies, farmers need adequate reserves to finance repairs, replacements and improvements around the farm. Difficulties in obtaining needed materials and labor for these expenditures cause farm buildings and equipment to wear out faster during the war period than in peacetime. If farmers can wait until sometime after the war ends to make these repairs and improvements, their dollars should go further than they will immediately following the war, and better quality materials will probably be available. Moreover, too rapid or forced cashing of War Bonds immediately after the war could create a serious situation and contribute to post-war inflation. Also, holding Bonds to maturity makes it possible for the farmer to increase his investment by one-fourth through accumulated interest. Still another reason for having a good reserve in the form of War Bonds is that funds will be available for the boys when they return, to assist them in getting established in peacetime pursuits.

Many farmers still have long-term mortgage debt outstanding against their property. Investment in War Bonds now makes it possible for the farmer to help finance the war and at the same time accumulate the funds which will enable him to liquidate his debt in a lump sum after the war. Systematic purchase of War Bonds furnishes a very orderly and sure way of accumulating the necessary funds for liquidation of debt that requires large lump sums for settlement.

The extremely heavy expenditures required to carry on modern total war creates high purchasing power, which combined with shortages of materials and labor, cause serious inflationary threats. Most farmers can remember the very high prices which occurred during the last war and the very low prices and depression which followed. With the present scale of operations much greater than during the first war, it is imperative that widespread inflation in general prices and in land be prevented. Using surplus funds to purchase War Bonds helps reduce inflationary pressure in commodity markets and, at the same time, helps finance the war.

Building financial reserves, paying off debts and fighting inflation, comprise adequate reasons for buying War Bonds. However, there is still another major reason why farmers should invest in War Bonds until it hurts and this is the patriotic reason. We are engaged in a very serious struggle to preserve democracy and our way of life. The sooner we can win this war the fewer lives of our sons and daughters will be lost. Our youth are making great sacrifices on the battlefronts all over the world, and it is up to each one of us on the homefront to give all we have. Large sums of money are needed for winning the war and if we will all buy War Bonds to the limit of our resources voluntarily, we can help finish the war at an early date.

SCHOOL KIDS HELP THE FIGHTING FRONTS

A total of $662,301,096 worth of Bonds and Stamps was purchased during the 1943 to 1944 school year by the 30,000,000 students of the country's public, private and parochial schools, according to Ted R. Gamble, National Director of the Treasury's War Finance Division.

Michigan has always made a splendid record in the school War Bond Program. Michigan raised $65,027,021, or a per capita War Bond purchase of $61.56, compared to a national average investment of $22.07 per pupil.

Dr. Eugene B. Elliott, Superintendent of Public Instruction in Lansing, can be proud of the outstanding performance of Michigan students.

Plans are being made for the Sixth War Loan Drive, where again the school students will play an important part in reaching Michigan's heavy quota.

"I am counting on Michigan's students taking first place next year," says Robert C. Douglass, Acting State Chairman of the Michigan War Finance Committee, "and I want to thank all superintendents, principals, and teachers for their outstanding cooperation in our War Bond Program."

GASOLINE SITUATION IS TIGHT

The average civilian motorist should expect no increase in his gasoline ration for the next several months, at least not before the end of the war with Germany, the Office of Price Administration says. Civilian stocks of gasoline built up last winter have been greatly reduced despite increased imports and record domestic production. Civilian grade gasoline stocks have decreased approximately two million barrels in 30 days.

THE OLD JUDGE SAYS...

"Yes, I'm afraid there's no denyin' it, Judge ... jeeps and trucks and other kinds of motorized equipment have taken the place of the good old horse in modern warfare."

"It's true of lots of things in this war, Eben. Every day we hear of new tactics and requirements and new uses of products. For instance, take the alcohol that is used for war purposes. In World War I, this vitally needed product was used mostly in making smokeless powder, chemical warfare materials and medical supplies. Today it must do far more ... it must provide the base for such indispensable products as synthetic rubber, shatterproof glass, lacquers, plastics and many other of our requirements so essential to victory.

"As a result hundreds of millions of gallons are required every year ... half of which is being produced by the beverage distilling industry. Bet you didn't know that, Eben."

"As a matter of fact, I didn't, Judge. That's a mighty important war contribution that had escaped me completely."

LOCAL MAN WITH "VICTORY SQUADRON"

Staff Sergeant George E. Sneathen in England, from Charlevoix, Michigan, has "thought himself a piece of the air force."

He was among the first soldiers stationed on this Eighth Fighter Command Mustang base to make a purchase in the War Bond campaign staged by the Eighth Air Force to buy a "Victory Squadron." All planes flown by the Eighth will be represented in the "Victory Squadron", and each officer and enlisted man buying bonds in the drive becomes a "shareholder."

A quota was assigned to personnel of this base under the command of Col. William J. Cummings Jr., Lawrence, Kansas. They were allowed five weeks in which to strive to attain the goal. They rocketed past the quota mark less than two weeks after the drive had opened.

Staff Sgt. Sneathen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Snenthen, RR 3, is a clerk in the technical supply section of a service group D-18.

KALAMAZOO LEGION LEADER CANDIDATE FOR ANNUAL AWARD

A Kalamazoo, Mich., salesman, Sidney J. Isaac, has been selected by the Michigan department of the American Legion as its "Man of the Year" candidate for the $1,000 Lewis S. Rosenstiel award which goes to the Legionnaire who has performed the most valuable community service during the past year.

The award, made annually by Rosenstiel, board chairman of Schenley Distillers Corporation, will be presented to the national winner at the Legion convention to be held September 19 and 20 at Chicago. A board of judges composed of national officers of the service organization will select the winner, according to H. L. Chaillaux, director of the Legion's National Americanism Commission. Last year's winner was Paul Wamsley, Buffalo, N. Y., educator.

Senior vice-commander of Legion Post No. 36 at Kalamazoo, Isaac published and mailed nearly 9,000 of a newspaper, "The Outpost", for Kalamazoo servicemen and women overseas. He sponsored and raised funds to provide a roadside shelter for soldiers traveling from Kalamazoo to nearby Fort Custer, raised $1,000 for a special war activities fund and organized a project through which hundreds of thousands of cigarets were sent to Kalamazoo county boys on the battle fronts.

It is the aim of the team this year to beat Boyne City, whom they have not beaten in the last ten years. All of the fellows are working hard with this goal in mind, so the team should have a fair season this year. A little support behind the football team may be all they need to enable them to beat Boyne, so let's see the town get behind the team this year in a way in which they never have before.

A new system has been inaugurated in the Charlevoix Public Schools this year, which should prove to be one of the greatest improvements in recent years. This is a Student Activity Card program, which would allow the students to purchase a ticket which would be good for all athletic contests, band concerts, plays, and other extra-curricular activities. This card would cost the student approximately $3.00, according to the estimate made in a special assembly in the high school. It is hoped that this plan can be put into effect before the first game this Friday.

RAYDERS WIN THEIR FIRST TILT

Friday, September 22, the Charlevoix Raylers won their first victory of the 1944 season, defeating Mancelona 12 to 0.

The game was played in perfect football weather with the exception of a strong northwest wind, which greatly hampered any passing or kicking.

Charlevoix lost the toss, and chose to defend the north goal, which gave them the wind at their backs. Martin of Charlevoix kicked off, and Mancelona returned it to their own 40-yard line. The Rayders held them there and Mancelona was forced to kick. Charlevoix then started on their first touchdown drive. Varying line plunges with end runs, the Rayders ran the ball down to the 6-yard line, where Novotny smashed through center for the touchdown. The point after the touchdown was good, but both sides were offside, and the play was re-played. This time the try failed by about a foot. Neither team was able to gain much ground for the rest of the quarter.

The second quarter was rather quiet, with the teams resorting to a punting duel. Charlevoix was then facing the wind and was slowly losing ground. At one time Mancelona had the ball on our own 20-yard line, and was preseating a serious scoring threat; but the Rayders held, and the half ended before either team was able to score.

The third quarter was almost a repetition of the second quarter, with both teams doing a lot of punting. Charlevoix was handicapped by the fact that they were still facing the wind, and consequently could do very little passing.

In the fourth quarter, with the wind at their backs, the Raylers staged another touchdown drive, which ended when Zeitler threw a pass to Martin. Martin made the catch with no one near him, and went over for 6 points without a hand laid on him. Again the try for a point was no good and the score stood 12-0, Charlevoix.

Charlevoix successfully stood off the Mancelona drive, and the game ended, 12-0 in Charlevoix's favor.

Credit should be given to Don Brown and Ed Novotny, who gained most of the ground for the Rnyders. The team was blocking behind them, and they came through.

This Friday, the 29th, the Rayders journey to East Jordan for their second game, and, we hope, their second victory.

Wounded In Action Receives Purple Heart Medal

Pfc. Willard B. Drost, 21, has been wounded in France and has been awarded the Purple Heart Medal, according to word received Monday by his father, Christ Drost, in a letter from another son, Pfc. Cecil Drost, who is in the same medical detachment. The letter, which was dated September 10, stated that Willard has been wounded in the left arm and that he would soon return to duty. The date he was wounded was not revealed.

Pfc. Willard Drost and his brother, Pfc. Cecil, enlisted on the former's eighteenth birthday, September 11, 1941. After completing their medical corps training at Camp Grant, Ill., they were at Fort Custer a few months before going oversens in April, 1942. They were in Iceland for eighteen months and in August, 1943, were transferred to England and later to northern Ireland where they were stationed until going to France in July. A third Drost in the service, Pvt. Louis, is also in France.

Dr. A. F. Litzenburger Has Returned From Health Conference

Dr. A. F. Litzenburger, director of the local district health unit, recently returned from the three day conference of Michigan health officers held in the Public Health building at Ann Arbor, on September 20, 21 and 22.

Dr. Litzenburger reports that the post graduate course in postwar epidemology, which was the principal feature of the conference, was well attended. Special emphasis was laid upon the problem of combatting epidemics of tropical diseases — especially, malaria — which medical authorities fear are apt to assume alarming proportions in this country, when the servicemen return from the war fronts, unless measures are taken to check them in their incipiency.

One anticipatory step which must be taken in Michigan is the elimination of the common mosquito, which is of the type that carries the parasitic germs of malaria and other diseases. Returning soldiers and sailors who have had malaria (and many of them will still retain these germs in their systems) will become dangerous to the civilian population if the principal means of transmission of the disease to healthy persons is not destroyed. Wiping out the breeding places of these carrier insects will engage the efforts of the medical experts in a carefully planned campaign in which the co-operation of the public in general is vitally necessary.

The polio problem, which was also a subject of the conferential discussions, does not approach any nearer to a solution. About all the authorities can promise is that the disease will be kept within reasonable bounds until fresh discoveries are made along the lines of isolating the germ and improving methods of treatment.

LOCAL GIRL MARRIED IN CHARLEVOIX

Miss Dorothea M. Taylor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter E. Taylor, became the bride of Robert E. Kelley, CMoM., of the U. S. Coast Guard, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Kelley, of Rockford, Ill., at a candlelight service at the Methodist church at 8:00 o'clock Saturday evening. The Rev. Leigh H. Hagle performed the double ring ceremony in the presence of 60 guests before an altar banked with baskets of fall flowers. Miss Ernestine Chew, at the piano, played a program of traditional wedding music and the wedding marches and accompanied Miss Eddis Hagle who sang "I Love You Truly," Bond, and "Always", Berlin.

The bride who was given in marriage by her father chose a princess gown of white bridal satin fashioned with a high neckline, shirred bodice and long sleeves which came to points over the wrists. The skirt ended in a long train. Her cathedral length veil of bridal illusion was held by a Juliet cap. She carried an arm boquet of white gladioli.

Miss Elaine Taylor was her sister's only attendant. She wore a gown of pink marquisette made with a sweetheart neckline, bracelet length sleeves and a full skirt. She wore pink flowers in her hair and a corsage of lavender gladioli.

Robert Ashdon, BM1c, assisted as best man and John Hess, S1c, and Doyt Price, S1c, were ushers.

Mrs. Taylor wore a soldier blue suit with navy accessories and a corsage of red roses for her daughter's wedding.

A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents following the ceremony. The refreshment table was decorated with bowls of fall flowers. The three tiered wedding cake was topped by a miniature bride and groom and set in a garland of red roses and greens.

The bride is a graduate of the Charlevoix high school and the DelMar school of Cosmetology, Detroit. The bridegroom, a graduate of the Haarlem high school, Rockford, recently returned from eighteen months overseas duty with the Coast Guard where he participated in the invasions of Sicily, Italy and Normandy. He is now stationed at St. Joseph, Michigan, where the couple will make their home.

Governor Kelly Spoke At Alpena Tuesday Night

Continuing the theme of his opening campaign address at Alpena Governor Harry F. Kelly, Tuesday night opened a series of two-a-week meetings with a discussion of the qualifications of Thomas E. Dewey, the Republican candidate for president.

The Governor reiterated his appraisal of Dewey as an outstanding executive who knows the problems the nation faces and is well fitted both mentally and physically to direct their solution.

"It seems to me," Governor Kelly said, "that Governor Dewey's campaign, coupled with the recent Maine election in which over 70 per cent of the voters cast Republican ballots, has awakened certain individuals in and close to the White House to the realization that the great American voting jury is ready to bring in a verdict against the present administration and in favor of the Republican party and its leader, Thomas E. Dewey."

Impetus was given the Republican drive this week by the announcement of State Chairman, John H. Dethmers of a schedule of campaign meetings between now and October 6. The schedule reveals that Governor Kelly will speak at Jackson Thursday night of this week and that on October 2, 3 and 4 he will be in the Upper Peninsula with Vernon J. Brown, candidate for lieutenant governor, and John D. Morrison, candidate for auditor general. Monday night following stops at Watersmeet, Bessemer and Wakefield, the Governor will speak at Ironwood. On Tuesday, October 3, the party will visit Marquette and Escanaba with Governor Kelly delivering a major address at 9:15 p. m. CWT over a statewide radio hookup from the latter city. Wednesday night, October 4, the Governor will speak at Sault Ste Marie, moving down to Traverse City for another network broadcast at 9:15 p.m., CWT, Thursday, October 5.

BLOOD DONORS ARE URGENTLY NEEDED NOW

Donors are urgently needed for the civilian blood donor clinic to be held Monday through Friday of next week, October 2-6, at the Dilworth hotel in Boyne City, conducted by the Michigan Department of Health in cooperation with the American Red Cross.

Charlevoix people who wish to donate a pint of blood should register at once at the Red Cross room in the city hall, at the Central Drug store or Levinson's store. In order to arrange transportation to Boyne City, it is necessary to know immediately how many people plan to attend the clinic.

A special clinic is scheduled for 5 p. m. Monday for Charlevoix people who cannot leave their employment earlier in the day. "Charlevoix Day" will be held later in the week, but transportation can be obtained on other days to suit the convenience of donors.

Local people made a fine record in the clinic held last October. Only two were rejected of the 51 who volunteered, and Dr. Robert Mitchell, director of the clinic, was pleased with the quality of blood donated. Eighty per cent of plasma obtained in the health department's program is returned to counties where clinics are held. The life of at least one man is known to have been saved at the Charlevoix hospital with plasma received last year, and it has frequently been used to prevent shock following operations.

Only healthy persons between 18 and 50 years of age are acceptable as donors. Those under 21 must furnish written consent of parent or guardian, for which space is provided on the registration form. Not acceptable are persons noticeably underweight, or who weigh less than 115 pounds; nor those who have had active tuberculosis, diabetes, undulnat fever, epilepsy, or who have recently undergone surgery.

Donors should not eat any fatty foods for four hours before reporting. This includes milk and all other dairy products, fried food, mayonnaise or salad oil, eggs, nuts, or peanut butter.

Piano classes meet at my home Monday, Oct. 2nd after school. All those wishing to enter a class instead of taking private lessons, please be here. 35 cents per lesSon. Mrs. Tony Novotny, 405 W. Garfield.—39t1.

The meeting opened at 9:45 a. m. with representatives from more than forty churches in attendance. A fifteen minute musical meditation by Mrs. A. C. Belding at the piano and Miss Ernestine Chew at the organ was followed by a worship service lead by Mrs. S. Arthur Cook, of Traverse City.

Mrs. Ale and two conference officers, Mrs. Orpa Munn, of Grand Rapids, president, and Mrs. Warren Surgent, of Kalamazoo, corresponding secretary, were then introduced at the business meeting which followed, a roll call was made, reports read and officers elected. Mrs. M. J. Stevens, of Boyne City, was named secretary of spiritual life and Mrs. P. D. Miller, of Petoskey, secretary of youth work.

At 11 o'clock Mrs. Ale spoke on the subject "Victorious Participation," and Mrs. Munn addressed the group on "Literature and Publications". The morning session closed with a prayer.

A luncheon was served at 12:15 by the Charlevoix chapter of the W.S.C.S. in the church dining room with places for 135 laid at long tables decorated with fall flowers.

The afternoon meeting opened with a musical meditation by Mrs. Belding and Miss Chew. The Rev. Leslie J. Nevins, of Traverse City, district superintendent, lead the worship service and installed the newly elected district officers. At 2:00 the district officers gave their reports and an offering was taken for district expenses.

At 3 Mrs. Ale spoke on the topic, "What have you done", a reminder to all members to do their part in Red Cross and other activities in their community and to do something for servicemen and women, those away at school and to assist in the juvenile delinquency problem.

Mrs. Earl Broussard, of Greendale, Wis., played two flute solos accompanied by Mrs. Belding at the piano.

A memorial service for members who died during the past year was followed by benediction by the Rev. Leigh H. Hagle, of the local church.

Mrs. Hagle was general chairman of the arrangements.

The St. Mary's Recreation Center under the direction of the Charlevoix Chapter National Council of Catholic Men opened Monday evening for the school year. Sixty-three boys and girls were present for the evening and enjoyed the recreational facilities of the Center. Marion Craig won the door prize which was a feature of the evening.

The Center is operated without profit for the youth of Charlevoix and it is hoped that it can be maintained throughout the winter months. Efforts are being made by the committee to obtain new equipment for the Center so that it may be installed later this fall.

ELECTION OF NEW SCHOOL BOARD TO BE TUESDAY, OCTOBER 3

On Tuesday, October 3rd at 8 p. m., in the high school, a special school election will be held to elect five trustees of the Charlevoix Township Unit Schools. These trustees will hold their positions for the following period of time: One for 1 year; two for 2 years and two for three years.

New trustees are being elected at this time to conform with the law concerning the changing of the local school district from a Graded School District to a Township Unit.

The meeting will be held in the High School Auditorium unless the size of the crowd necessitates the moving to the gymnasium.

The Blue Star Mothers will hold a regular meeting tonight, Thursday, September 28th at the I. O. O. F. hall. Your president wishes a good attendance.

The Women's Guild of the Congregational church will meet at the church dining room at 8 o'clock Wednesday evening, October 4.

Cub Pack Meeting Thursday Evening

The Cub program is response to a public demand.

As people saw the far reaching results made possible by Scouting and other Movements, the question arose — "why not something for younger boys?" This demand became so articulate and strong that the Boy Scouts of America, under an enabling grant from the Laura Spelman Rockefeller Memorial, retained a specialist to go forward with a careful three year program of preliminary research.

In the Cub program, the Boy Scouts of America is providing for boys 9-10-11 years of age, an attractive, character-influencing program of interest-gripping leisure- time activities, which thru association with other boys and picked leaders, shall bring to these boys, in their natural home and neighborhood situations:

More of that joy of living.

Chances to do with and for others.

Chances to bear responsibility.

Opportunities for hobbies, handicraft and skills.

Definite emphasis upon health factors and habits.

Charlevoix consists of four dens of approximately thirty-two cubs.

Each Den must have its Den Mother, Den Chief and Deaner. With the many war-time activities there is a shortage of Den Mothers and it is hoped that those parents who are interested in this phase of child activity will come Thursday evening so that a program may be worked out for the winter season.

A number of Cubs are to receive awards for achievements they have passed and Robert S. Reeves field executive will be present to explain Cubbing and organize the program for the ensuing year.

SPLENDID WORK BEING DONE BY FARM BUREAU

If there is any one attribute of the American Farm Bureau and of the Michigan State Farm Bureau which stand out more prominently than all the other excellent qualities, it is this: The Farm Bureau is doing a splendid piece of work in maintaining, rebuilding and greatly strengthening our cherished American Way of Life.

This, the Farm Bureau's central theme, is uppermost in the minds of our best farmers. Money making and political influence are both subservient to the aim to build the finest and soundest of American Citizenship.

Charlevoix County is rich in farm homes and standards of living. To a considerable extent this is so because of the Charlevoix County Farm Bureau activities. One of the best of these activities is the recent organization of a strong Junior Farm Bureau unit in the county. It is capably led by William Gilkerson of East Jordan. Its vice-president is Robert Behling, of Boyne City. The organization is sponsored devotedly by the Boyne City Cooperative, the East Jordan Cooperative, the Jordan Valley Cooperative Creamery, the Charlevoix Cooperative, the Charlevoix County Farm Bureau with its several local community organizations, and by the two Vocational Agricultural Teachers of the county together with a considerable number of Charlevoix county citizens of high caliber.

Our Junior Farm Bureau has a very good program of work ready for the coming year. Its principal purpose is to build and generate a young farmer and young homemaker array of rural homes in this county which will be satisfied with nothing short of genuine contentment because that is our richest heritage.

L. B. Karr,
Vocational Agricultural Teacher, East Jordan.

FOSTER BOAT CO. HOLDS ANNUAL DIRECTORS MEET

Officers of the Foster Boat Company elected at the Annual Directors' Meeting, held Wednesday, September 20, were: President, H. G. Foster; Vice-Presidents, Gordon Clement, Victor S. Maneley, John K. Reed and Gar Wood, Jr., Secretary, Glen E. Robinson and Treasurer and Assistant Secretary, Charles A. Duerr.

Progress made by the local concern during the past year is marked by the establishment of several new departments intended to round out and balance the company's activities as it prepares to reconvert to peacetime building. A complete sawmill has been set up and many thousands of feet of logs, procured locally, have been cut into finished lumber. Special machinery for the manufacture of oars and paddles has been developed and some oars and paddles have been produced. The company's Engineering Department is being moved into its Cherry street building, where it will carry on its experimental work. The Canvas Division, located in Petoskey, now working to capacity on Army Ordnance contracts, will be moved into more adequate quarters providing sorely needed working and storage space as soon as construction of its new building can be completed.

Post-war plans call for the Boat Division to engage principally in the building of popular size cruisers under 30 feet in length and completely equipped with the latest features for the maximum of safety and comfort. Engineering of these models has been in progress for some time and building will start as soon as critical materials are again available in quantities sufficient to sustain uninterrupted volume production. In the meantime, two small models, requiring a minimum of critical materials, are being made ready to be placed in production as quickly as possible to absorb the company's manpower and facilities until materials for the larger craft are available.

The Canvas Division is developing a line of products, including life jackets, life rings, boat covers, tarpaulins and kindred marine items as its principal post-war program.

Harry Zeltler, S2c, writes from the Pacific: I'm sending a new address. I'm with the Seabees on Tinian in the Marianas. Was here during the invasion. This is a good sized island. There was a village here but they shelled everything in sight and now everything is ruined. We're eating C rations now but the chow hall will be up in a few days and then we'll eat.

Harold Holm S1c, of the Navy, writes from the Pacific to correct an error. Recently when on leave here it was stated that he was with the Seabees. He would like to have it known that he is with the Navy.

Pvt. James Foster arrived last Tuesday, September 12 from Fort Belvoir, Va., to spend a furlough with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Foster. He has as his guest, Miss Lillian King, who came Sunday from Chicago and will remain until Thursday, Sept. 21.

Pvt. Kenneth Bird came from Camp Barkley, Tex., to spend a furlough with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bird. He will report at camp VanDorn, Ala., when he returns to duty on September 27.

Pfc. Glenn Snider from Camp Crowder, Mo., has been home on a fifteen day furlough with his wife and son and with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Snider. On his return he will be accompanied by Mrs. Snider and son, who will make an indefinite stay in Missouri with him.

Harrison Hooker S1c, of the Sea Bees, of Camp Parks, Calif., spent a week with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harrison Hooker, and his grandmother, Mrs. M. B. Hooker.

James Marsh McMMIe, of the Coast Guard, who has been on convoy duty in the Atlantic, has been visiting a few days with Mrs. Marsh and two sons.

Go On To School, GI's Advice

The GI's overseas who are using their spare time to "crack their school books" in the hope of improving their possibilities when they return to civilian life, advise the boys and girls back home to keep on with their schooling. As Cpl. Kermit Grenson of Atwood, Kans., put it; "Any boy who's in high school now had better finish right away. Because if he doesn't finish before he's drafted, or before he takes a full-time job, chances are he never will. That goes for girls too."

Lard Grades

Lard is made from the fat of the hog. Three grades of lard are obtained from three parts of the body: the best grade, leaf lard, is made from the leaf, or layer of fat lying inside the abdominal wall; the second grade is made from the backs, the sides, and the pieces trimmed from the various cuts; the third and poorest grade is made from the intestinal and stomach fats. The last is much stronger than the other two and should not be mixed with them.

ASK FARMER HELP TO PRODUCE LUMBER

Michigan farmers, loggers, and sawmill operators can be of valuable assistance in the war effort by helping fill the great demands for lumber and wood products needed by our armed forces to bring our enemies to their knees in the shortest possible time.

The problem facing the industry at present is the labor shortage.

The majority of Michigan's small sawmills are located in agricultural areas and must depend largely upon farmers as a source of labor. For this reason farmers are urged to help in this great cause of getting lumber to the armed forces by seeking off-season employment in the sawmills or working in their own woodlots. By calling on the farmers for help it is hoped that the lumber bottleneck may be broken.

Even though total production of lumber in Michigan is higher than it was last year, it still is not high enough to meet the demands for lumber. There are more mills now in production, more farmers cutting logs, high log inventories, and more efficient use of labor and equipment; but the best must be better, it is pointed out.

The small lumber mills—those cutting less than one million board feet per year—are highly seasonal in operation. Many of these mills, which produced more lumber in the first half of 1944 than either the medium or large size mills, closed down during busy farm months because of lack of labor. They can open now, if the farmers respond to the call for help.

Attack on America Gave U. S. Its Anthem; 'Star Spangled Banner' Written in 1814

On September 14, 1814, just 130 years ago, a young Georgetown lawyer named Francis Scott Key carved a place for himself in the history of our nation.

Key had kept sleepless vigil throughout the night on the deck of a small ship while the British bombarded Fort McHenry in a futile attempt to take Baltimore. The war of 1812 was still on.

All the time he could hear the crash and roar of British naval artillery, he knew that the fort still stood. But before dawn came a lull in the fighting and Key grew anxious. Grave thoughts came to him. Had the Americans been unable to withstand this terrible punishment? Had the fort fallen? Its fall would mean the end of Baltimore — and another blow to the Americans.

Key saw day break with the Stars and Stripes still flying over Fort McHenry. With unutterable joy and gratitude he began jotting down verses on the back of an old envelope. Those verses, later transcribed on a piece of paper worth $24,000 to a museum collector, are now known as the Star Spangled Banner.

Sung to the melody of "To Anacreon in Heaven," an English song well known in America at that time, it became a popular anthem. But it took 117 years for it to be officially recognized as America's national anthem. It was on March 4, 1931, that President Hoover signed the bill giving it this recognition.

Contrary to a popular idea, Key was not a prisoner on a British ship at the time. He was aboard a small American vessel, the Minden, on which he had gone to the British fleet under a flag of truce more than a week before to negotiate for the release of a war prisoner.

He finished his business, but was not allowed to return at once because the British feared he might warn his compatriots that an immediate attack on Baltimore was contemplated. When the attack on Fort McHenry failed, Key was allowed to return with the Minden.

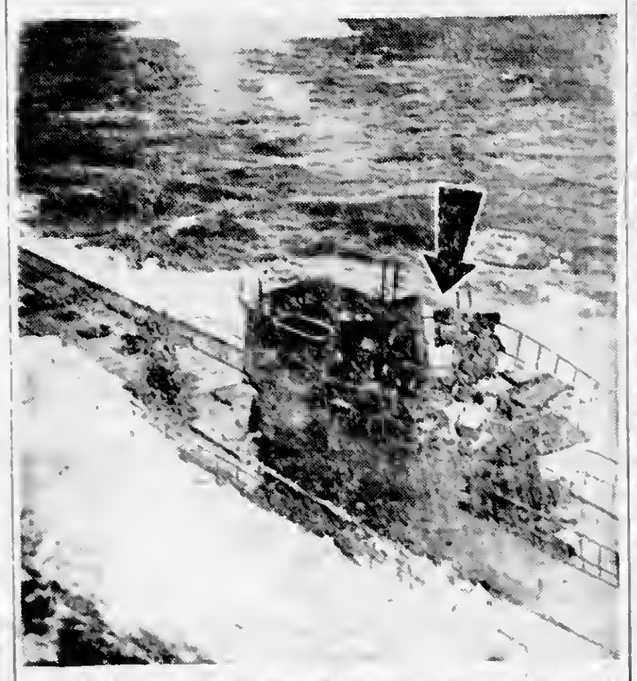
Five Hungry Children Deserted

When their dad failed to return home with his pay check, their mother left them and started out to look for their father. The result was five hungry children. Ronald, 2; Francis, 3 (rear); Bobby, 7; Geraldine, 6; and Wayne Strader, 5. They were given a home by their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Donahoe of Chicago.

Japanese Prisoners of Chinese

The picture of defeat, these Japanese soldiers who surrendered to the Chinese rather than be killed, are being led down to the Salween river, southwest China, to be ferried back to headquarters for questioning. They are only a small part of the prisoners who have been taken during the present Burma road campaign, which attests to its success.

End of a Nazi Submarine



This official U. S. navy photo shows Nazi sailors cringing around the conning tower (arrow points to German) of a U-boat under attack by U. S. army and navy planes. A few minutes later this sub sank under the hail of bombs from army Mitchell B-25 and navy Liberators. Nazi submarines are becoming scarce articles these days.

Britain's Churchill Rides in Nazi Plane

SYMBOLIC OF THE SUCCESS OF ALLIED ARMS, this new picture from France of Winston Churchill in a German plane captured by the British in Africa, is especially interesting at this anniversary of the Battle of Britain. Four years ago this September, Churchill's pilot (Harry Broadhurst, at right) was one of "the few" of whom Premier Churchill said "so much is owed by so many" for shooting down the swarms of German bombers trying to break Britain's will to fight on. Now Broadhurst is one of the R.A.F.'s top commanders and flies his Prime Minister over the France battlefields in a Nazi plane!

The 13-cow herd of registered Holstein-Friesians owned by the Michigan State College has recently completed a year of production testing with the average butterfat production per cow being nearly 2½ times that of the nation's average dairy cow, according to a report from the Holstein-Friesian Association of America.

An average of 426 pounds of butterfat and 11,588 pounds of milk was recorded. The highest producer in the herd yielded 541 pounds of butterfat and 15,785 pounds of milk during the herd test year.

AUCTION NETS $30,000

Nearly $30,000 worth of livestock raised and owned by Michigan 4-H club boys and girls was sold at the two auction sales conducted at the annual State 4-H Show held on the campus of Michigan State college September 5-8. This was more than $12,000 greater than for last year's show, according to Louie Webb, assistant state 4-H club leader.

Greatest increase was in steers with 145 being sold for $24,300. Other livestock going under the hammer included 116 hogs for $3,706; 28 lambs, $413; 15 rams, $189; and 3 boars, $102.

Keeping American Homes Intact

We're great home lovers in our town. Family folk—like most Americans. So when war came, and the boys left in uniform, and the girls went into war plants, folks began to shake their heads.

Take Ben Ryder's family, for instance—all doing something different. Young Ben's in the Navy, and his sister's in the airplane plant. Ben's foreman at the tool shop, and Ma spends her days at the Canteen.

A broken home? Don't you believe it! When Ben relaxes with his evening glass of beer, and Mom and Sis sit down to write their daily letter to Ben Jr., they're closer together than ever ... bound by a strong and common purpose—to keep their family, their America, intact.

From where I sit, the strength of America lies in that family spirit—in the tolerance and mutual respect and understanding that have made the American family a strong and vital force for Good!

THE OLD JUDGE SAYS...

"Did you hear that Tom is going to be inducted into the Army next week, Judge?"

"Yes, Frank told me this morning down at the barber shop. Our town's got a lot of men in the service now, Jim. In fact, all towns have. I was just reading in the paper where there are more than 10,000,000 men away from their homes in the armed forces. And, from all reports, they're doing a grand job bringing victory closer every day.

"We folks at home have a mighty big obligation to those 10,000,000 fighting men. We've got to produce the food to keep them well fed. We've got to keep them supplied with the ammunition and equipment they need to finish their job. We've got to help the Government pay for all these supplies our men need by buying more and more War Bonds. We'll have another big chance to do that by helping to put the next War Loan drive over the top, Jim.

"And, in addition, we must be sure that, while they're away and can't express their opinions, we don't go voting on and deciding any things that will displease them when they come back."

BELIEF IN QUICK VICTORY CAUSES FAT SALVAGE DROP

Housewife survey shows women think victory over Nazis ends necessity to save and turn in household grease.

That military success in Europe is making women over-optimistic in expecting a speedy return to peacetime plenty is evidenced in a survey just made for the American Fat Salvage Committee to determine the present public reaction to the rationing of fats and oils and the saving of used kitchen fat.

Of the women interviewed, 98 per cent knew used fat was still wanted and 78 per cent of them turned in fat this year, but most of them did not realize that the purpose of collecting used fat is to supplement the U. S. shortage of imported fat, which is now so urgently needed for industrial purposes.

Considering these varying opinions, the American Fat Salvage Committee urges American housewives, to realize fat salvage is still urgently necessary, regardless of victory in Europe. After the defeat of Germany there will still be needed a vast amount of munitions and medicines to defeat Japan, and these all need used fat. Machinery and manufactured goods will be required in increased amounts for the rehabilitation of Europe and used fat is absolutely essential for these. Fat salvage must go on not only until after the defeat of Japan but until the production of fats and oils in the Pacific Island areas can be brought back to prewar production levels of a billion pounds annually.

Dairymen Offered Opportunity of Buying Young Purebred Sires

An effort is now being made to import some new purebred male calves. This will do much toward improving food production. The demands for dairy products during this war emergency has caused many dairymen to milk cows that are low producers. Also many herds have been built up so rapidly that no effort has been made to eliminate the inefficent producers. Many dairymen have been careless in their selection of bulls. Thus, we find that dairymen are becoming interested in securing new sires of good production ancestry and of good type.

The Michigan State College has a baby bull calf project organized to assist dairymen in obtaining good sires at a reasonable price. Many large dairymen in southern Michigan have a surplus of young male calves that have the proper production background and yet are killed at birth. This is especially true in the large milk producing sections. These animals can be purchased at a price that Charlevoix county dairymen can afford to pay.

All bulls purchased will be from dams having cow test records of 350 lbs. of butterfat per year and up. Thus a dairyman may select the kind of bull that he wants and the price of course will be somewhat higher where the production record is 450 lbs. and up.

All dairy breeds may be included in your request. If you are interested in having us help you secure a new purebred bull calf, contact your county agent by mail or telephone at once. Inform us of the breed you desire and how high you want the production of his mother. The price for a calf under one month of age will be from $30 to $50, depending on this production record. This does not include transportation. For safety's sake, these animals must not be moved later than early November. Kindly inform us at once if you need a young sire for your dams.

Splendid Respone in Milkweed Pod Harvest

The public has responded to the patriotic call for picking milkweed pods beyond our highest expectations. The school children all thru the county are busy before and after school in helping the harvest. The various stations throughout the county report a big demand for sacks. Many adults are likewise helping in the harvest.

The number of pods seem to be greater than last year. Many folks are making from $5 to $6 a day and are working every day. The season should last for some ten days to two weeks. The price per sack at picking time is 15c. All stations will receive milkweed pods and will pay cash at time of delivery. Just as another reminder, here are the receiving stations: Charlevoix County Coop., Wm. Newkirk, Boyne City Hatchery; Mrs. Robert Barnett, East Jordon; A. G. Tilletson, Bay Shore; Mrs. John Budek, Burgess; James F. Benle, Advance; C. F. Deoise, Boyne Falls; Sister Agnes Clare, Benver Island; Pete Bennett, Ironton and Si Simpson, Walloon Lake.

Effects Debated

Barbiturates were first discovered, in the form of veronal, in 1903. Because their "side effects" are much less disagreeable than the older paraldehyde and chloral, they seem to offer harmless relief from pain and sleeplessness. And because experts disagree as to the seriousness of their effects, barbiturates are still sold over the counter to all comers in 20 of our states; in many others, a doctor's prescription for one of the drugs can be indefinitely refilled.

TEACHERS SALARIES SHOW LARGE GAIN SINCE 1941

Salaries of beginning teachers in Michigan have increased a full third since 1941, and salaries of the whole profession — have advanced almost that much — but still the shortage of teachers is acute, it was reported here today by the University of Michigan Bureau of Appointments and Occupational Information as a result of the annual cooperative survey of the profession made by the appointment bureaus of all teachers training institutions in the state.

The average salary of beginning teachers from all Michigan colleges in 1941 was about $1,200. This had increased to $1,525 by the fall of 1943, with teachers from the University of Michigan getting almost $1,600. This year, however, the general average had gone to $1,760 and a number of schools were offering $1,800 to $1,900. With few exceptions, no schools were offering less than $1,600.

The survey which covers supply demand, salaries and placement of teachers, attributed the higher wages partly to teacher shortages and partly to the universal rise in salaries along with rising prices. Another factor has been higher teaching standards in many Michigan schools, where masters' degrees are demanded.

Despite better wages, the study showed that the colleges were preparing a third less teachers than they were before the war and that at least a fifth of those preparing to teach were not going into the profession. Yet Michigan has been more fortunate than adjoining states in getting teachers. Last year, 150 elementary teachers immigrated here from other north central states. The state's excellent retirement system also helps; a teacher's pension approximates the income equal to that from an investment of more than $25,000.

In the northern part of the state especially, there are still a number of experienced teachers getting less than $1,600. Most of these are settled, own homes or farms, and are content with the lower wage scales paid by some agricultural counties. However, living expenses in the non-industrial counties are generally lower, too.

Living conditions are an important factor in teacher placement, according to the report. Many teachers insist they are human too, and refuse better paying positions, especially in small towns, because they are subjected to criticism for living in a normal way.

Although few schools have a tenure law, almost all teachers have more security than other classes of workers with the exception of those under civil service. In Michigan, with its general high level of education, the teaching profession is highly respected and consideration for it is increasing as people realize the importance of good teachers to the community.

Costly Mace

The costly mace is the shadow of another spice. Between the two hard shells of a nutmeg kernel is a lacelike fragile membrane—the gauzy filament or mace that must be separated from the shell by hands with the skill of a surgeon. Several hundred pounds of nutmeg often produce but a single pound of this unsubstantial, delicate spice. The nutmeg tree is a native of the Moluccas but it has emigrated to the West Indies and now to Brazil.

TO HOLD DOWN FOOTBALL TRAVEL

To restrict football travel, football team managers have been requested by the Office of Defense Transportation to confine sale and distribution of tickets to residents of local areas of cities or towns in which games are to be played. The ODT also has asked football teams in traveling by train to use coach accommodations wherever possible and to make pullman reservations no earlier than the day before departure.

17-YEAR OLDS CAN NOW ENTER NAVY SERVICE

A limited number of 17-year-old men are being accepted for training as Navy combat aircrewmen, according to an announcement today by Lieut.-Comdr. Byron E. Flechtner, Officer in Charge of Navy recruiting for this area.

Men desiring to enlist for this training may apply at any Navy Recruiting Station. There are no specific educational requirements, but applicants must pass written examinations covering general intelligence and certain mechanical aptitudes.

All applicants must have normal vision. Height requirements call for a minimum of 64 inches and maximum of 72 inches. Weight must be in proportion to height, but in no case can be less than 110 pounds or over 185 pounds.

A man qualifying for enlistment as a Navy combat aircrewman may be trained as an aviation radioman, aviation machinist's mate or aviation ordnanceman. He receives approximately 10 months' training, depending upon the rating he is working toward.

All Navy combat aircrewmen volunteer for this branch of service. Those who successfully complete combat aircrew training are authorized to wear the air gunner's sleeve insignia and silver wings.

4-H SHEEP PROFITABLE

Managing a flock of sheep is no small task for an adult, but Marilyn Elser, 16, of Hillsdale, has proved that it's not too big a job even for a girl her age.

Selecting sheep six years ago as one of her principal 4-H projects, Marilyn since that time has made a profit of $718.50 from her flock. Of this amount nearly $300 was her reward in the form of prizes at county and state fairs and shows. She made her small start when 10 years old with one Canadian ewe. Now she has 14 head of registered Southdown sheep.

FARM SECURITY FOR RETURNING VETERANS

"The Farm Security Administration is in a position to offer aid to returning war veterans who wish to establish themselves on farms," said Mr. Donovan Fox, chairman of the county FSA Advisory Committee. He stated that loans up to $2500 could be made for livestock, machinery, group services, building repairs, cash rent, feed and seed and other things for the necessary operation of a farm. Veterans are eligible who have a farm background either as owner, tenant or laborer and can make satisfactory tenure arrangement for a family-size farm.

"The county committee, which reviews and passes on applications, will give special consideration to each veteran's application," continued Mr. Fox. "The loans bear 5% interest and are usually repayable within five years. The county supervisors and we committeemen give advice and assistance in every way possible. The average loan in this area is around $1500.00 but may be higher or lower, to meet the particular need of the family."

Veterans are also eligible to buy farms under the Bankhead-Jones Tenant Act but since Congress cut the appropriation for this purpose about 50%, only a limited number of loans can be made. The Farm Security Administration can also make supplementary loans to veterans who wish to take advantage of the provisions offered in the GI Bill of Rights. The FSA has already assisted many veterans to get reestablished on farms. They are working with service officers and veterans' organizations. For further information, see Carl N. Celas, FSA Supervisor, Gaylord, Michigan.

HOME FURNISHING LESSONS PLANNED

How to make something new from something old will be the principal theme of home furnishing lessons to be presented to leaders of Home Economics clubs in Michigan this fall and winter.

The classes will be conducted in all counties in the state, beginning in Bay City, Bay county, October 2. Each county has selected one lesson from a list of seven which includes: How to repair spring unit cushions, homemade and remodeled furniture, the wonders of a coat of paint, arranging furniture, making rugs and mats, recovering lamp shades, and conserving chairs with pads and protectors.

Most popular lesson this year is the making of rugs and mats. Twenty-one counties have designated this lesson for their classes, which will be held intermittently from October through April. Special lessons are also being scheduled by Miss Marion on reupholstering, making slip covers and refinishing furniture.

All classes in the upper peninsula will be taught by Miss Emily Parker, district home demonstration agent.

The lessons on home furnishing are a part of a series in three other fields of home economics, home management, nutrition and clothing.

PLACE EGG CASE ORDERS AT ONCE

Users of egg cases are being urged by Michigan State college authorities to place orders immediately for their case requirements. Such action, it is hoped, will help avoid the difficulties experienced by many users last spring in obtaining cases.

Arthur Howland, extension economist, points out that at present the production of corrugated fibre board, from which about 85 per cent of the new cases for civilian use will be made, is below actual requirements. Box manufacturers are receiving their allocations of fibre board on a monthly basis. Since there is heavy competition for use of this material, delay in placing orders for cases will create hardship for the user. It is definitely known that only a very few wooden cases will be available for civilian use this coming season.

The Case of the Kidnaped Code

For a real life mystery more intriguing than fiction, get this Sunday's (Oct. 1) issue of The Detroit Sunday Times, telling . . . in The American Weekly . . . how a young officer, goaded by his luxury-mad sweetheart, devised a daring plan to kidnap the French Navy's code book and then waged a clever duel of wits with the Surete. AT THE MOVIES

The Palace Theatre will be closed Monday night — but there will be a "double-header" Tuesday and Wednesday.

"Between Two Worlds", which comes to the palace on Saturday and Sunday, is a picture which depicts one of the strangest voyages recorded on film, investigating the theory of life and death in general, and the world between them in particular. This "world between" happens to be an ocean liner adrift on a diaphonous sea on which eight people from all walks of life find themselves left to their own resources.

The twin bill on Tuesday and Wednesday provides diversified entertainment with the breezy "Jamboree", featuring leading radio stars and bands, and the companion picture "Memphis Belle," the story of the historic Flying Fortress and its courageous crew of ten, with 25 bombing missions over Europe to its credit.

"Crime By Night", a murder mystery, runs Thursday and Friday, October 5-6, and features Jane Wyman, Faye Emerson, Jerome Cowan and Eleanor Parker.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

U. S. Columns Drive Into Reich For Assault on Siegfried Line; Bumper Grain Harvest Forecast

Released by Western Newspaper Union

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysis and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

Following encounter with Nazi troops, U. S. patrol moves cautiously through Brianeon in southeastern France in shadow of snow-capped Alps.

EUROPE: Press For

While the German radio told its people that they must "fight on and on, come what may," strong spearheads from Lieut.-Gen. Courtney Hodges' First American army thrust inside of the reich to bear down on the vaunted Siegfried line.

As General Hodges' forces smashed into Germany against stiffening opposition, Lieut.-Gen. George S. Patton's Third American army waged a bloody battle in the Metz and Nancy sector to the south, where bridgeheads were thrown across the Moselle river in the face of murderous enemy artillery fire.

In the third American sector below Nancy, Lieut.-Gen. Alexander Patch's Seventh army drew up its strength before the famed Belfort Gap, the open plain between the French Vosges mountains and the Swiss border leading into southwestern Germany.

While U. S. troops drew upon the Siegfried line, with its jagged tank traps and concrete fortifications set 30 miles deep, the British Second army punched over the Belgian border into Holland, where strong German forces showed the sensational advance which had carried all along the channel coast area.

U. S. Bravery

As the big battle for Germany raged, there was no end to stories of American bravery.

There was the story, for instance, of Lieut. Raymond Bitney of Bloomer, Wis., in charge of a company sent to cover the evacuation of wounded from across one of the Moselle river bridgeheads.

While exposing themselves to enemy machine-guns and mortars, Lieutenant Bitney's men kept up a

As Allied forces hammered into a tottering Germany, and strong American air and naval forces were bringing the war closer to Japan, President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill met in another historic conference in Quebec, Canada, with their military advisers. Although the European situation was sure to command their attention, emphasis was to be placed upon plans for dealing the Nipponese a knockout blow, it was reported.

running fire to divert the enemy's attention from the efforts being made to transfer the wounded across the water by boat.

Hit in the neck himself, Lieutenant Bitney worked his way back to headquarters to inquire why vehicles were unavailable for transporting the wounded back of the lines after evacuation from the bridgehead. At headquarters, he insisted on returning to battle, and with back bandaged, trudged off again to the front.

Russ Massed

With their lines harassed in the west, the Germans found no relief in the east, where the Russians kept them on the go at both ends of the long front.

As the battle for Warsaw continued to rage with the Germans employing strong armored formations to curtail Red troops hammering out yardage to the northeast, other Russian armies massed for a drive against East Prussia, where the enemy was established in the wooded lake country.

In the Balkans, the Germans were sorely pressed to ward off a Russian smash through the mountains onto the Hungarian plains, and to hold open a path through Jugoslavia for the evacuation of their Aegean and Greek garrisons perilled by the collapse of Rumania and Bulgaria.

CONSPIRATORS DIE: Intrigue

Execution of six prominent economic, diplomatic, political and police officials of Germany for implication in the recent attempt on Adolf Hitler's life indicates the complicated maneuvering necessary to seize control of a state and keep it functioning.

Previously Field Marshal Von Witzleben and seven other army officers had been executed for their part in the plot.

CROPS: 6 Billion Bushels

With the corn crop itself expected to total 3,101,319,000 bushels, the 1944 grain harvest was estimated at more than 6,000,000,000 bushels by the U. S. department of agriculture.

Only soybeans at 179,024,000 bushels and barley at 290,036,000 bushels were expected to drop below last year's production.

Beneficial rains throughout most of the drouth area east of the Mississippi, and continued good growth in the corn belt, led to the USDA's optimistic estimate for the second largest corn crop on record.

At 1,115,402,000 bushels, the expected wheat harvest would be the greatest on record, with spring wheat, other than durum, accounting for 293,775,000 bushels, the largest ever reported. Oats production was set at 1,190,540,000 against 1,143,867,000 last year, and sorghum grain at 149,962,000 against 103,163,000.

DEMOBILIZATION: Aid Asked

Reduction of the work week to 40 hours except in cases where continued war production warranted overtime, release of all manpower controls, and minimum unemployment compensation of $20 a week for 26 weeks were all recommended by War Mobilization Director James F. Byrnes to meet the economic emergency that will arise after Germany's defeat.

Claiming that the end of the European conflict would release 8,000,000 tons of food from wartime reserves, Byrnes called for congressional appropriations up to $2,000,000,000 for price supports for farm products.

During the partial swing-back to civilian production, Byrnes said, the government should maintain price control and use increased fuel stocks arising from smaller military demands to boost gasoline allowances in certain areas.

PACIFIC: Hit Philippines

As powerful American aerial and naval elements continued ripping away at the Japs' inner defense circle, strong U. S. task forces blasted at Mindanao in the southern Philippines, and the Palau islands directly to the east.

Even as the task force unlimbered on the Philippines, other U. S. aerial units aimed at enemy shipping and defense installations all the way from the Kuriles down to the Celebes.

In joining army bombers operating from New Guinea in blasting Mindanao, naval aircraft flew virtually unmolested over the entire length of the island, while U. S. cruisers and destroyers ranged along the eastern coast, boldly cracking at all types of shipping using the water routes to connect the smattering of islands making up the Philippines. In cracking Palau, U. S. battlewagons rode unmolested as they pulverized every defense.

MISCELLANY

RAILS: Class I railroads of the United States in July, 1944, had an estimated net income, after interest and rentals, of $88,500,000 compared with $82,278,032 in July, 1943. In the first seven months of 1944 they had an estimated net income after interest and rentals, of $381,000,000 compared with $527,936,139 in the corresponding period of 1943 it was reported.

NOVEMBER 7: As Maine Goes?

Although the nation has not always gone the way Maine went, political forecasters were trying to read some significance into that state's Republican landslide in the recent general election.

Besides winning the governorship by more than 75,000 votes compared with a 49,000 margin of two years ago, the GOP swept through the state's three congressional districts by better than 2 to 1.

Interesting feature of the congressional elections was the fact that all three of the Democratic candidates were endorsed by a subsidiary of the CIO's vaunted political action committee. Because Maine is not preponderantly industrial, however, the political action committee's rebuff cannot be considered as a yardstick of its general strength.

MEXICO: Teach Illiterates

With about half of Mexico's total population illiterate, that country has undertaken an ambitious program to have every educated person teach at least one illiterate non-Indian how to read and write simple Spanish.

Inaugurated by Progressive Pres. Avila Camacho, the program embraces instruction from elementary primers, illustrating "dog," "cat," "cow," etc., with the pupil's successful completion of the course recorded with local and federal government authorities.

In the case of educated people unable to undertake the instruction of illiterates, they may be permitted to hire teachers to perform the work, with amateurs expected to be largely employed because there will not be enough professionals to get around.

For the time being, no effort will be made to teach illiterate Indians, it was reported.

Expensive Care

Care of 15 Pekingese dogs will entitle Mrs. Ina Mae McGuire of Ontario, Canada (above), to life interest in $100,000 trust fund set up in will filed by Mrs. May Margarette Shaw, owner of the dogs. In case Mrs. McGuire refuses, money will revert to estate.

WOOD: New Uses

Latest of the seientific wonders is wood "steak," now on Swedish menus, and one of the many new uses found for wood which may spur the lumber industry in the postwar world.

In dishing up a wood "steak," in a country where a steak may be a fried and breaded preparation, Swedes make it from a protein yeast obtained from a chemical decomposition of wood through addition of elements of water. In preparing their famed aquavit liquor, the Swedes also use alcohol derived through the same process, it was reported.

Other scientific advances contributing to greater wood utilization include the production of black plastic from sawdust; strengthening of timber through impregnation, heat and pressure; lamination of plywood to stand up under severe stress, and sandwiching of one type of timber over another.

WAR PRODUCTION: Cutbacks Minor

With only 49,200 employees affected by recent cancellations of $421,493,000 in war orders from June 15 to August 31, it is apparent that no substantial unemployment problem will develop until the defeat of Germany releases an estimated 4,000,000 workers.

At the present time, more than 9,500,000 persons are employed in the munitions industries, and production for the armed forces is running at a rate of $5,000,000,000 monthly.

Because many of the cutbacks were made in production that was only in the planning stage, and affected plants able to shift released workers to other war output, the full effect of the cancellations will not be felt before four months.

HOME LOAN: Assets Increase

With mortgage outlets restricted by construction curtailment, member savings and loans associations of the Federal Home Loan Bank system showed an increase in holdings of government securities to $733,000,000 in 1943 from $260,000,000 in 1942. In all, the associations' assets rose to $3,538,000,000, a 16 per cent boost over the previous year, when an increase of 4.7 per cent was recorded.

THREE FALL JOBS FOR POULTRYMEN

Early fall is the time for three important jobs for every poultry flock owner. These are culling the old flocks, cleaning the laying house, and getting the early hatched pullets into the laying house.

Otis E. Shear, poultry specialist of Michigan State college, advises putting the pullets indoors before the fall rains and bad weather starts. The poultrymen should make sure that the house is properly ventilated, with windows and doors open during the warm part of the fall.

If the pullets are now laying in nests provided out on the range, it is satisfactory to leave them there through the period of pleasant fall weather.

In preparing the laying house for the birds, poultrymen using built-up litter will find it advisable to put the first layer on the floor before wet weather comes.

Culling at this season is desirable to rid the flock of unprofitable hens so that they won't have to be carried through the winter.

are some fair-sized concentrations of ducks on upstate beaver ponds and small lakes, according to conservation department authorities, and in places along the Lake Huron shore there is a reported increase of black ducks and mallards.

Houghton Lake has more than the usual number of mallards and teal. There is a good local crop of ducks on the back waters of the department dam on the Maskegon River below Houghton Lake.

Average concentrations of local ducks are seen on the west side of the state.

Under legislative mandate, an active program of acquiring lands to guarantee perpetual access for the public to Michigan lakes and streams was begun by the conservation department three years ago.

Recent light frosts that have killed bracken andergrowth on forested sand plains of northern counties have helped to increase fire hazard, although normal autumnal rains should help to hold down fire loss in the closing weeks of the 1944 fire season.

The conservation department's forest fire suppression forces are alerted for the extra-hazard period beginning October 1 in the upper peninsula when upland game seasons open. Usual appenls to hunters to be extra careful with matches and campfires nre made.

Fire loss to date this year totals 14,330 acres. The loss in all of 1943 was 18,563 acres.

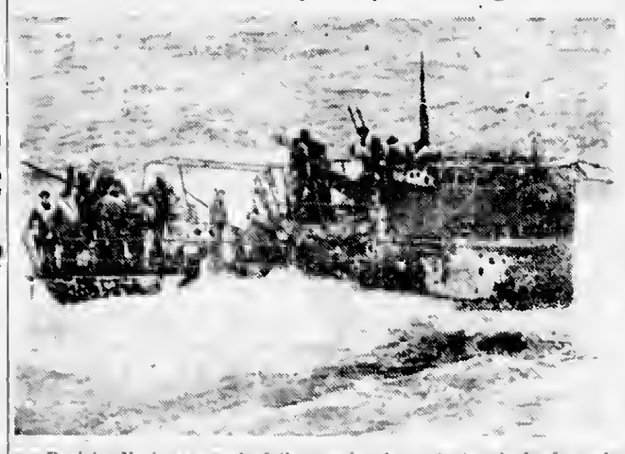
Sub Blasted by Depth Charges



Panicky Nazis pour out of the conning tower in the deck of a submarine blasted to the surface by depth charges planted by U. S. coast guard and navy destroyer escorts somewhere in the Atlantic. A few minutes later the crippled U-boat plunged to the bottom of the sea. Twelve Nazis were picked up and became prisoners of war.

Nazi Prisoners in France

German prisoners of war, 10,000 strong, are herded into their new enclosure as they prepared for a visit as guests of the Allies. They were taken in Allied pincers drive in France. The total number of prisoners taken, it is believed, will exceed by far any previously captured by American and British units.

The Farmer and War Bonds

by Mr. A. S. Goss

Master of the National Grange

WE FREQUENTLY hear farmers raise the question as to whether or not they should buy War Bonds as long as they are in debt. The answer to this question should depend in large measure upon the nature of the debt and whether or not it is current. If part of it is past due, and the borrower expects to experience difficulty in meeting past due payments, he probably should bring his debt into current position before investing in Bonds. If, however, his payments are current, there seems to be no reason why farmers should not buy as many Bonds as they are able. Most individual investors in government Bonds are carrying debt in one form or another, at rates higher than the Bonds will yield. This is as it should be if the purchaser is in an earning position which permits the accumulation of some surplus, for we all owe it to our government to do our utmost in the financing of the war, even though the transaction may result in our paying some extra interest on outstanding debts.

When a farmer owes money, he is always concerned as to whether his crops will sell at prices which will enable him to repay his debt. When prices are high it is good business and conservative finance to reduce the debt as rapidly as possible because when prices are low, it takes more crops and more efforts to make the payments.

We should not forget, however, that a government Bond will pay off an equal amount of dollars of debt, no matter whether prices are high or whether prices are low. It is, therefore, a sound and conservative practice to buy government Bonds and lay them aside to make payments on existing debts when they fall due. In fact, quite aside from the patriotic appeal, it is good business to buy Bonds rather than make pre-payments on debt, because the time may come when the ready cash is needed and the money tied up in pre-payments cannot be returned. If this money is invested in Bonds, it can be converted into cash to meet any needs which may arise.

If everyone followed the policy of buying no War Bonds until their debts were paid, few Bonds would be sold to the public. We have an obligation to help finance this war which is vastly more important than the income we may receive on the investment of money in War Bonds.

Farmers are finding it impossible to maintain their machinery and buildings in a satisfactory state of repair. They are finding that they cannot replace worn-out equipment except at excessively high cost.

It would seem to be sound and conservative business practice to lay aside money to make the repairs and replace worn-out equipment when material and machines are again available. No safer place can be found to lay aside money for such purposes than in government Bonds.

Every time we buy a Bond we are not only assisting in financing the war, but we are also doing our bit to prevent that most dreaded economic disaster called inflation. If each one of us would invest as much as we could in government Bonds, the danger of inflation would be greatly reduced.

ZIEGLER ACTS TO SAVE TIRES

Realizing a puncture often means ruination of a tire, Highway Commissioner Charles M. Ziegler, above, has ordered the State Highway Department's road magnet into service. The magnet picks up nails and other metal objects which may cause punctures. Commissioner Ziegler is examining some of the objects picked up by the magnet in a recent 15-mile test run which yielded 17 pounds of nails, tacks, bolts, beer caps and other sharp-edged metallic objects, any one of which might have caused a puncture. The magnet is being used on tranklines carrying war traffic and should prove a valuable tire conservation measure.

SCHOOL NOTES

Second Grade

We are learning the poem "Come Little Leaves" by George Cooper. We have made a large picture of the poem in the back of our room, and we dramatize it, as well as take turns saying the poem.

We are glad Alice Thorpe is back to school after being ill a week.

Faye Meggison brought us a bunch of cat-tails. We made pictures of them, and learned a cattail song.

We have three reading groups. Each group has chosen a color for a name. Now we have the Red, Blue and Yellow groups. Each group tries very hard to practice all the good reading habits we know.

Third Grade

We have the room divided into three reading groups, each group reading a different book. We think our reading is improving already.

The following had perfect spelling papers Friday: Arlene John, Carolyn Gevedon and Joyce Hardy. Most of us did much better than last week.

John Broussard brought his magnets to school. His explanation of how they work was very interesting.

Synthis Smith's fuzzy caterpillar has spun its cocoon in the bottom of a jar. He covered the top of himself nicely but we wonder if he knows we can see him from the under side while he sleeps.

Roberta Carpenter joined our group last week after her vacation. We are glad to have her.

Fourth Grade

There are 37 boys and girls in the fourth grade this year. We feel very grown up to be moved upstairs. The boys did a good job of moving all our books. We were sorry to lose one of our members, Jaclyn Cooper who has gone to make her home in Detroit. We hope, she will write to us.

We are studying about Charlevoix in Geography. In connection with this we made two trips, one to the Fish Hatchery and one along Round Lake to watch the Commercial Fishermen at work.

We invite any of the parents or friends of the Fourth Grade to visit us at any time.

Fifth Grade

In history we are studying about how the New World was settled. We drew pictures for History. We have Current Events every Thursday. Dorothy Allers brought a globe of the world. It will be very helpful to us in Geography. In Geography we are studying the New England States.

4-H News

Ninety-five girls have enrolled in clothing. They are divided into four groups, each group a club, meeting one afternoon each week.

The Tuesday club met and elected officers as follows: President, Sara Coleman; vice president, Colleen Reed; secretary, Marion Seymour; treasurer, Joyce Keiler.

The Wednesday club officers are: president, Betty Potter; vice president, Betty Cross; secretary, Geraldine Ver Snyder; treasurer, Anne Cellner.

Thursday club officers are: president, Alice Boss; vice president, and song leader, Dorothy Klooster; secretary, Doris Winnick; treasurer, Mary Lou Black.

About one hundred boys are enrolled in handicraft. They meet five days a week.

Sixth Grade

We are thoroughly enjoying our new History books, "The Past Lives Again." We are beginning to realize that the history of the past is somewhat like a giant moving picture show. Through newspapers and radios we can learn and know what is happening in the world of today. But we must turn to books to know of the things that have gone before.

And our Geography too! What fun and how interesting to learn about "Nations Beyond the Seas". After a short introduction to "The Old World", we have arrived at the "British Empire". Like our boys who are serving across the Atlantic, we expect to spend some little time with these most interesting people and to learn much about their many possessions.

Too, we are learning to use our Dictionary. Every lesson and every class have words that we must learn to spell—to pronounce—and to know the correct meaning.

Some of us didn't do so well with Lesson I in our new Spelling Workbook. We all hope to do better with Lesson II.

Kindergarten News

Mr. Gray came in the room on Monday, and taught the children a new song, "I've a Dear Little Dolly." The boys and girls sang several songs for him that they have learned this year. Next Monday they want to surprise him with a song about Halloween.

The favorite stories this week have been "Little Black Sambo" and "The Three Pigs."

On Thursday the Second Grade visited the room and they sang their new songs for the Kindergarteoers. The children enjoyed having company and hope they will come again soon.

High School

....In the freshman and sophomore English classes, short stories have been the center of attention for study both in and out of class. Among those selected from the standpoint of enjoyment and purposes of critical analysis have been: (for the sophomores) "The Third Ingredient", O'Henry, "The Red-Headed League", A. Conan Doyle; "The Pit and the Pendulum", Jack London, "The Romance of a Busy Broker," O' Henry; "The Specter Bridegroom" Washington Irving; "Barker's Luck," Bret Harte; "The Gold Bug", Edgar Allen Poe.

Latin I has an enrollment of 36 students. Thus far the agriculae have held the foremost position in vocabulary and sentence structure, as the students are learning that Latin is a language of endings and in this respect differs so.

The Speech class which is open to students of the upper four grades is nicely under way as the students relate personal experiences in their beginning expository efforts. Other books dealing with speech have furnished material for supplementary reports to the class by individual members and notes on these reports are kept by each student to be compiled with other material pertinent to speech in the form of a notebook acting as a semester project.

Our girls physical education program began September 18 and it met with enthusiastic response—so much so, that a division of class by grades was made necessary. At the present writing the 10th, 11th, and 12th grades meet three times a week and the 7th, 8th, and 9th twice. As the building is excellently equipped for a girls' athletic program, we hope to make valuable use of it.

General Math.

The class in General Math. is designed to review what the student has already learned and to make some beginning approaches to Alg. and Geom. If a student has not been strong in Arith; he is urged to take this course following which he may be able to start Algebra his second year.

Algebra

The purpose of Algebra is to train the student in more abstract thinking. This branch of Math. is positively necessary to the successful study of both chemistry and physics.

Biology

The study of Biology, has as its major purpose the teaching of such facts as are related to common experiences and to the interests of pupils in everyday activities. Emphasis is placed upon the social aspects, especially such important interpretive understandings as health, conservation, and recreation.

Geometry

In Geometry we attempt to impart a knowledge of practical applications but we also stress logical thinking. Here we learn to arrange facts in logical sequence, drawing conclusions therefrom. The many original problems to be solved furnish abundant work for the ordinary student while the more difficult exercises are a real challenge to the superior student. This branch of Math. is an important pre-requisite to the study of Science.

World History

Citizenship implies an understanding of worldwide relationships. To secure this objective one needs to investigate the records of the past.

This past unfolds in the ice ages, the period of the cave dwellers, the discovery of fire, the taming of animals for domestic use, the development of writing, and the tracing of one civilization as it merges into succeeding ones.

American History

Objectives for American History students revolve around the need of recognition and the understanding of events that enable the United States to develop.

Contributing factors to this end are: the breaking of land trade routes to the Far East, the intense competition that lay back of Portugal, Spain, England and France, as they tried to establish control in various sections of the world, and the gradual development of colonies steming from Jamestown, Virginia referred to us the germ cell of the modern United States.

Physics Class

As we commence this week of school, the Physics Class is studying the Mechanics of Liquids. Although we are somewhat handicapped for present lack of apparatus, that will soon be a thing of the past, as a large order for supplies has been placed. The aims of this course are to help the student to understand the natural laws about him so that he may better adjust himself to his surroundings and derive pleasure from understanding them.

English III
The Period of the Revolution

Any adequate history of the Revolution must consider the Loyalist as well as the Patriot side. It must also trace causes of separation that were operative long before the Stamp Act and other measures of taxation finally roused and united the Colonies in opposition to the mother country. The English III classes will attempt in a summary to see events as the writers of 1776 saw them, to get the Revolutionary view rather than to paint a picture of the Revolution itself.

English IV

From Chaucer's Death, 1400, to the accession of Elizabeth, 1558.

A Course of English History

1. Henry IV
2. Henry V
3. Wars of the Roses

B Causes and effects of the Renaissance.

C Invention of Printing.

D Malory's Morte d' Arthur.

Typing

The Typing class is learning the essential parts of a typewriter together with the care of the typewriter. The key-board has been taught giving the student an opportunity to type short simple sentences.

General Business

The General Business classes are working on banking projects such as making out check registers and doing problems concerning the deposits, balances and withdrawals.

Shorthand

The Shorthand class is being taught to read short-hand notes and are given work on simple sentences and paragraphs to acquaint the student with short-hand characters, the writing of short-hand will follow as soon as the student has had enough practice in visualizing the characters.

Bookkeeping

The Bookkeeping class will be working on the general journal, or book of original entry, the basis step in bookkeeping procedure. The work is simplified with the aid of a work-book.

Buzz Bombs Can Be Humane. NEWS FROM FRONT IN LETTER TO HIS WIFE

The following letter was received from Sgt. Wm. I. Supernaw, Somewhere in France by his wife.

We left England amidst sunshine and rain, had quite a hike to the whurfs and then boarded ship. It was a pretty good size ship which was a good thing as we spent quite some time on it, but even then was sure glad to get off. We finally did, however, and landed on what was probably the muddiest spot I have ever seen—ankle deep and really thick but we somehow managed to mush through it to the top of the hill where it was still wet but at least not muddy. It was late in the day so was impossible to go anywhere so we pitched our tents, had the inevitable C and K rations and amidst the cold and damp crawled into our tents and tried to get some sleep which was well nigh impossible, but did manage a little. I was about to say we were up at the crack of dawn but it was before the dawn ever thought of cracking, tore down our tents, rolled our packs, had our rations, then waited until mid morning before we got underway. We all loaded into trucks and took off for the interior on a ride I will never forget as long as I have any memory.

Speaking of not forgetting things, I think the outstanding thing I have seen to date, one that really took everybody the same way, was an American cemetery on top of a hill. It was a huge thing. There was an American flag flying from the side toward us. We were going up one hill and the cemetery was across a valley on another hill about a half mile away. There was row upon row of white crosses, very neat and orderly, and the way the sun was at the time made them stand out sharp and plain. I could never describe the feeling it gave me but I sure

Football This Week

Standout college football teams are beginning to rear their heads as the 1944 season gets under way.

Notre Dame looks good as usual after the 58 to 0 walloping by Pittsburgh. We'll know better after this Saturday when the Irish play Tulane.

Others to watch include Pennsylvania, the Army, and North Carolina Pre-Flight who join such already established standouts as Illinois, Great Lakes and Southern California.

Definitely deflated last Saturday were Michigan, the Navy and Duke.

But Michigan can come back this Saturday, if the Wolverines take the "Little Brown Jug" from Minnesota. Also we have a hunch Navy will recoup some prestige in Saturday's contest with Penn State.

Additional top games this Saturday: Illinois-Purdue, Ohio State-Iowa, Army-Brown, Yale-Cornell, Georgia Tech-North Carolina, Iowa Seahawks-Colorado Springs Superbombers, Rice-Louisiana State, Texas-Randolph Field.

There's an extra good one to watch on the coast, Southern California meets California with conference and Rose Bowl hopes in the balance.

The Blue Star Mothers will serve a buffet supper Thursday, October 12th, at the I. O. O. F. Hall. Serving will start at 6 p.m. $1.00 per plate.—40t1.

COAST GUARD ICE-BREAKER NEAR COMPLETION

The ice-breaker MACKINAW, sturdiest ship ever built on the Great Lakes, is more than 80 per cent complete and will be delivered to the Coast Guard between December 15 and January 1.

The 290-foot vessel, designed to assist Great Lakes shipping by breaking ice at the opening of the navigation season, is under construction at the Toledo Shipbuilding Co., Toledo, Ohio.

Preliminary trials will be held the latter part of November in Lake Erie. Dock, builder's and preliminary acceptance trials are necessary before the massive ice-breaker is ready to be turned over to the Coast Guard.

Unique in design and construction, the ship is of the same class and design as the Coast Guard's "Wind" ice-breakers — NORTHWIND, SOUTHWIND, EASTWIND, and WESTWIND — built for salt water. It has more beam, is longer, and draws less water than its sea-going prototype.

The vessel has a 74-foot beam and has heavier plating than any ship on the Great Lakes.

Outstanding features of these vessels is the use of the forward screw in addition to the twin stern screws. The bow propeller is a symmetrical wheel which can rotate to advantage in either direction. It can be used to cut ice and to create a wash or vacuum, depending upon its rotation, to clear packed ice.

The MACKINAW is diesel electric powered.

Also unique is the heeling tank equipment, which can set up a rapid change in trim for the vessel. Should the MACKINAW be frozen in the ice her giant pumping and tank equipment can bring her from a hard port to a hard starboard list in 80 seconds. This radical movement of the vessel would shake her loose.

Forward and aft trimming tanks also permit the vessel to free herself. The ice-breaking bow is of a cut-away design permitting the vessel to ride up on the ice. If the weight of the bow does not break through the ice, forward ballast tanks can be filled to provide additional weight.

The MACKINAW has two 12-ton cranes to handle aids-to-navigation and a towing mechanism aft.

Launched in March, the vessel will be manned by more than 100 officers and men of the Coast Guard.

Present plans call for the MACKINAW to be berthed at Cheboygan, Michigan, this winter.

THIRTY YEARS AGO.

Wednesday, September 30, 1914

Charlevoix Ice Cream Company Charles Hamphear, proprietor, opened for business in its new quarters. Saturday afternoon, when the first batch of ice cream was made. (This was in the building now occupied by Frank Novotny & Sons, Tinsmiths.)

Charlevoix schools had 525 pupils enrolled, with sixteen in the senior class. Grade teachers were the Misses Hallie Hon, Sophia Munson, Bessie Hanshew, Mary Finucan, Jarvis, Audrey Correll, Alida Whiting, Enid Todd and Madge Allen.

The Russell House in East Jordan was nearly destroyed by fire a week ago Wednesday and fire broke out again the following morning. It was owned by Mrs. Prior.

A steam heating plant was nearing completion in the Catholic school this week.

According to the ads, women's dresses were narrow at the bottom and the skirt hem brushed the insteps. WAAC's, in those days couldn't have performed that

REO RAYDERS WIN OVER EAST JORDAN, 6-0

The Red Rayders annexed another victory to their 1944 schedule but had a difficult job in keeping a lead with a smart, aggressive, East Jordan ball club.

Co-Captain Novotny lost the toss and chose to defend the west-goal. Frank Martin kicked-off and the game was under-way; East Jordan ran three consecutive plays and finally booted down to Charlevoix's 40-yard line. Quarterback Graves organized the boys and ground was gained on sweeping end runs made possible by good blocking. Graves changed the pattern and threw a 30-yard pass to right-end Hurdy who carried the ball over for our first and only touchdown. The try for the extra point was blocked.

East Jordan started on a passing rampage that took them into every territory and a long pass thrown by Saxton to their left end into the end zone was rolled back because of an off-side penalty which was a "break" for the Red Rayders.

The game see-sawed back and forth until the last few minutes when East Jordan received our fumble on the 30-yard line. A long pass was successful carrying them to the 1-yard line. The Red Rayders displayed a remarkable defense and held for the four downs. Novotny stepped back and booted the ball to our 30-yard line, and the game was over with both teams in about mid-field.

The game was marked by clean, hard, football, although we suffered injuries. The boys are still weak offensively but made up for the difference defensively.

M. E. A. president, Edgar F. Brown will address the Thursday session while Eugene B. Elliott, state superintendent of public instruction, will speak at the Friday meeting.

Those attending will be from Region Five which embraces 16 counties. They are: Alcona, Alpena, Antrim, Benzie, Charlevoix, Cheboygan, Emmet, Grand Traverse, Kalkaska, Leelanau, Missaukee, Montmorency, Oscoda, Otsego, Presque Isle and Wexford.

In this year's conference, emphasis will be placed on the role education is to play in the post-war world.

Staff Sgt. George R. Johnston, son of Mr. and Mrs. George K. Johnston, of Long Beach, Calif., and grandson of Mrs. Henry Johnston and Mrs. Charles R. Munyon and the late Mr. Munyon, of this city, has completed 50 missions from bases in Italy over Germany and other enemy lands in the "Sky Wolf", Liberator Bomber, and has returned to the States. At the present time he is spending a furlough with his parents, in Long Beach before reporting at a rest area for re-assignment.

The "baby" of the crew, Sgt. Johnston, tail gunner only 20 years old, shot down two enemy planes and received the Air Medal and six Oak Leaf Clusters in the brief six months he was in active combat. The entire crew returned from all their missions unscathed.

The "Sky Wolf" herself, however, was shot up but she still is in service, flying missions with a different crew. The sergeant and his crew got their leave July 12 and have spent the intervening time getting home from the Italian theater of operations. The crew had gone into action in February after a brief training period in north Africa.

Sgt. Johnston entered the Air Force in January, 1943, after graduating from Poly high school, Long Beach.

The crew of the "Sky Wolf" had a real live wildcat mascot. The waist gunner brought the animal to his home in Virginia when the crew returned to the States.

MISS ESTHER KAY ENLISTS IN WACS LEFT MONDAY NIGHT

Miss Esther Kay, of Rutherford, N. J. who enlisted in the Women's Army Corps late in August at Yonkers, N. Y., left Monday night for New York City to report for duty after spending the week end with her sister, Mrs. Don Swinton. Miss Kay who was a secretary at the Kenyon Advertising Co., New York, when she enlisted, has qualified for a job at the Newark Air Base, of the Atlantic Overseas Air Service Company. Classified as a stenographer, she hopes to find her way into the medical field soon.

Miss Kay who has spent some time in Charlevoix is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Kay and attended the Ypsilanti schools. She enlisted, she stated, "to be the representative of my family in the armed forces and to do my part to end the war." Granted a 30-day deferment at the time she enlisted Miss Kay will leave New York to report at Fort Oglethorp, Ga., for basic training.

WAR FUND DRIVE TO START SOON

Representatives from this district met with state heads of the Michigan United War Fund in Traverse City last week and plans were made for raising quotas in the drive to start October 15th.

Attending the meeting from this section were: Arnold Wolgast, Petoskey; Rev. J. M. DeVinney, Boyne City; L. B. Karr, East Jordan and J. F. Scudder, Charlevoix.

A. L. Miller, President of Michigan United War Fund, stressed the fact that too many people are beginning to think the war is about over. "Well it isn't", said Mr. Miller, "nor will it be terminated with a victory over Germany. Our casualty list was greater this week than ever before — and will continue to grow as we expand into more distant theatres of conflict."

We all know this is a global war. Not all realize that our own personal part is global — that the generosity of every local community, township or city goes to the ends of the earth. When you are asked to give, remember that your gift to the War Fund will work on six continents and in 91 countries and geographic areas, including our own. Your gift will cross embattled seas, sift through closed borders, penetrate barbed wire entanglements to help keep up morale against the enervating effects of confinement in war-prison camps and provide for the entertainment and recreation of our fighting forces through the U. S. O.

And so it goes around the globe —wherever there is a need that can be reached and relieved, YOU, through the War Fund, can extend a helping hand. Your generosity will strike with the forces of good against the power of evil, wherever it may be.

Announces His Resignation

He is also city assessor and building inspector and has been actively interested in plans for Charlevoix's municipal airport. At present he is serving as county chairman of the Charlevoix County United War Fund, and is salvage chairman for this city. Member of the Masonic lodge for several years, he holds the office of junior deacon.

Mr. Emrey's successor has not yet been appointed.

State Trooper Talks To Local Groups

State Trooper Leeingraven of the Traverse City State Police Post made two appearances in Charlevoix last week, one at the high school, the second at the Kiwanis meeting.

The moving picture films used showed the remarkable work done by the Air Corps in securing boys for the air services.

The keynote of the training period rested on disciplinary measures intended to prove what boys were the most competent. From one thousand candidates only 23 are finally admitted to the Officers Training School.

It was demonstrated that only those who can take orders and execute them effectively are eligible to be in charge of the lives of others.

SCHOOL ELECTION RESULTS GIVEN

A special meeting of the school district was held on the evening of October 3 to elect a Board of Education, following the change from a Graded School District to a Township Unit. Approximately 100 people attended.

The offices to be filled were: one member for a term of one year; two members for a term of two years; and two members for a term of three years.

Harold Withers was the only nominee for the one year term, and was duly elected.

For the two year term Mrs. Walter Bergeon and Elmer Hawley were the only nominees and so elected.

For the three year term Bonnie Nickerson, Walker Miles and Fred Willis were nominated. The results of the balloting were:

Total Vote	103
Invalid	1

Walker Miles	34

Nickerson and Willis were declared elected.

The next annual election will be the second Monday in July, unless, as Leo Close, Commissioner of Schools, explained, the Board votes to hold said election on the second Monday in June. At that election nominations for office must be made by petition signed by at least 25 voters.

The article written by Bud Kane, Stars and Stripes staff writer, names Pvt. James E. Townsend, of Petoskey, as one of the 24 enlisted men. The following is the article as published in the Stars and Stripes:

20,000 Nazis in Mass Surrender to Yanks

Beaugency, France, Sept. 17—More than 20,000 German troops, including members of the Luftwaffe, Wermucht and Nazi marine units, were marched into U. S. Army prisoner of war camps today after their mass surrender had been effected principally by the reconnaissance work of one officer and 24 enlisted men of an 83rd Infantry Division platoon.

In a ceremony marking one of the strangest mass surrenders in this war, Maj. Gen. Erich Elster formally turned over his pistol to Maj. Gen. Robert C. Macon, 83rd Division commander, and then directed his troops as they, too, turned over their weapons and other tools of war — including 1,900 vehicles of all kinds—before crossing the Loire River to become prisoners.

The story behind the surrender goes back to September 8, when Lt. Samuel W. Magill, of Ashtabula, Ohio, leader of an intelligence and reconnaissance patrol reaching across the Loire, learned that a large body of Germans coming up from the Spanish border was attempting to slip through the gap at Belfort, a gap already being closed by the Seventh Army from the south and the

MICH. BELL TELEPHONE LOOKS FOR HEALTHY RECONVERSION PERIOD

On the basis of a healthy business outlook following the reconversion period, George M. Welch, president of the Michigan Bell Telephone Company, today forecast $120,000,000 post-war expansion program by the company.

Welch said such a program would require five years for completion after the war and that its accomplishment will depend upon general business conditions and the availability of manpower, materials, and investment funds.

Requirements of the proposed program, largest ever undertaken by the company in a similar period, call for the erection of 46 new buildings or building additions costing more than $8,000,000, the placing of 13,500,000 conductor feet of exchange cable and 250 miles of long distance cable, and the installation of more than 100 long distance switchboard positions.

A major problem will be to answer the demands of those waiting for service. To wipe out that waiting list — now close to 90,000 mark — will require $18,000,000 of new construction.

The company also expects to resume its rural expansion program, which was started late in 1940 only to be interrupted by the war. That program provides a liberal method of financing farmline construction under an installment payment plan worked out by the company and Michigan agricultural leaders.

Staff Sgt. Clement Olach In England

Staff Sergeant Clement Olach, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Olach is an aircraft electrical specialist at one of the large strategic air depots in England. The depot, commanded by Colonel William H. Gist of Union, South Carolina, recently received the Goodrich trophy for outstanding achievements while servicing Liberator bombers. The trophy was awarded by Brigadier General Donald B. Goodrich, commanding general of the Eighth Army Air Force Service Command.

Shortly after entering the army at Fort Custer, Michigan in October, 1941, Sergeant Olach attended the Signal Corps school at Fort Monmouth, New Jersey, and a radio school at Midland, Texas. He went overseas in September, 1943. Sergeant Olach, a graduate of Charlevoix high school, class of 1938, was employed by the Western Electric Corporation as an electrician.

Third Army from the west and north.

Magill and his men, knowing that the Ninth Air Force and the Maquis were raising havoc with this army of men, slid into this open territory on September 8 and established patrols up and down the Loire. Pfc. James Reilly, of Thomaston, Conn., and Pvt. James E. Townsend, of Petoskey, Mich., slipped over to the other side of the river to constitute the entire force of Americans on that side. The outfit ran patrols north and south for 40 miles and east and west for nearly 30 miles—all with 24 men.

Late in the day, Magill was approached by two members of the Maquis who stated there was a German general willing to discuss peace terms if there were Americans in the vicinity. Magill met Elster and began negotiations.

To preserve his honor, Elster requested of Magill that the latter have two battalions of Americans cross the Loire, where a token battle would be staged.

This, Magill after discussion with Gen. Macon, refused to do. Instead, he requested the Ninth Air Force to have a large number of planes hovering in the vicinity while negotiations were resumed. Further, he informed the Air Force he would display a white panel on his vehicle in case the surrender terms were agreed to, a yellow one if not.

Impressed by Power Plan

Impressed by the display of air power, Elster agreed to the surrender terms but requested that American representatives attend the conference on conditions in civilian clothes. This too, was refused, and on Sept. 10, Magill, with his driver, Pfc. Ralph E. Anderson, of Lancaster, Ohio, accompanied by a Belgian officer and Elster and his aide, drove through Chateau-neuf-sur-Cher, still under German control, with an American flag on the car.

Germans gaped at the sight of the car and some, noticing the German general, saluted smartly, even though obviously puzzled at the paradox.

Agreement Reached

They drove to Issoudun and there at the prefecture, an agreement was reached, whereby Lt. Col. Jules K. French, of Merrifield, Va., of the 83rd Infantry, went to the German CP and conducted operations while the Germans moved forward to the Loire for the formal surrender.

Elster was told to bring his army in three columns to the banks of the river. There they were to lay down their arms in a mass, formal surrender.

This procedure would take several days, so the Germans were allowed to retain their weapons in order to protect themselves from wandering bands of Maquis unaware of the agreement.

As the column proceeded, Elster, apprehensive of possible carnage from the air force, said to Magill: "Thank you for not straffing us yesterday."

He explained that he had lost several liaison officers in attempts to establish communications between all his units and that the holding off by the American planes had strengthened his belief, held also by his men, that the Americans would respect their word.

Next it was arranged that an American officer be with the Germans at all times on their march and that, in return, a German officer of equal rank be with the Americans as a hostage.

One of the oddest things in this amazing setup was the fact that French, in charge of the German command post, was treated with the courtesy due an officer of higher rank because he was actually the commandant. Junior officers, as well as those ranking him by at least one grade, saluted first and treated him as though he were of general officer status.

Inspects U. S. Guard

Another incident occurred on the march when an additional guard of American soldiers was dispatched to prevent any misunderstanding on the part of the Maquis or other organizations. Elster, when informed of the guard's presence, expressed a wish to inspect it formally, and this was granted.

As the Nazi general passed down the line each soldier went through his paces, and so satisfactory was their conduct that Elster congratulated French on the military bearing of his men.

French said that the Germans were soberly respectful of the Americans, not, he added, because of any apparent liking for them, but because of the power of the American Army and the fact that they felt that the power was fairly applied. Mystification was expressed that the Americans could get ready with so little warning, for a war of the magnitude they were waging.

War Bonds as Investment for Farmers

by Warren W. Hawley, Jr., President
New York State Farm Bureau Federation

IN CHECKING figures of the Farm Credit Administration, I find that farmers are paying off mortgages faster than at any other period in the history of the Federal Land Bank.

At the same time, farmers are building up cash reserves, but the wise investment of this money is an extremely hard job for farmers to undertake. The temptation is to try and obtain as high an interest rate as possible.

Many of us see no reason why we should not get as much interest on our money now as we had to pay the bank when we were forced to borrow during the depression.

The answer is that today money is cheap—"expanded", as the bankers express it. Therefore interest rates are low except in very speculative securities. Naturally no farmer wants to risk losing his hard earned cash.

We farmers know our own business and we can invest money in it safely because we understand it. However, when we branch off into other fields, especially the highly technical field of investments, most of us encounter sad experiences.

In these days it is virtually impossible for farmers to put their surplus cash back into the farm. War-time conditions prevent us from repairing buildings, and buying new machinery, automobiles, trucks and other equipment we must eventually have if we are going to stay in business.

So the smart thing for farmers to do is to invest their surplus money in War Bonds where it is as safe as a dollar bill. These bonds increase in value the longer they are held; they can be cashed after sixty days in case of need, and they will provide a reserve for investment after the war in the business the farmers know best—the business of farming.

I confidently predict that if farmers will do this, the dawn of peace will signalize a new day for agriculture.

Trouble Often Starts at Home

Read the other day where some folks have put up $100,000 to establish a bureau to combat intolerance and prejudice.

Reckon we all agree that that's a mighty worthy cause. But I wonder if tolerance, like so many other things, doesn't begin at home.

You take a family where Ma objects to hubby's smoking in the parlor; and Pa can't stand his wife's hats; and they both yell at Sis for liking to listen to swing music—and you've got the seeds of trouble! Trouble that spreads to intolerance among neighbors, and intolerance among nations.

From where I sit, you can put your faith in the family that lives and lets live—where Pa enjoys his smoke and maybe a mellow glass of beer or two; and Ma wears funny looking hats and likes 'em; and Sis grows up as healthfully full of spirits as a child should be.

Home Economics Extension Leaders Organizing for New Projects

Miss Margaret Harris, Assistant State Home Demonstration Leader, met with the Extension Leaders of Charlevoix County last week Friday in the Charlevoix City Building. A splendid group of 16 leaders was in attendance. In addition to the 10 groups with extension experience in home economics we were pleased to have representatives from Ironton, Barnard and Norwood.

Miss Harris outlined in detail the subject matter of the four lessons which constituto the coming winter's program. Considerable attention was given to organization problems and responsibilities of the various officers. Miss Emma Fero, Emergency War Food Assistant, will gladly assist any community in organizing for this project. Instead of the 10 groups we had last year, we now anticipate 15 or 16 which will more adequately cover the communities in Charlevoix county.

4-H Club Now Organizing for Winter Projects Charlevoix Shows Biggest Increase

The 4-H Club program gives every indication of exceeding last winter's enrollment. We are very pleased with the response in the Charlevoix public schools. To date, over 90 girls have enrolled in clothing projects and around 60 boys in handicraft. The new faculty in the Charlevoix schools is cooperating to the fullest extent and are making it possible for both urban and rural pupils to participate in the 4-H club program by giving them proper leadership and sufficient time to carry on the activity.

We already have five enrollments from rural schools with more coming in daily. More of their time is now devoted to the Victory club. All of the schools are actively collecting milkweed pods and are cooperating in the salvage paper drive. Later on they will start clothing and handicraft projects.

Local Labor Needed in Sugar Beet Harvest

Tuscola County needs more help October 1st through November 15.

A recent communication from Norris Wilber, County Agent, Tuscola County, requests help from the fruit growing districts for their sugar beet harvest. Reports indicate that more help is needed if the sugar beet crop is to be harvested. The recent shortage of sugar plainly indicates the necessity of harvesting all beets.

Arrangements can be made for organizing groups of families who can spend six weeks in Huron, Sanilac or Tuscola counties. Good wages can be made and good living conditions are available. These counties greatly helped us in our cherry harvest, and now feel that we can be of help to them. Let us know if you are interested.

Beaver Island Holds 4-H Achievement Day

Some fifteen 4-H club girls finished their club program on Wednesday night, September 27th, with their exhibits displayed at the St. James Hall. The canning displays attracted much favorable comment by their splendid quality and variety. All exhibits were judged and premiums awarded. Karl C. Festerling, district club agent and County Agent Mellencamp gave brief remarks following community singing and club reports.

THE OLD JUDGE SAYS...

"It sounds almost like a miracle, Judge... how did we ever do it?"

"American industry did it, Sally. When the Japs conquered the chief natural rubber producing centers of the world they thought they had dealt a death blow to our war effort. But, in less than two years, we are producing enough synthetic rubber in this country to supply all our military and essential civilian requirements.

"Our rubber experts knew how to make it but the most practical process at the time required huge amounts of industrial alcohol ... far beyond the already overtaxed capacity of our industrial alcohol plants. So, overnight, our country's beverage distillers stopped making whiskey and produced hundreds of millions of gallons of the vitally needed alcohol.

"As a matter of fact, Sally, a high government official said recently '... synthetic rubber is from 6 to 9 months ahead of where it could have been if alcohol had not been available for butadiene production.'"

"We were really fortunate, weren't we Judge, to have a beverage distilling industry in existence ... able to help perform this great wartime miracle!"

SCHOOL NOTES

Kindergarten

This week in Kindergarten the boys and girls have learned to sing some Mother Goose songs, "Jack and Jill", "Jack Be Nimble", "Hickery, Dickary Dock" and "Baa, Baa Black Sheep."

Thursday was David Arnold's birthday and the children sang "Happy Birthday" to him, and they enjoyed very much the special story about a little boy named David, who received four puppies for his birthday present.

First Grade

Bruce Fairbanks was in school one day last week. He will be with us regularly in about three weeks.

We have a new pupil, Frederick Donner from the Traverse City schools. We have been studying about rabbits and Tony Ashdon brought his Bunny to visit school one day. Our grade visited the library last Thursday. We heard a story there and each child was given a card to enable them to take books from the library.

Second Grade

We have read a daily prayer in our room this week. Anna Pontious brought us, "A Little Book of Prayers" by Emilie F. Johnson. We learned that Mrs. Johnson, who wrote the book has been coming to Charlevoix for many summers. She wrote "A Little Book of Prayers" especially for boys and girls. David Juilleret brought his turtle to school. We enjoyed watching him. The turtle's name was Uncle Wiggley. We made up a story and called it, "David and His Turtle."

Spelling is new to us in the second grade. This week we worked very hard and 27 of the 35 second graders had perfect papers. We are making a picture book for Annabelle Crain, who is in the hospital.

Third Grade

We are happy to welcome two new pupils to our group, Forrest Benttie from Anaheim, California and Gay Ann Donner from Traverse City. Forrest told us about gophers in California and drew a picture of them too. Last Friday we went to the Junior Library. Mrs. Bowman told us about the different kinds of books they have and how to find them. Many of us drew our books on our cards, while others are going to get cards so they may take books next time. One reading group has finished reading "Jimmy the Groceryman". We learned many things about a store from it. We like our new arithmetic books. Story problems are fun.

Fourth Grade

We are trying hard to improve our spelling. Each week we have 16 new words and 8 old words. Last week we had 11 who received S plus or perfect and 9 who received S. Let us have 20 or 25 perfect spellers this week. We are sorry to lose one of our good workers, Frederick Curtis. He is on his way to California to make his home. We hope he will write to use about his trip. One of our group is ill at home with a very fat face. The doctor called is Mumps. Get well soon, Shirley Wakefield. We miss you.

Fifth Grade

Virginia Smith brought us a bouquet of bittersweet for our room. We have a new bulletin board and hope to have many interesting and good papers to put up on it. Our girls go to 4-H on Monday and Tuesday, the boys on Monday. Miss Little is reading us the book "Silver Chief."

4th, 5th and 6th Grades Overflow

We call ourselves the Study Shop Room. We are the overflow of the fourth, fifth and sixth grades. In history we are studying Michigan's early explorers and Indians. We are tracing early settlements on a map. We have a collection of indian books and crafts. All classes are having addition problems in Arithmetic. We are reviewing combinations, taking tests, and keeping graph of our progress. We looked at an earthworm through a microscope. It stretched and contracted as it crawled.

Sixth Grade

We are now in our fourth week of school for this year, and out of a group of 37 boys and girls, 29 have been here, and on time each session. We are making a real effort for perfect attendance. Nice new arithmetic books. We were properly introduced to our new "Living Arithmetic" books this past week. We learned how to correctly open a "new" book and why. Just three days to go to school this week! But we have been told we must complete all the work for the entire week. So this week we expect to be busy each night with some "home work."

1st, 2nd, 3rd Grade Overflow

The boys and girls in our room are making a "Spic and Span Poster." Many are on the "Spic and Span" list. Gary Lee Curtis brought a cocoon to school. We are patiently watching the butterfly develop. James Novotny, Bob Miles and Gary Lee Curtis are housekeepers this week. Our Reading Tables are being enjoyed by all. Many pupils are bringing reading material from home.

English II

The English II classes entered upon the field of poetry last week and are finding that ordinary, commonplace objects can be the theme of humorous couplets. A first line is suggested by a member of the class and a second can easily be found to rime with it. In this manner the students are learning the basic elements of rhyme and rhythm which are so essential in the reading of poetry.

English I

Robert Louis Stevenson's Treasure Island is once more giving its age-old pleasure in following the exciting adventures of Jim Hawkins in his search for pirates' treasure. Students in this freshman class have been urged to contribute models, cartoons, drawings or anything else which they feel would be exemplary of some incident in, or of the story as a whole. This is voluntary work, but extra credit will be given those students who contribute and we plan to place these achievements on display in the English room upon the completion of this unit. In the other English I class, the important features of conversation are being studied. Conversation, we learn, is a two-sided affair and not all the stress should be placed on being a good talker; it also is an art to be a good listener.

English IV

The Elizabethan Age was a period of expansion in knowledge, commerce, religious freedom and human opportunities. The defiat of the Armada freed England from fear of Spanish domination and made her Mistress of the Sea. The senior English class will study the combined influence of the Renaissance and the Reformation.

English III

Lives and works of Ben Franklin, George Washington, Alexander Hamilton with respect to their influence upon American letters.

General Science

The science classes are studying lift pumps force pumps, caissons, compressed air and atmospheres pressure.

Latin I

Latin I students will soon have mastered the first declension, having been introduced by this date to four of the five cases found therein.

Girls Physical Education

In both physical education classes, volley-ball is the game of the moment and we plan to have a deciding contest before long to determine the champion team.

7th and 8th Grades

Seventh grade boys finally have the new arithmetic books and are busy reading and writing members for the present. Seventh grade clothing girls are struggling with basic stitches, and a few are attempting a satisfactory darn or patch. Eight grade clothing are studying color and dress, in regards to individual coloring governing choice of suitable color for the girl. Eighth grade English section II are identifying sentences as to type as well as becoming more familiar with complete subjects and complete predicates.

High School Clothing

Senior high clothing class has obtained the textbook "You and Your Clothes," and are working on the unit of the "Girl Herself". It is a real personal analysis, which governs individual clothes selection.

4-H

All 4-H clubs are organized, and most of the girls are started on individual projects.

Math.

During the past week, the general math. class has been learning both to make and to interpret different kinds of graphs, with these devices it is possible to represent a large volume of statistical data that is understandable at a glance.

In algebra we have been concerned with formulas that have to do with all kinds of plane figures. This coming week will find us studying volumes.

The biology section has been studying photo-synthesis and related subjects, particularly the structure of leaves and the manner of transporting and storing food.

We are just beginning some of the simpler demonstrations in geometry. Up until now, our work has dealt mostly with the experimental and constructive phases of the subject, but we hope soon to undertake the solution of some original problems.

Physics class has been working with densities and finding the problems a bit intricate. However, the difficulties are smoothing out and we shall proceed to work with specific gravity and Archimede's Principle in the near future.

American History

The founding of the tiny settlement of Jamestown, Virginia in 1607 revealed the terrible hardships to be overcome before a true foothold could be maintained in the New World by Englishmen. Additional settlements were established until the thirteenth, Georgia, was begun by James Oglethorp in 1732. This was the final one of the thirteen English colonies that became the foundation of the United States. As pupils read the trails blazed in these early days there are hints of the heritage that has become ours.

World History

The area of the 'Fertile Crescent' starting with Palestine and ending at the Persian Gulf has been called the 'Cradle of Civilization'. One sturdy people after another fought for the privilege of taking a part in this farming region. Babylon gave way to Assyria, finally overcame Assyria only to give way before the assault of Indo-European tribesmen. As one people succeeds another in that ancient day, students recognize the way in which nation after nation fits into the intricate pattern of world development.

Industrial Arts Department

The shop has been cleaned and rearranged to include a metal work unit. All the benches have been resanded and refinished and tools have been reconditioned. Most of the boys are working on their first projects. New football field markers were made by the boys. Five separate 4-H clubs have been organized and club members are busy organized and club members are busy finishing their first projects.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

German Resistance Stiffens as Allies Assault Siegfried Line; Hog Ceilings Extended to June

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysis and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

Crouching along walls of battered buildings, Doughboys close in on Brest, France. Toward rear, two can be seen setting up machine guns.

EUROPE:
Flanking Attack

With German resistance stiffening along the Siegfried line from Belgium to Switzerland, the gravity of Allied attacks swung to Holland, where the British Second army linking up with the Allies' First airborne force converged at the head of the Rhine river for a drive into the rich industrial Ruhr valley.

Drifting earthward into Holland, thousands of U. S., British, Polish and Dutch paratroopers landed far to the rear of German forces holding up the Allied advance along the Belgian border, and the enemy was compelled to counterattack vigorously to escape the complete entrapment of his forces.

By landing at the Rhine's head near the towns of Arnhem and Nijmegen, the Allies swung to the north of the German bastion of Kleve, reportedly the terminus of the Siegfried line, and thus set the stage for a drive around the vaunted fortification system into the Ruhr valley or plains leading eastward to Berlin.

While the Allies sprung their mighty air-borne offensive in Holland, the U. S. First, Third and Seventh armies bucking the Siegfried line from the Belgian border to Switzerland encountered increasingly stiffer resistance from a fanatical defense.

As the land drives slowed, the Americans brought up large concentrations of heavy artillery to blast stubborn German positions, with the First army's big guns trained on Durem, gateway to the big industrial city of Cologne, and Prum, west of Coblenz.

Braving robot attacks and heavy tank and artillery fire, Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton's doughty Third army lashed against strong German forces west of the rich coal and industrial Saar region."

Tough Nut

While the Nazis fought " . . . with complete contempt for death" in Italy, as the Allied command put it, an essential factor in their rugged defense of the vital "Gothic line" guarding the rich industrial Po valley was the skillful fortification system established by Field Marshal Kesselring.

Every village on the battlefield was converted into a little fort, with the houses reinforced with concrete and steel. Deep shelters were dug out of the steep mountain slopes and artillery was concentrated at all of the chief passes through which the Allies might attempt to bang. Fortifications were set up in such a way so as to expose any advancing force to flanking fire.

Despite these rugged defenses, however, the Allied Fifth and Eighth armies, made up of Americans, British, Canadians, Polish and Brazilian troops, inched their way forward.

Mass Weight

German lines sagged as the Russians threw in 500,000 troops in an effort to drive to the Baltic sea and cut off Nazi armies in Latvia and Estonia from German forces operating in the East Prussian and Warsaw regions to the south.

In shifting the weight of their attack to the north as German lines stiffened about East Prussia and Warsaw, the Reds were following their historic policy of fully utilizing their superior manpower against a numerically inferior enemy.

DISABLED VETS

Morbid curiosity and thoughtlessness on the part of civilians can greatly hinder—and sometimes destroy—the efforts of disabled soldiers to readjust themselves to a normal civilian life, Surgeon General Norman T. Kirk of the army declared.

"Modern surgery is skillfully restoring these men," General Kirk said. "Prostheses are furnished to every man who has lost an arm or a leg and the men are taught how to use them. . . ."

HOGS:
Hold Ceilings

While hog receipts continued light prior to the heavy seasonal fall run, the War Food administration announced that present ceilings of $14.75 per hundredweight for 240 pounders or less and $14 per hundredweight for all over 240 pounds would not be reduced before next June 30.

However, WFA said that support prices will be trimmed to $12.50 per hundredweight for 180 to 270 pounders beginning October 1, with the door still open for possible action in other weights.

In seeking price adjustment, it was said, WFA was contemplating a "cushion" on all hog marketing, under which packers would have to pay an average of $13.75 for all good and choice hogs to qualify for subsidies.

PACIFIC:
Bitter Foe

Fighting against a foe as fanatical as any encountered on the Pacific islands, U. S. marines and doughboys pushed ahead their occupation of the vital Palau islands, 600 miles to the east of the Philippines.

Adm. Wilkinson

As the battle progressed, no less than 5,543 Japanese soldiers were killed resisting the powerful U. S. amphibious force commanded by Vice Adm. T. S. Wilkinson, USN, and aided by swarms of aircraft.

Victory in the Palaus had the effect of neutralizing the big Jap naval base of Truk in the Carolines and jeopardizing the enemy's shipping lines between the conquered Indies and the homeland proper.

As the U. S. forces banged ahead through tropical Palau, other American troops secured their foothold in the Moluccas, 300 miles from the southern Philippines.

SURPLUS GOODS:
Provide for Disposal

Despite strong objections to the legislation's provision for a three-man board rather than a single authority to administer disposal of surplus war property, the President received congress' bill for the sale of such goods, estimated to eventually approximate 100 billion dollars.

Representing a compromise between the senate and house, the bill passed despite last minute opposition centered against the elimination of a provision that all money derived from the sale of surplus war goods to be used to retire the public debt.

As the bill finally went to the White House after much congressional wrangling, it forbids discrimination against small business in the sale of surpluses; gives former owners priority in the purchase of real estate bought by the government for war purposes, and compels the three man board to report to congress on proposed disposition of big government owned war plants to private interests.

Meantime, congress gave final consideration to a reconversion bill, which would set up a central office to coordinate the work of all government agencies on the switch back to peace, and, if necessary, lend states money for postwar unemployment compensation.

IRONS:
Expect Shipments

First of the 2,000,000 electric irons to be produced under government authorization in 1944 will make their appearance on retail counters about the middle of October, trade circles said, with prices approximating those of 1942.

Only limited supplies will be available, tradesmen said, with manufacturers, jobbers and distributors allocating the irons to stores under formulas based on prewar purchases.

Manufactured in areas where production will not interfere with war work, the electric irons will sell from $5.05 to $17.50.

PEACE PRICES:
1942 Levels

Declaring that " . . . we cannot build a full production economy on high prices, OPA Administrator Chester Bowles said that the government intends to hold reconversion prices to the 1942 level wherever possible.

However, Bowles said, new ceilings may be necessary for automobiles and parts, refrigerators, washing machines, sewing machines, vacuum cleaners and other appliances, radios, phonographs, pianos, heating and cooling equipment, clocks and watches.

Of the items on the list which may demand new prices, fewer than a dozen account for 85 per cent of the total volume of dollar sales, Bowles said, while the remaining 15 per cent are made up of small articles of the "egg-beater" class.

Last Words

"Dear wife and family: I write you these few lines at 6:35 p. m. I am O. K. My head hurts but some of the men are down. I have asked the Lord Christ to have mercy on our souls."

Thus did Foreman George Emery, 42, open his fateful letter to loved ones, written while he and 65 other companions entrapped in a flaming mine near Bellaire, Ohio, waited vainly for rescue. Smudged with coal dust, the letter was discovered on Emery's body when recovered.

At 7:02 p. m., Emery wrote: ". . . We are very cold because we took our clothes to stop the holes in the barricade. . . ."

At 8:15 p. m., he wrote: ". . . I have just asked the Lord's divine blessing on us who are trapped here . . . Most of the boys are laying around and they are very cold. My head just pumps. My heart tries to get out of my shirt at times. . . ."

". . . The boys are now laying back to back to keep warm. . . ."

"10:40 p. m. I can see the smoke in this place. The men are restless. They are talking about death. That is a bad sign. I am starting to vomit myself. . . . I am lying down. Too sick to explore. My light still burns. (Floyd) Aberegg is laying next to me back to back. He is a very brave man. . . ."

"Aberegg is asleep now. Noddug myself. Hi Biandy (his 17-year old daughter)."

MODEL CO-OP:
Project Liquidated

Sale of 1,500 acres of the 2,771 acre Deshee farm near Vincennes, Ind., following earlier liquidation of the pure-bred herd of Jersey cattle, hogs, other livestock and farm implements, will all but conclude one of the government's model cooperative undertakings.

With the government investing $534,326 in land, houses, dairy barns, roads, levees, and extending $102,915 in loans to the operators who once numbered 38 families, the Deshee project prospered at first, then declined when high war plant wages lured some members, and close government supervision induced others to go on their own.

The government figures to lose little on the operators, however, since they paid some $35,000 rental in five years and sale of chattel is expected to repay the rest of their loans.

AMERICAN LEGION:
Hears Nimitz

Addressing the 26th annual convention of the American Legion in Chicago by radio, Adm. Chester Nimitz revealed that Gen. Douglas MacArthur would direct the invasion of the Philippines, with the navy providing the necessary support. At the same time, Admiral Nimiz warned that the war against the Japs would be a hard one, and the necessity for hauling vast quantities of supplies to the Pacific would extend its duration.

While the convention pondered a resolution calling for a strong postwar security organization, it asked for the deportation of subversive aliens; return of refugees to their homes, and stoppage of immigration until unemployment falls to 1,000,000 in the U. S.

HEAVY SALES

Both wholesale and retail trade showed appreciable increases in mid-September over the same period last year, with most lines selling well.

Most pronounced activity was in college and young girls' apparel and accessories, and such sportswear as skirts and jackets in plaids and solid colors moved well.

Both fur and cloth coats were in demand. High colored and black suits and dresses found ready buyers.

MISCELLANY

HOLDINGS: Aside from holdings of lamb and mutton, which approximated 15,220,000 pounds, meat storage showed a decided drop on September 1. Stocks of pork totaled 489,496,000 pounds, smallest since December 1, 1943, and beef holdings dipped to 161,733,000 pounds, smallest since November 1, 1943. At 244,040,000 pounds, lard stocks were lowest since February 1.

Fixing Up the Farm by BURTON WILLIAMS

Fire Protection for Farm

THE observance of National Fire Prevention Week, October 8-14, should be of special interest to every farmer. For farm fires have increased substantially, destroying thousands of barns, farm buildings, and large quantities of farm machinery difficult to replace.

According to the National Board of Fire Underwriters, next to rolling builds and looking to chimney construction, the most important thing the wise farmer can do to protect his property is to cover every structure with a fireproof material. Sparks may find their way to a combustible roof from many sources: they may drop from the chimney, they may be whirled aloft from a grass or brush fire, or blown from a neighboring building.

To guard against the danger of combustible roofs, one of the best fireproof roofing materials available today is asbestos cement shingles. These can be applied over the present roofing on most buildings and will give years of service. A similar product, asbestos cement siding, can be obtained for protecting the sidewalls of buildings.

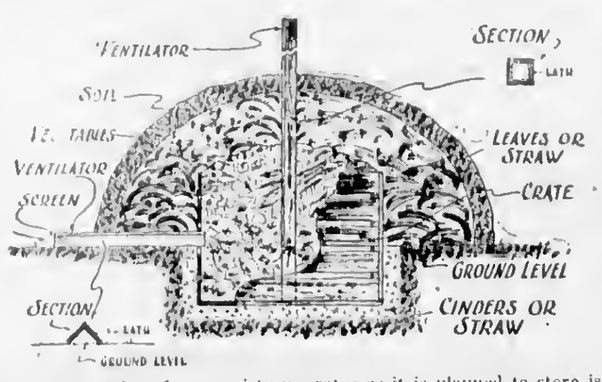
AN EASY WAY TO STORE VEGETABLES



A happy ending for any victory garden tale is for the succulent vegetables to spend their last days residing in properly prepared storage quarters. Bulk storage is perhaps the easiest and least expensive of all methods of food preservation. The smart gardener takes full advantage of it.

For the gardener casting about for the best means of storing his crop, a recently developed method, called crate storage, is believed by Paul R. Krone, Michigan State college garden specialist, as the best of all. The illustration above shows how it is done.

An assortment of vegetables is placed in each of several slatted pot crates so that an entire crate can be taken into the house at one time during the winter to provide a variety for a two or three-week period. A trench about 24 inches deep and wide enough to accommodate as many crates as it is planned to store is dug. This trench is lined with about 4 inches of straw or washed cinders. Intake ventilators consisting of two pieces of lath nailed together as shown, are placed horizontally on top of the soil with one end running into each crate and the other beyond the area to be covered by the straw. Outlet ventilators, make of four pieces of lath nailed together as shown, are placed upright from the crate to extend through the straw covering.

The crates are then placed end to end in the trench and covered with a heavy layer of straw or leaves, perhaps two feet thick. This in turn is covered with a layer of four to six inches of soil. It is wise to place about eight inches of straw or leaves between each crate so that when one is removed the others will be protected. Outer ends of the ventilators should be protected against rain, snow and ice.

The advantage of this type of storage over others lies in the fact that as the temperature of the vegetables rises during the early storage period, cold air is drawn in through the horizontal vent on top of the ground, forcing the warm air and gases out the vertical ventilator.

When temperatures fall far below freezing, it is an advisable precaution to plug the ventilators with straw.

NEWS FROM FRONT IN LETTER TO HIS WIFE

had a big lump in my throat and decided then and there that as long as I am in the Army I will never complain or gripe again.

Our truck ride lasted all day and well into the night and let me tell you, these G. I. trucks were never made for comfort, nor were the French roads so my posture really took a beating but it is now rounding into shape nicely. The trucks were open affairs and while this made it a little windy and cool on an otherwise very nice day, no one seemed to mind as it gave us a swell chance to see a lot of France and I am telling you even though I can't write much about it, we saw some pretty vivid things. We saw the hedge-rows you probably read about and what problems these must have been for those first waves of Yanks. Also towns that had to be taken. I know now what they mean by leveling a town. Most of the buildings over here are made of stone or brick and these places were just blown to bits, not just here and there but a whole town or village completely laid low. There are very few if any livable places left. The whole countryside is pockmarked with shell holes and bomb craters, and innumerable foxholes, which over here they call wolf holes on account of the wolves that inhabit them. The further into France we came the less destruction we saw. I guess the Germans were leaving so fast there was no need for it. France itself is really beautiful. The land is very rich and trees, flowers and crops are also abundant and really looks like some of our best land. Over here you see little of fences, everything is divided with hedges and we have sure seen a lot of them.

In all the places we have been, everything seems to be built very much alike, the buildings all represent an old style type of building. There are very few modern buildings. The sidewalks are very narrow and the buildings, homes and commercial are built right to the edge of them. Except for lawn and the people either stand lawn and the people either stand in the doorways or lean out the windows, which have little spiked gates built out on the sills.

We don't have too much to do in the line of recreation, most of the towns are off limits and we seldom stay anyone place long enough to learn our way around. However, last night we all went to a U.S.O. show here to see Dinah Shore, Fred Astaire, Tommy Walsh and Frankie Mendoza. It was a swell show and the songs Dinah Shore sang sure made us homesick. While it lasted a long time I could stand lots more of it. Bing Crosby is over here some place too so might get a chance to see him.

Mourn at Camp of Annihilation

Photo shows a few of the thousands of Poles weeping for their loved ones at the edges of the huge burial pits at the ill-famed "Camp of Annihilation" in suburban Lublin, Poland. The Nazi burnt to ashes the bodies of thousands upon thousands of victims of their tortures and threw the remains into the pit. Special ovens were built for this purpose.

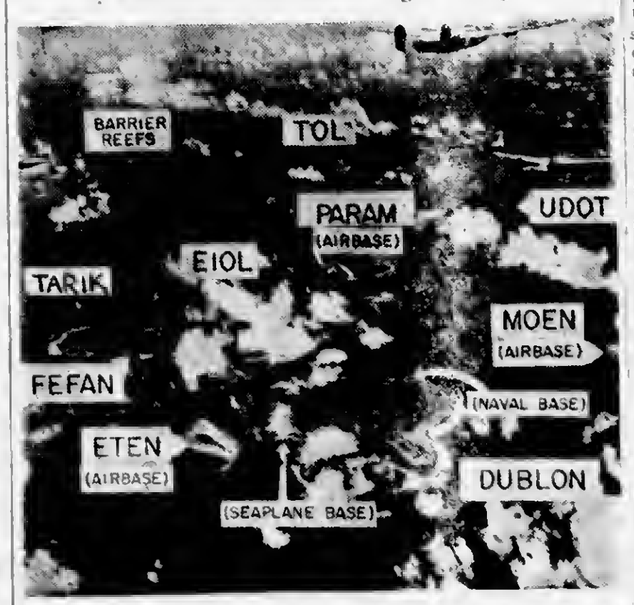
Clothing Survives Flying Bombs

English families are pictured salvaging some of the clothing and hosiery still intact, after a Nazi flying bomb had wrecked a big outfitter's store in southern England. The goods were said to have been scattered far and wide by the force of the blast. Some 5,000 of these bombs have fallen in England.

All They're Fit for Is Hanging

American soldiers examine pictures of high ranking Nazis discovered in a French hotel, formerly occupied by German officers. In nearly all former German officers' quarters captured by the Allies, large collections of photographs were found. In removing their personal effects they made no attempt to save photographs of Nazi leaders.

Truk Remains a Tough Target



Truk atoll still remains a formidable Jap central Pacific bastion. This photo was taken from one of the Seventh AAF Liberators attacking the air bases on Eten, Param and Moen, and the naval and seaplane bases on Dublon island. The 25 miles of bomb-run over Truk is one of the most hazardous of any in the Central Pacific.

Blood Donors Asked To Register

When Johnny comes marching home from World War II, he'll find Michigan ready to welcome him.

This welcome is being organized efficiently with a veterans' counseling center in almost every community under auspices of the State of Michigan.

It's very apparent that Johnny is going to get a break this time. In fact, for almost the first time in American history, the war veteran will receive more than his country's blessing. He can borrow $2,000 as down payment on a $10,000 home or farm. He can borrow $2,000 to go into business for himself. If he wants to go to college, Uncle Sam will pay his tuition fees of at least $10 a month, $30 a quarter or $40 a semester, in addition to paying other regular fees and costs of books, supplies and equipment up to $500 a year.

The veteran, 25 years old or more, whose education was completed prior to entrance into war, may get a refresher course at Uncle Sam's expense. If the veteran suffers a service disability, the government will pay him a pension and furnish vocational training at the same time.

But, even this isn't the whole story.

As an example, consider the Pine Lake Vocational-Technical school, a joint undertaking of the Michigan Office of Veteran Affairs and the Michigan Board of Control for Vocational Education.

We visited this camp, near Battle Creek, in company of Lieut. Cdr. Philip C. Pack and Elmer Hannah, director and assistant director, respectively, of the Michigan Office of Veteran Affairs, a state agency.

Talk about preparation for Johnny? Pine Lake is IT!

Here's how the vocational school will operate.

Thanks to the wonders of modern medicine, more veterans will come home from World War II than from any war in world history. Battle casualties are less fatal. Disabilities will be more numerous.

Hence, care of the disabled veteran is more important today than ever.

The Pine Lake camp, originally built by W. K. Kellogg, for children, at a cost of $170,000, will be available to disabled Michigan veterans who are eligible for the services of rehabilitation, re-fitting them to a new life of usefulness. The capacity will be 250 veterans. The training period will vary from 90 to 120 days. Thus, a year's training load of approxi-

wood from Highway U. S. 31, which has just been completed. It is no longer a narrow lane leading by Wheaton's corners, into Norwood, where you boys with many others trod back and forth to school, also attending Sunday school and church services and went merry making on sleigh rides. The road has been widened and thickly covered with a black top material and in the past few months many residences are now electricly lighted. Facing the Lake as you leave the Highway U. S. 31 at evening time, we still see that Golden Sunset which gives our new road a boulevard appearance.

"Boys, I'll tell you what Free Enterprise really is!"

"It's a lot of little things—and some mighty big things, too.

"But in a nutshell, it's our right to live our own lives, run our own farms and our own businesses in our own way—without needless interference.

"It's our right to criticize the government, bawl out the umpire, belong to the Grange, or make a speech on the public square. It's our right to travel when and where we choose—to work or not, as we please.

"It offers opportunity to anyone who really wants it. It rewards thrift, hard work and ingenuity. It thrives on competition and raises our standard of living. It encourages invention, stimulates research and promotes progress.

"It offers us a chance to save and invest and build and grow.

"Under Free Enterprise men who have faith in an idea can take risks to develop it. Our railways started that way. So did the motor car industry—and oil and steel and aviation and scientific mechanized farming.

"Free Enterprise made small farms and factories into big ones—and then started more small ones. And now, fighting a desperate war in which production will turn the scale, America is out-producing every other country in the world, hands down—and is doing it faster and better.

"Yet in spite of all this, some folks would like to change our American way of doing things—and rebuild our whole country under a new and different system.

"If they had their way, Tom here, wouldn't own this store. He'd be regimented with a lot of other storekeepers and told how to run his business by some bureaucrat who probably never tended store in his life.

"Ed's farm would belong to the state, and Ed would be told how to run it and what to raise by someone he wouldn't even know.

"Jim would be working for a state-owned factory—with his job and wages frozen. And I don't know where we country doctors would be.

"We fellows aren't rich—and probably never will be. But we've got a lot of self-respect and religion and common sense. We owe our own homes and farms, send our kids to college, have cars, radios, and a lot more of the luxuries of life than millions of people living under fancy political systems and 'planned economies' in other countries.

"Sure, we're willing to put up with a lot of irritating things right now—in order to win the war—but I don't believe we'll stand for being pushed around much after it's over.

"Frankly, I don't like the name Free Enterprise for the system under which this country has grown great. I'd rather call it American Enterprise, because it's the most American thing we have. It really is America. Let's keep it!"

The Army-Navy E flag waves over seven Republic plants and the Maritime M flies over the Cleveland District plant.

Pine Lake camp will provide disabled veterans with vocational training in metal work, machine shop, woodwork, gas welding, blueprint and drafting, office practice, cooking and baking and watchmaking. At a $100,000 annual budget, the camp will offer educational training with all meals and lodging at no cost.

Ten veterans and two civilians are now enrolled in preliminary classes — proof that present activity is being confined to preparation for tomorrow's responsibilities. Instructors are John Van Puffelen, Grand Rapids watchmaker, and Aubrey Hansen, office practice teacher, recently with the Chrysler Corporation in Detroit. Camp Superintendent is Hugh F. Pierce, formerly of the Bendix Products in South Bend, Indiana, and the Clark Equipment Company at Buchanan, Michigan.

When Johnny comes home, he must visit the local selective service board to get official papers entitling him to re-employment. Then he is urged to call at the local veterans' counselling center to obtain information and counsel on any of the following: Housing, health, education, law, employment and claims — to enumerate the leading subjects.

If he cannot find employment, he will be eligible to receive unemployment compensation of $20 per week for 26 to 52 weeks, depending upon the length of his military service.

The U. S. veterans administration's hospital at Dearborn, a 355-bed institution, will be expanded soon to accommodate approximately 1,500 service men and women.

When the World War I veteran was demobilized, he received $60 in cash. Congress had slashed appropriations for the U. S. employment service. The labor market was glutted; payrolls were cut. Yes, times have changed!

Michigan has more than 500,000 men and women in the armed services today.

Hence, the importance of adequate preparedness today to take care of some of these veterans tomorrow, when V-Day in Europe arrives and part of our wartasks will be terminated.

Work of the Office of Veteran Affairs and the State Board of Control at Pine Lake is graphic proof that Michigan is right on the job — in fact, leading the entire nation in giving Johnny a break, and for the first time.

OIL STOCKPILE IS GETTING LOWER

The nation's stockpile of crude oil in storage tanks has been depleted at the average rate of 2,500,000 barrels a month this year, and now is only slightly above the minimum required to keep refineries in uninterrupted operation, the Petroleum Administration for war reports. Although gasoline stocks are at pre-war levels, only about half is for civilian use, compared to 90 per cent available for civilian use in 1941.

WE LOSE A SUBSCRIBER

In the heavy mail of last week was a letter from Mrs. John Cook, 113 River St., which we regret receiving. The epistle advised that due to failing vision, her subscription expiring October 1st would not be renewed.

Mrs. Cook's original subscription is dated April 1, 1917. During the 27½ years it has been in force, she has evidently taken pride in never permitting it to lapse, an enviable record, indeed.

We are certain Mrs. Cook's many friends will regret hearing of her affliction.

Sgt. James Rayman At Fort Reno, Okla.

Sgt. James Rayman, of Troop D, 253rd Quartermaster Remount Squadron, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Rayman, of Charlevoix, Mich., has returned to his home station at Fort Reno, Okla., after three months in the Florida jungle where he participated in important experiments on jungle clothing and equipment conducted here by the Quartermaster Corps.

The soldier was one of the group that lived under jungle combat conditions in gruelling tests designed to aid the Quartermaster General in his job of supplying our warriors in their battle against the Japs.

The results of these tests will guide the Research and Development Branch of the Quartermaster General's Office in finding what changes need be made, if any.

More than 540 items were included in the test to determine the effects of tropical deterioration to clothing and equipment and to insure that our soldiers have the most comfortable, as well as the most protective clothing and equipment which money can buy.

WILLIS A. CROSS WRITES ABOUT HURRICANE

Willis A. Cross Jr., on duty with the U. S. Merchant Marine in the Atlantic, writes the following about the recent hurricane on the Atlantic seaboard: You have probably all heard of the hurricane which swept the east coast. I was unfortunate enough to be caught in it.

It started late one afternoon about six o'clock. The wind kept getting stronger all the time but we thought it was just an ordinary storm until they radioed us that it was a hurricane. At twelve that night the wind was blowing approximately a hundred miles an hour and the sea was the highest I'd ever seen.

I was supposed to go on watch at the wheel at midnight but by that time the sea was coming over the cat-walk which made it impossible for anyone to go mid-ship. The captain had telephoned aft that no one was to go on deck without his orders. We all sat in the mess hall and waited for it was impossible to sleep. We would just get in our bunks when the ship would toss us on deck. A few of us had gone up and looked out for a second and I know the seas were at least fifty feet high.

At noon the next day it was at its worst. It was just as though someone had put us in a burlap bag and was throwing us around. I'll never forget it if I live to be a hundred.

By nine that night it had calmed down a little and we all felt better. Later the captain told us the seas were going over the pilot house and that's forty feet above the water. I've seen storms on Lake Michigan and was in the storm of November 11, 1941, but I've never experienced anything like a hurricane. As far as I'm concerned I hope I never do again. I'll be quite satisfied with smooth sailing from now on.

VFW HOLDS SEMI-DISTRICT RALLY

Veterans of Foreign Wars held its semi-annual district rally in Petoskey, last Sunday, with several state officers of the organization in attendance. Charlevoix post was represented by several of its members.

The program, in which department commander Cole and his senior and junior vice-commanders, department adjutant Thomas and past department commander Elmer Hanna had a leading part, was devoted to discussing plans for promoting the welfare of returning war veterans. Michigan's membership in the V.F.W. was announced by the state officers as 55,000, thus making it the country's greatest servicemen's organization. Date of the next rally was set for May, 1945, at Gaylord.

Major Novak, of the U. S. Army Intelligence Division, Sixth Corps Area, has authorized the Charlevoix post to show restricted moving pictures of battle scenes from the various zones of operation to the public, without charge. These pictures will be shown periodically, as the opportunity presents itself, at luncheon club meetings and other public gatherings. If desired, officers and men who have taken part in the events described in the pictures and who have been invalided home can be secured to lecture at these showings.

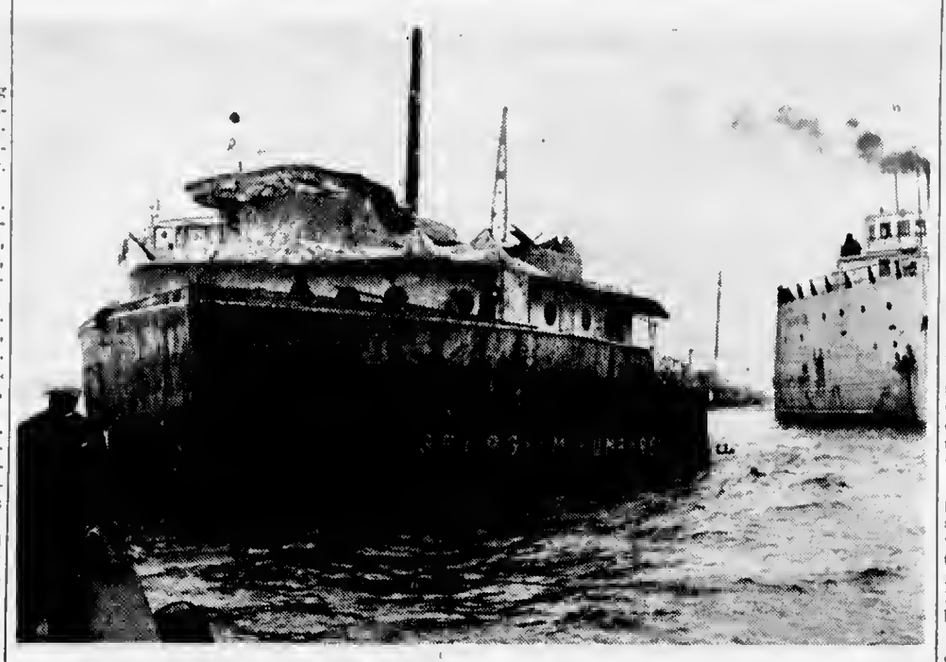
Airport Contract Let

It is expected that work will begin on the new Charlevoix Airport about November 1st.

Machinery will arrive within the next two weeks to start grading on the two, and possibly three, one-half mile runways. A hangar will be erected to house the plane which will make the Beaver Island run this winter.

Blue Star Mothers supper on Thursday, October 12th. Everyone welcome. 41t1.

S. S. HUMPHREY TOPS WAVES AGAIN



—Reynolds Art Studios

586 Foot Freighter, Salvaged By Capt. John Roen

At 9:00 o'clock on the foggy morning of June 15, 1943, the ore and grain carrier, George M. Humphrey, the largest vessel ever to sink in the Great Lakes, disappeared into 77 feet of water in 14 minutes following a collision with the steamer D. M. Clemson. The accident occurred in the Straits, 1½ miles northeast of Mackinaw City.

Formerly the flagship of the Kinsman Transit Co., the 8,000-ton carrier was built in 1927 and was valued by her owners at over $1,600,000 and she was carrying an ore cargo of 14,000 tons worth about $70,000. Underwriters could get no bids for salvaging and surrendered claims. The federal government wanted the navigational threat moved and Capt. Roen offered to get her up or, if he failed, to trim her down to 35 feet clearance.

After u years preparation and work, that miraculous salvage job has just been completed, a job judged by experts to be superior to the righting of the Normandie from 40 feet of water and away from treacherous currents common in the Straits.

After several months of experiment, using u small model of the ship, the first step performed by divers and crew was to remove 8,000 tons of ore cargo. This was accomplished as weather permitted late last fall and this spring.

On August 7th, the big barge Maitland of the Roen fleet, with an ordinary draft of eight feet, was sunk to 17 feet and 50 cables were attached to each side of the sunken Humphrey running upward to the Maitland, which was then pumped out. Added air pressure to the Humphrey created u lift of seven feet off bottom and she was towed to shallower water. This process was repeated five times as the ship was moved shoreward until only 14 feet of water remained above her decks.

Pickaback Lift Changed To Pontoon

In the shallower water it was necessary to change the procedure. Next the Roen barge Hilda joined the Maitland and the two ships, this time pontoon fashion, made three more lifts and tows to deposit the Humphrey on the bottom a half mile off shore, where her 32 foot depth brought the decks above water on August 29th.

The 18x22 foot hole in her forward starboard side was then patched with planking and canvas, the Humphrey was pumped out exposing her rusty red sides and she became a floating ship again after 15 months submersion. The white circles appearing on the spar in the picture records some of the raising stages.

Operations thus far approximate a quarter million dollars with probable expenses of a like amount to finish the reconditioning. It required 28 hours to tow the Humphrey to Sturgeon Bay, Wisconsin. After topside repairs during the winter, she will be put into drydock at Manitowoc and in all probability will proudly sail the Great Lakes next summer, her engines working again, her dirty-white, bashed-in, superstructure and stacks repaired, the scum removed from her cabins, to become the flagship of the Roen fleet — rechristened the "Capt. John Roen."

Born in Norway in 1888, John Roen came to America in 1906. He has spent his life around the Great Lakes. Arriving in Beaver Island in 1912, it was the following year that this lover of boats and the water built his first boat, the Schnoden, which he operated in local waters. In 1915 he was married in Charlevoix and five years later received his masters papers. In 1922 he built the steam barge, Marquis Roen and three years later bought the steel freighter, Fred W. Green, which he operated out of this port carrying sand, gravel and stone, for several years, before going to Sturgeon Bay in 1932.

Capt. Roen is now president of the Sturgeon Bay Shipbuilding & Drydock Co., as well as the Roen Steamship Co. The former, in which he takes rather an inactive part, has been building transport ships for the army. The scarcely gray captain, an average height, stocky man with alert blue eyes and a warm smile, is regarded highly by all who know him. His employees, their loyalty evident by their many years of service, get the best. When a difficult job is successfuly accomplished, such as the salvaging of the Humphrey, there are always generous bonuses.

Norwood Residents Receive Purple Heart Medal

The Purple Heart medal, badge of military merit, awarded posthumously to Private First Class Delta J. Richardson, who was killed in action in France on June 15, has been received from the War Department by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Merrill Richardson, of Norwood.

Pfc. Richardson, 23, entered the service August, 1942, and after training at Camp Gordon, Ga., went overseas in March, 1943. After being stationed in England for more than a year, he went to Normandy with the infantry at the time of the invasion.

LET'S GIVE UNTIL IT HURTS! THE BOY'S ARE!

The National War Fund Campaign will open Monday, October 16 and will continue for the following 10 days during which Michigan will raise its quota of $5,462,009. Charlevoix county's quota is $8,226, divided as follows:

Charlevoix city and township, $2,325; Boyne City, $1,560; East Jordan, $1,016; townships — Bay, $182; Boyne Valley, $372; Chandler, $52; Evangeline, $486; Eveline, $335; Hayes, $422; Hudson, $97; Marion, $343; Norwood, $210; South Arm, $345; Wilson, $256; and St. James and Beaver Island, $225.

Of the county quota, the Charlevoix Service Organization will receive $250; Boyne City S.O., $250; East Jordan S.O., $250 and the Boy Scouts Scenic Trails Council, $1,000. The remainder will be turned over to the state organization, The Michigan United War Fund. Instead of being asked four or five times each year to make donations to several organizations, your one gift takes care of your obligation for the entire year, therefore, you should give four or five times as much as normally given to an individual organization.

How Much Shall I Give?

There is no yardstick of giving to this annual drive. Those well able should give generously, it is true, but the recipients in this campaign come from all walks of life and so must the donations. Would you pledge to aid, comfort and furnish entertainment for one soldier, sailor or marine for an entire year? Then pick out one — your son, brother, husband or friend and give him TWO CENTS A DAY! It is estimated that men and women in uniform derive benefits that total $7.50 per year. The picture on page seven of this issue should have the caption "In Just Ten Minutes They Will Need Your Aid", because as soon as those boys hit the ground your help starts through your gift to the Charlevoix County War Fund.

Charlevoix County Chairman, Robert C. Emrey, has the county solicitation organization prepared for speedy functioning and with Charlevoix's intense interest in the USO benefits for her own sons in service, the response to the campaign is expected to be enthusiastic and generous.

Serving with Robert Emrey in the county are Vice Chairman, Robert Bridge; Secretary-Treasurer, Mrs. John Porter and Rural Area Director, B. C. Mellencamp.

It's not always easy to distinguish between dog and wolf pups, according to conservation department authorities, but it definitely is not true that the former lap water like cats, and the wolf pups drink in the same manner as horses.

Instead, young of both species lap water, except that wolves tend to lap more slowly, and to take more water at each lap.

Answering an unusual inquiry, the department says that experienced observers can tell wolves from dogs, when identity is in dispute, by various combinations of color, shape of head and ears, feet, carriage of the tail, etc., when none of these characteristics considered singly would be sufficient.

AMERICAN HEROES
BY LEFF

Seriously wounded by an exploding grenade, Marine Gunner Angus R. Goss of Tampa, Florida, braved point-blank enemy fire to charge an enemy machine gun emplacement in a cave. Single handed, he wiped out Japanese gunners and snipers with a sub-machine gun, saving the lives of his unit. Angus Goss is dead—leaving a Navy Cross for "indomitable fighting spirit and extreme courage." If such heroism doesn't deserve an extra War Bond, what does?

Words That Roll Off Your Tongue

Ed Hodges and the doctor were holding forth about how words only mean something when you think about them; and that a lot of words seem to lose their meaning just because they're used too glibly.

As the doctor put it, "They roll off your tongue without going through your mind. Take tolerance for instance ... some of the people who use it most understand it least."

From where I sit, it looks like the doctor is right. But tolerance is mighty easy to understand.

After all, it just comes down to having respect for other folks' rights. I don't mean just in the big things like maybe what political party a fellow belongs to. But in the little things, too, like having a glass of beer occasionally.

Seems to me if every time we spoke about tolerance we thought about what it means—maybe then we'd all of us start living it and not just talking about it.

Everyone from home really waits for that. The paper caught up with me while I was in the hospital.. I hope it will keep on coming. I've had some close calls but I guess that isn't uncommon over here. Dear Friends in Charlevoix:

I was asked to write to you for the boys from Charlevoix in the southwest Pacific. We drew lots to see who was to write and as you can see I lost.

This place we are in now isn't too bad but we would all like to be in a better place. We are close to the ocean and we get to swim in the ocean quite often.

I met my brother Pete (Orin), Frank Pop, and Ed Radle, of Charlevoix and Dale Rickner, of East Jordan. We are all within calling distance of each other.

Here are the names of the boys from Charlevoix county who came over with me, Perry Smith and James Novotny, from Charlevoix, Charlie Griffin, LaVern McCary, Hersel Nowland, Ralph Fitzpatrick from Boyne City, Bernard Conrad, from Boyne Falls, Jack Isaman and Clarence Staley, from East Jordan.

We have seen some action but are in a rest camp now so that is why I am writing.

I sure was surprised when I saw my brother because I had heard that he had gone home. And when I saw him you could have taken us and picked us up with one hand.

It has been some time since I received a paper but I reckon they will catch up with me.

I won't close or say good-bye just so long. Tell everyone to write. From a lone soldier.

Michigan Bell, anticipating high demand, plans expansion and improvement
IN ANTICIPATION of favorable business conditions following reconversion, Michigan Bell foresees post-war expenditures of as much as $120,000,000 within a five-year period.
More buildings, cables, central office apparatus, and telephones are needed. But we cannot undertake to provide them until war needs are reduced greatly. Today the armed forces take about all the communications equipment that can be made.
Dependent on business conditions, materials, manpower, and funds, the program is being engineered to:
1 Provide service to nearly 90,000 persons who now can't get it.
2 Expand both urban and rural service to meet anticipated demand, and to restore safe margins of facilities.
3 Assure prompt completion of Long Distance calls for the growing number of users.
4 Carry out plant betterments suspended because of the war.
Such a program of additions will be necessary if the Company is to continue to furnish the grade of service the public expects and is to take its place in an expanded national economy.
We shall welcome the day when that program can be started.

THE OLD JUDGE SAYS...

"The war sure has made a lot of changes in this old world of ours, hasn't it, Judge?"
"Plenty of them, John. One that few people realize is that the rubber producing center of the world is now right here in the United States.
"When the Japs conquered the big natural rubber producing centers of the world they thought they had us licked. But in two short years, thanks to American industry, we are now producing synthetic rubber enough to supply all our military and essential civilian needs.
"Our rubber experts knew how to make it but the problem was to get the huge amounts of industrial alcohol needed. Almost overnight the country's beverage distillers stopped making whiskey and converted 100% to the production of this vital ingredient. A high government official said recently this was '...an almost unparalleled example of the overnight conversion of an entire industry from peace to war.'"
"Come to think of it, Judge, it was a mighty fortunate thing the beverage distilling industry was in existence, wasn't it?"

Children's Salvage Drive Ship Has Sailed Six or Seven Seas

Somewhere on the high seas, on its fourth perilous trip to battle zones, is the S. S. "Woodbridge N. Ferris," Michigan's own Liberty ship christened by Michigan school children on December 28, 1942, after a state-wide scrap metal campaign sponsored by the State Salvage Committee of the Michigan Office of Civilian Defense.

To check the war record of the ship since its launching, the committee has been in communication with the War Shipping Administration, the Maritime Commission and the Navy. The story of the ship is being forwarded to school principals throughout Michigan as tangible evidence of the fact that salvage efforts were worthwhile. Furthermore, the history of the ship is a lesson in current geography, as it has been in six of the seven seas.

The Woodbridge N. Ferris, a 10,000 ton Liberty Ship, was built and equipped for service within 45 days from the time the keel was laid in a Baltimore shipyard.

The vessel was named for the former governor of Michigan. She is 441 feet in length, has a beam of 57 feet, and a speed of 11 knots. Her crew includes 43 merchant seamen and a Navy gun crew of 26, for a total of 69.

The vessel has completed more than 51,780 miles of freight travel in its perilous voynges, and has run the gauntlet of enemy fire. Her maiden voynge, across the Pacific, around India and through the Persian Gulf and back again, covered 33,668 miles — a long way to go but at that time the Nazis still controlled the Mediterranean. Her second voyage, from the U. S. to the United Kingdom and return, covered 6,364 miles. On her third voyage she braved the Arctic Sea, carrying armament to North Russia and return, covering 11,838 miles. At present she is on her fourth voynge, now nearly ended, but for security reasons, her whereabouts are a military secret.

On a trip between England and Russia she was hit but not crippled by Nazi planes.

RED CROSS HOLDS ANNUAL ELECTION MONDAY, OCTOBER 9

nursing, Mrs. Elizabeth Stocum Robertson, East Jordan; production, Mrs. Allen Campbell, Charlevoix; surgical dressings, Mrs. E. E. Wade, East Jordan; disaster, Mrs. John Porter, East Jordan; publicity, Miss Anne Higman, of Charlevoix.

Following the treasurer's annual report were reports of committees. Mrs. Allen Campbell reported little activity in production of soldier garments, and no civilian garments were made in the county this year.

A total of 130,800 surgical dressings were made during the year, Mrs. E. E. Wade reported. This amount was divided equally between the three cities.

Home nursing classes were conducted in Charlevoix, Boyne City, Boyne Falls and Barnard.

An average of 90 individuals a month have sought aid of home service chairmen in the county this year, and the number increases constantly.

Seventeen students attended the aquatic school at Camp Valhalla on Walloon Lake, July 3-8, of whom 16 received certificates as swimming instructors. There is a prospect of making this camp a state zone camp for annual courses in water safety and accident prevention.

Cooking Fish

Did you know that fish should be cooked at a low or moderate temperature? Yes, fish should be cooked just as you cook eggs or meat. You know that high heat tends to toughen all protein foods. Fish cooked by this method is very tender and is less likely to break up when removing from pan to serving dish.

Football This Week

LOCAL FANS will have their eyes peeled on Michigan football teams this Saturday. Four of them see action with the Michigan-Northwestern tilt at Ann Arbor taking the spotlight.

Kansas State meets undefeated Michigan State at East Lansing; Western Michigan goes to Great Lakes; Central Michigan takes on the Michigan J. V. at Ann Arbor; and Wayne U. opens its abbreviated season as host to Otterbein.

UNBEATEN Big Ten teams will be reduced Saturday as Ohio State meets Wisconsin. Purdue opposes the improving Iowa Pre-Flight Seahawks; Indiana will battle it out with Nebraska; Minnesota plays Missouri; and Illinois meets Iowa.

NOTRE DAME, which swamped Tulane last Saturday 26 to 0, shouldn't have much trouble with Dartmouth. Navy is slightly favored over Duke.

* * *

ADDITIONAL top games this Saturday; Georgia Tech-Auburn, Louisiana State-Texas A. M., N. Carolina Pre-Flight-Virginia, California-College of Pacific, Southern California-St. Mary's Pre-Flight, and St. Mary's-U. C. L. A.

AT THE MOVIES

The Palace has been closed the past few Mondays but will be open the evening of the 16th.

Saturday evening there will be shown a 10-minute short produced by RKO-Pathe, titled "Memo for Joe" with Quenton Reynolds, famous war correspondent, acting as narrator. It is something everyone should see as it gives an insight into the various activities of the National War Fund. If you think you are "up to your neck", see what is being done with your dollars to assist the boys who are going through hell to make it nice and cozy for you. The feature picture for the evening is Republic's Roy Rogers western drama, "Song of Texas," with William Haade and Barton MacLane sharing the villainous dishonors.

Sunday and Monday, late news and the "Dragon Seed," from Pearl S. Buck's chinese novel, starring Katherine Hepburn and Walter Huston.

Tuesday and Wednesday will introduce a film menace in the person of Zachary Scott, suave young screen newcomer in Warner Bros.' adventure picture, "The Mask of Dimitrios."

Thursday and Friday, October 19-20, the tale of the last of the hoodlums, "Roger Touhy, Gangster," showing that even the "big" criminals must come to the same end of the road.

AUSSIES REPORT FOOTBALL GAME

Brisbane will have an opportunity of seeing American gridiron football at the Exhibition Ground at 2 p.m. tomorrow.

The competing teams will be Engineers, coached by Major J. E. Kopcha, formerly of Chicago Bears' professional team and Base All Stars, coached by Captain L. M. Turner, a former Kansas State quarter-back.

Features of the game are one-handed passing over great distances, deadly tackling and cleverly planned combined "plays," in attacks.

The point likely to make most appeal to the Rugby student, however, is the "huddle", or powwow, which takes place before each "play." During these new attacking plans are quickly evolved and brought into operation by mysterious pre-arranged signs. The game will be open to the public.

BUTTER SUPPLY DOWN, DEMAND UP

Americans will not have as much butter as they want this year, primarily for two reasons: The supply is down and the demand is great, the War Food Administration says. Average per capita supply before the war was 16.7 lbs. and this year it is about 11.9 lbs. More people are eager to buy butter today than ever before, and in the face of increased demand, production has declined while five per cent of the American supply is going to Russia, mostly for use in hospitals, is going into fluid milk, cheese, evaporated milk and milk powder. No manufacturer will be required to set aside any butter for purchase in October or any succeeding month until spring, when production will rise seasonally.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Nazis Fight to Check Allied Advance on Industrial Center; Study Plans for Postwar Reich

Released by Western Newspaper Union

EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysts and not necessarily of this newspaper.

Two doughboys double up on makeshift cot for rest behind battle lines at Aachen, Germany, while others toil around armored car.

EUROPE:
Decisive Battle

Greatest battle on the western front raged around the Dutch town of Nijmegen as Britain's Second army under command of Lieut. Gen. Miles Dempsey, aided by air-borne reinforcements, struggled to turn the vaunted Siegfried line above its northern terminus and open the gateway to the Ruhr valley, heart of German industry.

Themselves declaring that the entire course of the war in the west could be determined by an Allied break-through in this sector, the Germans used increasing numbers of troops and large quantities of equipment to stem the British threat, and the Luftwaffe made some of its infrequent appearances in strength to bomb British concentrations.

As advance columns of General Dempsey's Second army thrust northward in the Nijmegen area, the Germans launched persistent attacks on its supply lines running southward to Eindhoven, and the British were hard pressed to keep the roads open for the transport of material. As they fought to clear the main highway, alternate roads were established to the east and west.

Aiding the Second army's thrust were appreciable reinforcements of men and material by air, with the famed "Red Devil" division west of Arnhem fighting to the last to hold open the bridge above the Neder Rhine and set the stage for a swing around the Siegfried line down to the Ruhr.

While the big battle raged around Nijmegen, big guns of Lieut. Gen. Courtney Hodges' First army raked German positions east of Aachen on the road to Cologne. In the Nancy sector, Lieut. Gen. George Patton's Third army advanced in the face of still born German counterattacks designed to slow its drive on the industrial Saar basin. In the Belfort Gap between the Vosges mountains in France and Switzerland, Lieut. Gen. Alexander Patch's Seventh army encountered heavy enemy fire from prepared defensive positions guarding the open plains to Germany.

Pressing forward from beachheads along the Yugoslavian coast, Allied forces sought to cut off Nazi troops moving northward from the Balkans.

Their "Gothic" line breached by the Fifth and Eighth Allied armies advancing under cover of murderous artillery and aerial bombardment, Nazi armored columns in northern Italy sought to stem the U. S. and British forces pushing on the rich Po valley by repeated counter-attacks.

Declaring that Finland's withdrawal from the war no longer made it necessary for them to protect the Finns' flank by occupying the Baltic states of Estonia and Latvia, the Germans announced they were breaking off the battle in those countries and pulling out.

Even as the Germans spoke of their detaching movements, the Red air force swooped down on Nazi ships seeking to evacuate troops from Baltic ports, and the Russian armies pressed toward complete occupation of Estonia and Latvia.

As the Germans further shortened their lines on the contracting eastern front, strong Russian forces poised for a major drive against East Prussia, while still other units fought on the mountainous threshold of Czechoslovakia and skirted the Transylvanian Alps to advance on the broad Hungarian plains.

FOLLOW FOOTSTEPS:
Back Near Rhine

Americans battling their way into western Germany with the other Allied forces are following the footsteps of an earlier generation of U. S. fighting men.

In 1918, the American army of occupation stogged through wintry Germany to the east bank of the Rhine in accordance with terms of the armistice following the collapse of the Kaiser's once formidable war machine.

PACIFIC:
Rake Philippines

The spotlight in the South Pacific continued to play brightly on the Philippines, where army and marine ground troops tightened their hold on immediate outposts, and the navy and air force carried the fight right into the islands themselves.

Some 300 miles to the south of the Philippines, army troops tightened their hold on Morotai island in the Moluccas, while some 450 miles to the east, marines battered through the lower Palaus against the fanatical opposition of Japanese, who preferred suicide to surrender.

Meanwhile, naval aircraft taking off from carriers riding close to Philippine shores, raked enemy shipping supplying the scattered islands, and ground down Jap planes challenging the attacks.

In an effort to impede the enemy's flow of supplies to the war fronts, B-29 superfortresses carried on another heavy raid against the manufacturing facilities of Anshan, Manchuria, second greatest steel center in the Japanese empire. Previous B-29 assaults had been directed against the city's ore refineries.

POSTWAR GERMANY:
Opposing Plans

Capital question in Washington, D. C., is what to do with Germany, with the presidential cabinet split over Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau's proposal to strip the Reich of all its industry and reduce its people to small agricultural holdings.

Secretary Morgenthau

While Morgenthau's plan won the support of President Roosevelt, it was opposed by Secretary of State Hull and Secretary of War Stimson, who argued that Germany's industrial machine of 25,000,000 workers supplied necessary goods to other European nations and also composed a big market for other producers.

Countering Morgenthau's position that Germany must be stripped of all its industrial machinery to prevent it from re-arming, Hull and Stimson insisted that the same objective could be achieved by closely regulating the Reich's production through control of strategic materials.

Secretary Hull

In Britain as well as the U. S. opinion was divided about the postwar plans for Germany, with Prime Minister Churchill and Foreign Secretary Eden leaning toward Morgenthau's principles, while some elements favored retaining the industrial nuclei of the Reich with a view toward future power politics.

Nazi Reaction

Declaring ". . . Morgenthau wants to see 43,000,000 Germans exterminated . . ." the Nazis' reaction to the Secretary of the Treasury's proposal was violent.

Typical of comment was the statement of Adolf Hitler's own newspaper, which said: " . . . What has been planned . . . has the effect of doubling the determination of German resistance."

"Occupation of the Reich by Americans and British would be as horrible as if by their ally, the Bolshevist Russians," the Nazi radio blared.

Quotes . . .

"While farm production undoubtedly will increase by 1950 because of improved technology, it would not seriously outrun demand if 59,000,000 people, compared with 52,000,000 in 1943, are gainfully employed at the 1943 price level; and if exports of agricultural products, assuming 1943 prices, reach the estimated $1,000,000,000 total. Farm prices in 1950, under the conditions described, would average about parity compared with the level of 17 per cent above parity in 1943."—H. R. Tolley, chief of the bureau of agricultural economics.

PARITY PRICES:
For Cotton, Wheat

Proceeding in accordance with a recent act of congress to equalize farm income, the War Food Administration announced plans for purchase of all 1944 cotton and wheat in loan at parity.

In stating that it would buy all 1944 loan cotton in suitable storage at parity, which approximated 21.08 cents August 15, the WFA also revealed that the Commodity Credit corporation would be permitted to sell the staple at not less than the equalization price.

Under the WFA's wheat purchase program, it will buy all unredeemed 1944 loan wheat May 1, 1945, at parity, less carrying charges for the storage year. In the instance of wheat, the equalization price is figured at the loan rate, plus 15 cents per bushel.

Markets Bound

Down a week before with the prospects for a bumper grain harvest, grain prices shot up with the announcement of the WFA's parity program for wheat and cotton.

Moving in sympathy with wheat and cotton, the market on corn, oats, rye and barley also advanced, although traders believed that some revision would have to be made in the case of the latter two grains if they are to hold up, since loan prices on them are much below parity.

In all of the grains save corn, and in cotton, the WFA's parity program led to a wave of futures buying that reached the permissible price limit for one day.

CIGARETTES:
Boost Tobacco Quota

There were prospects of easier supplies of cigarettes with the War Food administration's allocation of 624 million pounds of flue-cured tobacco to manufacturers for purchase during the present marketing season as a result of the big 1944 crop of 1 billion, 47 million pounds.

With production estimates hiked over the billion pound mark from 834 million pounds in July, 1944 allocations will almost equal the amount of tobacco manufacturers used during the last year, and fall just 2 per cent below purchases from the record crop of 1939.

Allied and other friendly nations were allotted 301 million pounds.

Remembers Buddies

Picture shows Marine Sergeant Merton F. Taylor (center) of Potsdam, N. Y., standing over makeshift grave of one of four buddies who had been killed by his side on Guadalcanal in 1942.

After hastily burying them in foxholes and fashioning cradle crosses of sticks and bayonets to mark the spots, Sergt. Taylor was forced to move on, but not until he had vowed to come back some day to arrange a decent burial. Two years later, Sergt. Taylor returned to find the bodies and fulfill his vow.

BUTTER:
Day-to-Day

With the government reserving 126,000,000 pounds of the 138,000,000 pounds of butter in storage for itself, civilian supplies are on a day-to-day basis, the American Dairy association reported.

The tight situation promises to let up later in the year, however, with the government's withdrawal from the butter market next month. The government has been diverting much butter fat from butter producers for powdered milk and other uses.

Normally, 178,000,000 pounds of butter are held in storage for civilians at this time every year, instead of the current stock of 12,000,000 pounds.

WAR PRODUCTION:
Items Lag

Despite the heavy overall output, manufacture of some war material ran behind schedule during the first eight months of 1944.

Only 45 per cent of the year's heavy truck program is complete, WPB said, and rises of 42 per cent in big shell production and 28 per cent in aerial bomb output are required to round out goals.

Found heartening was peak production for heavy duty tires, B-29 and B-32 super bombers and heavy artillery ammunition in August.

WAGES:
Hit Peak

Showing a fractional increase over the previous month, hourly wages in the manufacturing industries averaged $1.07 in July, the national industrial conference board reported, to rise 41.2 per cent over those prevailing in January, 1941.

Despite the fact that weekly earnings showed a slight dip from the previous month, they averaged $48.87 in July, 59.7 per cent over the January, 1941, level.

DETHMERS URGES ALL TO REGISTER AND VOTE

Lansing, October 9.—John R. Dethmers, chairman of the Republican State Central Committee and Republican candidate for Attorney General, called attention today to the importance of registering by October 18th for the state-wide general election next November 7th.

In a statement issued from the Republican State headquarters at Lansing, Dethmers said, "It is the duty of every public-spirited citizen, regardless of his or her political affiliation, to vote. Under our form of government this is the only way by which the people may retain control of the vital governmental processes affecting their daily welfare."

Pointing out that Wednesday, October 18th, is the last day for registration for the November 7th election, Dethmers cautioned Michigan voters that those who have not voted in Michigan for 2 years may under the law have had their registrations cancelled by city or township clerks in townships and cities having a population of 5,000 or more. This may have been done also, Dethmers said, in townships and cities having a population of less than 5,000 if the legislative bodies of those townships or cities have adopted such a resolution.

The Republican State chairman declared that in all cases of doubt as to whether or not a voter is properly registered, it is well to check with the township or city clerk of the township or city in which the voter resides for the purpose of determining whether or not the voter is properly registered.

"Only in this way," Dethmers said, "can the voters of Michigan be absolutely sure of availing themselves of their right of franchise on next November 7th. In these vital times it is the plain duty of every citizen to avail himself of that right. And it is only by a complete expression of the desires of all the people, through the medium of the ballot, that we can be sure that in the vital post-war days ahead we shall have in the state of Michigan a government of their own choosing."

BACK TO NATURE ADVENTURE

Dedicated to my genial host Charles A. Snyder

Oh Michigan — North Michigan,
I sing aloud in words of praise,
Your stately trees, your waters blue,
In lakes of variegated hue,
Old Indian trails along the way,
Breath-taking beauties, one can say,
Hiking through the deep wooded dells
An ample description fails to tell.
Air so fresh, bracing and most clear,
Lonely paths, yet no thought of fear.
Picturesque views always can be seen
From Ironton — pastures fertile, green.
All along up to the northern shore,
Back to nature, rural, as of yore.
Petoskey, Bay View and Harbor Springs
Abounding in balsams, and pleasing things,
Upward to Mackinaw, inspiration brings.
I like to sit and recall to mind
Many specie of ferns I did find.
And think which place outshines all the rest.
For there, those sunsets are at its best.
Charlevoix, very restful, most serene
Where sunshine in abundance can be seen.
This state with lakes on every side,
Fishing, sailing and ferry ride
I love it all and Beaver Isle.
A trip delightful, ne'er shall I forget
The red brick house called "Paradise Cheer"
In Ironton — happy days spent here,

MICHIGAN MIRROR

Our introduction to Yankee Spring, one of the new recreational playgrounds of the Lower Peninsula, was unique to say the least.

With a tent, bed, wood stove and other camping equipment packed into a sturdy two-wheel trailer, and cool fall weather in prospect for the week-end, we pulled into Wayland enroute from Grand Rapids to Barry County.

Like dog floaks everywhere, we were bound for a recreational outing.

Rollo Mosher, editor of the Wayland Globe, was startled to see us. He promptly volunteered to serve as our guide. "The blue gills are really biting now," he enthused and, like the salesman who had also sold himself, added, "By golly, I'll go fishing with you myself!" Which he did enthusiastically.

Mosher told how a Yankee Springs farmer came in the newspaper office one day with copy for a for sale ad. It read like this: "For sale: 160 farm in Yankee Springs, as soon as any there, which isn't saying a hell of a lot."

Yankee Springs has been given the title of being a settlement that lost itself.

Consisting of 1,191 rolling acres of glacial sand and gravel, topped thinly with some black soil, the region was once on a stage coach trail between Battle Creek and Grand Rapids. It got its colorful name from the "Yankee Springs House," a tavern and six log cabins operated by "Yankee Bill" Lewis and which was advertised by its owner as having "seven stories — each on the ground."

In 1855 when a new plank road was built over a shorter route between Kalamazoo and Grand Rapids, the traffic disappeared. For nearly 75 years, the farmers eked out an existence from the sandy soil. Yankee Springs was forgotten.

In 1934, the U. S. Resettlement Administration declared the area "submarginal" and started buying old farmsteads and removing the farmers to better land. In August, 1936, the National Parks Service took over the program and continued work in erosion control, tree plantings of native trees, shrubs and imported pines. Fences were removed and buildings razed.

Two organized camps were built. One was located on the east shore of Chief Noonday Lake; the other is on the east shore of Long Lake.

At Murphy's point, a slender peninsula of land that juts into the heart of Gun lake, the park service sought to create a recreational center. A bathing beach was built at some expense, complete with a bathhouse. Adjoining this is an ideally situated picnic grounds, overlooking the lake. On the opposite side of the point is a camp site whose only handicap is its smallness.

It was there, near the lake shore, that we pitched our wall tent, 10 by 12 feet; set up a fish shanty stove and soon had a cheering fire going, while the missus unpacked the cooking utensils and prepared the evening dinner. The wind was cool to chilly. In the evening we built a campfire outside, as a new moon cast silver reflection upon the waters of the lake. The war seemed far distant. It was good to get away from the city.

Needs of the outdoor camper are comparatively few. Yet they are quite important to the increased use of recreational areas, such as Yankee Springs.

The camper wants access to safe water. He wants sanitary facilities, and these do not need to be of the modern kind you expect in your own home. He prefers to have his camp site at some interesting scenic spot — possibly a lake, stream or forest. Water offers opportunity for boating, fishing and bathing. The forest offers a chance for long hikes down well-marked trails.

Having camped in practically every part of Michigan, from the tip of Keweenaw down to Yankee Springs, we have came to the conclusion that possession of land for recreational needs is not enough. Unless the land is utilized, the investment does not bring maximum return of benefits to the peoples in whose name it is held. Parks and all recreational land must be developed. Until adequate facilities are provided, state parks will not be used to their greatest potentiality.

The State of Michigan, having undertaken a program to acquire the Porcupine mountains as a "timber museum", and to create a chain of recreational parks in a wide arc about Detroit, now faces the necessity of adopting a realistic plan for development of these areas whereby the people will be attracted to make use of them.

The State conservation commission is recommending that the legislature at its 1945 session, authorize a five-year plan for state park improvements. The cost would be a little more than $3,-000,000 a year. This fund would go to provide sewage disposal, water systems, electricity installations, picnic areas, camp grounds beaches, foot trails, saddle trails, park drives, highways, buildings and furniture.

Furthermore, it would be statewide. All sections would be benefitted.

With adoption of such a program, Michigan would take the national leadership in modern state parks. It has been suggested that a small fee be charged for daily use of camping facilities, the fee to be on a camp basis. A cost of 25 cents daily "per camp" would be the height of reasonableness. Revenue would assist maintenance of facilities.

As a veteran camper of many years' standing, we acclaim the commission's program. It should pay dividends in health and dollars to Michigan. It would be an additional asset to Michigan as a vacation land.

P.S.—We might add that the bluegills were biting; that Mosher cleaned 'em and the missus fried 'em right on the fish shanty stove in the tent. And by the illumination of two candles — since the gasoline pressure lantern declined to do its stuff — we dined on fresh, delicious Michigan bluegills, topped with thick sliced ripe-red Michigan tomatoes and climaxed with luscious Michigan muskmelon. Verily, Michigan is THE state for real living!

ASK FARMERS TO DESTROY BARBERRY

Farmers of Michigan are urged by Michigan State college and USDA authorities to assist in the final phases of the campaign to stamp out rust-susceptible barberry bushes in the state. Work of intensively surveying 12,385 square miles and reworking 7,497 square miles of Michigan land in search of the bushes is getting underway this fall — administered by the Bureau of Entomology and Plant Quarantine, United States Department of Agriculture, in cooperation with the State Department of Agriculture and Michigan State college.

The original barberry eradication program got underway in Michigan in 1918, and since that time 66 per cent of the state has been freed of the shrub that harbors spores of stem rust and is recognized as the greatest single hazard to the growing of small grains in Michigan. Annual losses from stem rust in the state prior to 1928 exceeded 2,600,000 bushels of small grains. This has been reduced by means of the eradication campaign and development of resistant grain varieties to less than 550,000 bushels yearly.

In the course of eradication work in Michigan, more than six million barberry bushes have been destroyed on 17,165 properties scattered over the state. Bushes have been found in 82 of Michigan's 83 counties. Seed of the barberry may lie dormant in the ground for 10 or more years and is scattered over wide areas by birds. This makes periodic re-surveys necessary.

Further information concerning barberry eradication and means of identifying the bush can be obtained by writing the Bulletin Room, Department of Publications Michigan State college for a copy of the new bulletin "Barberry Eradication in Michigan," published by J. H. Muncie, Extension Associate Professor of Plant Pathology, Michigan State college, and Turner.

BACK HOME, the headlines read — 60 U. S. Planes Lost.

The full news account may mention that 600 airmen were shot down with them. But nowhere will you find mention about how many of those men landed alive and are now in enemy prison camps. There is no way of knowing.

Actually, about 60 per cent of all American airmen shot down over enemy territory survive—as prisoners of war.

Some prison camps are devoted exclusively to airmen. But these camps are little different from the others. In all, the men behind the barbed wire live the same empty life. There is nothing to do but wait—wait—and try to hold on to your sanity while you wait.

That's why War Prisoners' Aid was formed. It provides the wherewithal to buy for prisoners of war the things that will help them hold on to their sanity during those empty days of waiting. Books. Games. Athletic equipment. Make-up kits for amateur theatricals. Musical instruments.

It takes money to buy these things. More and more money as more and more of our men wind up in prison camps. The only way War Prisoners' Aid can get that money is through your contribution to your local community drive. Your gift is also shared by war refugees, the U.S.O., Merchant Seamen, welfare services here at home. Give once for all these. Give generously.

Hunters Warned Of Rabbit Fever

With the opening of hunting season the State Health Department reminds hunters to be on the lookout for rabbits with tularemia, or rabbit fever. This disease is infectious and the germs can go through healthy skin, giving the disease to human beings, according to Dr. William DeKleine, State Commissioner of Health. Best way to avoid rabbit fever is to avoid handling wild rabbits with the bare hands, and to be sure that all rabbit meat is thoroughly cooked before eating.

Not all rabbits, of course are infected with tularemia. To avoid the sick animals, Dr. DeKleine advises that hunters always shoot rabbits that are running. Slow or sluggish rabbits are likely to be infected with tularemia. If peculiar whitish spots appear on the internal organs, the meat should be destroyed, since these spots may indicate tularemia.

This sickness starts with a sore at the place where the germs enter the body. These sores are frequently quite extensive, much swollen, discolored and ulcerated. Nearby lymph glands enlarge and may form pus. The patient has fever and may feel very weak and exhausted. About one of 20 patients dies of the disease.

WOMEN WANTED TO ENLIST IN WAVES

Since the Navy's need for WAVES may soon be filled, women who have considered this branch of service should apply now for enlistment while they still may join.

This was announced today by Lieut.-Comdr. Byron E. Fletchner, Officer in Charge of Navy recruiting for this area.

He said that WAVE enlistments nationally have reached approximately 80,000 and the Navy's quota for its Women's Reserve may soon be filled.

"Although the war is nearly three years old for the United States," said Commander Fleehtner, "the Navy's biggest job in the Pacific still lies ahead. This is why more WAVES are needed here in this country to perform the many different jobs so vital to the efficient operation of the fleet at sea."

Through their work in Navol shore establishments throughout the county, WAVES are helping to hasten the end of the war and victorious return home of our fighting men, Commander Fleehtner said.

Enlistment in the WAVES is open to women, 20 to 36 years old, who have had at least two years of high school or business school. Married women are eligible, provided they have no children under 18.

BOYNE BREAKS RED RAYDERS WINNING STREAK

The Red Rnyders' winning streak was suddenly snapped last Wednesday nfternoon hy, of coursr, Boyne City.

The spectators saw whnt we will call, two balnnced ball tenms of n moderate wind on their bnck which would aid them in pnssing and punting. Boyne booted to Co-captain Shearer who picked the ball up on his 30 nnd came back to his own 35. The team started to function with Graves, Novotny and Shearer skirting the ends, bringing the ball into enemy terirtory. Graves changed the pattern and flipped a 20-yard pass to right end Hardy who was downed immediately. The Red Rayders lost the hnll after four unsuceessful downs und Boyno took over and immediately started to display Boyne tradition. The first quarter ended in n 0-0 dend-lock and both tenms poured forth every hit of available energy into the 2nd quarter with the Red Raylers displaying a sparkling defense in accordance with Boynes passing attack. The Red Rayders displnyed a very strong line defense which held Boyne on the 2-ynrd line for four downs, again the old saying "What is a football team without the linemen."

The 3rd quarter ended in a 0-0 deadlock and it certainly lonked like a scoreless game. The Red Rnyder's defense started to crack and Boyne took ndvantage on end runs and center bucks and nfter three consecutive 1st downs rnn up the first score of the gnme. The try for the extra point was good.

The Red Rnylers had 10 minutes playing time left so they immediately went on a passing rampage a 40-yard pass from Grnves to Hardy was good on the Rayder's 30-yard line and downed immediately another pnss to Hardy and one to Mnrtin were knocked down. The ball gnme sea-sawed back and forth and the remaining minute of the gamo fled hy with Boyne out in front.

Both teams displayed real clean foothall and a lot of good fellowship and sportsmanship was certainly displayed, so in passing, "It was just another gamo."

FISHING GOOD IN LOCAL WATERS

Perch have been taking the bait in Round Lake and some good catches of the hig "yellow bellies" have heen made off the light in Lako Michigan.

Mackinaw catches have not been heavy though Pvt. James Foster, home on furlough, landed three, the largest a 12½ pounder. Smith and Henry Heckler, 6¾ and 8 lbs.; Clarence Wood, 3 and 7 lhs.; Lyle Benudoin, 5 lbs.; Frank McGhynn, 6 lbs.; Ed Edwards 3 lbs.

RECORD PURCHASES DURING PEACH CROP HARVEST REPORTED

Purchase of more than 200,000 bushels, or 500 cars, of Michigan Peaches during the recent harvest was announced today by the A & P Food Stores.

"Distribution of this record volume was through the major markets of the entire country," said Frank C. Kniesner, divisional manager of the chain's produce affiliate. "This was made possible by the exceptional quality of this year's crop. For instance, many carloads were sent for the first time to the New York market."

Kneisner added that "despite shortages of sugar at the time, the housewife, through home canning, saw to it that none of this large crop went to waste."

TRAFFIC ACCIDENTS ALARMING TO STATE OFFICERS

Concerned over the large number of pedestrians being killed and injured in traffic accidents, State and local police launched a statewide pedestrian safety campaign October 15, Police Chief Clarence Heise announced this week.

More than 100 civic and community organizations will participate in the campaign which is to be conducted jointly by the Michigan State Safety Commission and the Traffic Safety Association of Detroit.

In urging pedestrians to avoid having an accident by following all rules of safe walking, Chief Heise pointed out that a total of 207 pedestrians were killed in auto mishaps in Michigan during the first six months of this year.

Accident records show that two-thirds of the pedestrians killed in rural traffic accidents and six out of 10 killed in urban accidents were either violating the law or committing an unsafe act, Chief Heise said.

Because three out of four fatal pedestrian accidents occurred during hours of darkness, special emphasis will be placed on the hazards of night-time walking and driving, he said.

All police have been instructed to apprehend motorists attempting to drive with only one headlight or with a dim or misdirected headlight.

In support of police enforcement efforts during the campaign, Chief Heise said that educational posters and leaflets prepared by the Michigan State Safety Commission and the Traffic Safety Association will bo distributed warning pedestrians to stop and look both ways before stepping off the curb and to take extra safety precautions when walking at night, while urging motorists to be doubly alert when driving at night.

Football This Week

FEW football fans will dispute the claim that on the basis of games to date, Notre Dame and the Army head the list of the nation's powerhouse teams.

The Irish, who gave Dartmouth a 64 to 0 lashing last Saturday, will take on a stronger foe in Wisconsin this Saturday.

The Army meets Coast Guard Academy which should be just a warmup for the Cadets, after the way they swamped Pittsburgh, 69 to 7 last week end.

STRANGE as it may seem, there's not a college game in Michigan this week end. The Wolverines have an open date, Michigan State goes to Maryland U., Friday night, Western Michigan meets Wooster there also on Friday night, and Wayne U., has an open date.

* * *

TWO UNBEATEN teams will meet when Ohio State takes on Great Lakes Naval. Other Midwest games include Illinois-Pittsburgh, Northwestern-Indiana and Purdue-Iowa.

ADDITIONAL top games this Saturday: Texas A. & M. - Texas Christian, Georgia Tech-Navy, Rice-Southern Methodist and Southern California-Washington.

WAR FUND DRIVE NOW UNDER WAY

While it is too early to furnish returns of the drive, reports from the various areas in the county indicate the campaign is well under way, and that responses from Charlevoix county folk, show plainly their desire to continue the magnificent work of the USO, and the several other affiliated war relief agencies. The USO, and our own CSO, are more familiar to us than many of the other reliefs due to the glowing accounts of its benefits brought home by our own Charlevoix boys who have returned from the far places of the earth having received or witnessed the aid and counsel given by this worthy project, which receives 58 per cent of the money raised.

Last week's Courier carried the quotas and some inquiries have come in requesting information about the volunteer workers.

They have a big job to do and if they do not get around to call on everyone, make it a point to see any of the following: County Chairman, Robert Bridge, Charlevoix, (in the absence of R. C. Emrey); sec.-treas., Mrs. John Porter, East Jordnn; Rural Area Director, B. C. Mellencamp, Boyne City. In charge of the cities are: Charlevoix city and township, Robert Bridge; Boyne City, Rev. J. M. DeVinney; East Jordan, L. B. Carr; St. James and Beaver Island, Earl Boyle.

Township chairmen are: Bay, Mrs. John Kotesky; Boyne Valley, Mrs. Fred Denise; Chandler, Mrs. Zella Stewart; Evangeline, Melvin Summerville; Eveline, Wm. Johnston; Hayes, Mrs. Amandus Evers; Hudson, Furl Leazier; Marion, Mrs. Sophia Withers; Norwood, Mrs. Hazel Murray; South Arm, Mrs. Wm. Shepard; Wilson, Mrs. Chas. Shepard.

An appreciation dinner will be given the above committee at Mont's Cafe, Charlevoix, at 6:30, Monday, Oct. 23, by County Chairman Robert Bridge. M. C. Meador, Traverse City, Field Representative for the area will speak and show movies of the War Fund activities.

MOTOR FATALITIES INCREASED 42 PER CENT

Michigan motor vehicle traffic fatalities increased 42 per cent in August compared with the same month a year ago, reversing the three month downward trend which began in May and extended through July. National traffic fatalities dropped 5 per cent in August.

All of the August net fatality increase occurred in rural areas where 59 persons were killed compared to 45 a year ago. In incorporated areas 20 persons were killed compared with 22 in August last year.

Traffic volumes in rural tourist areas increased 41 per cent during the summer months compared with like experience last year. This fact undoubtedly largely accounts for the recent increase in rural fatalities.

During the first eight months of this year 630 persons were killed in motor vehicle traffic accidents compared with 546 during the same period last year, an increase of 84 persons killed or 15 per cent. On the same comparativo basis rural fatalities increased 21 per cent while urban fatalities increased 9 per cent. Cumulative National traffic fatalities are up 6 per cent.

In rural areas trunkline highway fatalities increased 27 per cent; county road deaths increased 43 per cent. All of the urban fatality increase occurred in cities under 20,000 population. In cities 20,000 population and over there was 4 per cent net fatality decrease.

W.M.T.R.A. Meeting In Grand Rapids

The West Michigan Tourist and Resort Association held their 27th Annual Meeting at the Pantlind Hotel in Grand Rapids, October 4th and 5th. E. J. Edwards represented the City and Belvedere, attending the board of directors meeting the evening of the 4th and also the meetings held throughout the day of the 5th. He reports that the meetings were well attended and that many matters of great importance were discussed and acted upon. Michigan can and will play a big part in the future tourist trade throughout the nation. Many plans and preparations are being made by the Association and private concerns to take advantage of the forth-coming travel and resort business.

Speakers of note who addressed the meetings were Tim O'Shaughnessy, who is assistant to the president of the Rock Island Lines, Chicago; Homer Merchant, Eastern Sales Manager, United Air Lines, Chicago, and Charles Figy, Michigan Commissioner of Agriculture. The Harmony Halls of Grand Rapids, International Champions, S.P.E.B.S.Q.S.A., Inc., provided high quality entertainment at the banquet the night of October 5th.

President Brandt was re-elected to serve another year. Under his leadership the Association has enjoyed two years of steady progress. William Palmer was re-elected secretary. Mr. Palmer is proving a very capable secretary, and is becoming recognized throughout the state as an important figure in the tourist and resort business.

A new vacation directory, "Carefree Days", will be designed and written for persons seeking vacation in West Michigan. Information will be charted for easy reading and the editorial matter for each county will give greater coverage of attractions. Fifty thousand West Michigan Tourist Maps will be printed for distribution on direct inquiries from advertising, travel bureaus and out-state information offices. This material will be ready in February.

Pfc. Harvey J. Cole Is In New Guinea

Pfc. Harvey J. Cole writes from somewhere in New Guinea: We've been busy until recently so I have not had time to catch up on my letters. The Couriers are coming through again and it is good to get the news from home.

We've sure had some nice weather lately although it rains quite frequently in this sector. There will probably he lots af it now for this is the beginning of the rainy season. Back home you are looking forward to winter. I sure would like to see some snow again for I've missed three winters since being in the army. It would be fun to go fox hunting in the fresh snow this winter. I'll bet Mr. Withers and Mr. Staley and the others around Burgess are looking forward to it.

The boys I was inducted with are sure spread over the world. When this war is over we'll have tales to tell. There are two boys from East Jordnn in my outfit and we often get together and chew the fat.

Thanks again for the paper and just keep it coming.

THIRTY YEARS AGO

Wednesday, October 14, 1914

There were 4457 homes in Charlevoix County in 1914, according to the U. S. census. Of this number, 1358 were farm homes and 3099 urban or city homes.

F. S. Blanchard, Charlevoix's pioneer hardware merchant, was taken with a hemmorhage last Friday and is now confined to his room at the Hotel Elston.

Thirty-eight friends, including members of the G.A. R. and Ladies Relief Corps met at the home of Comrade L. H. and Mrs. Wheeler on south Bridge street, on Tuesday evening, the 13th, to celebrate their golden wedding.

Ayers Boal has purchased Fred Myer's farm and will take possession as soon as possible.

Playground News of Field and Stream

Lowest September ground-water levels over Central Michigan in the last three years are reported by the conservation department. Likely to be 1944's low stage, average ground-water levels fell four-tenths feet lower than the record September high stage of a year ago, one-tenth foot below the 10-year September average, and six-tenths of a foot higher than the record September low stage of 1936.

Heavy, early-season snows over much of the state could enormously reduce forest fire hazard and hold this year's fire loss to a near all-time low.

As it is, a few days will greatly increase the hazard from fallen leaves when hunters swing into action October 15.

The conservation department urges downstate hunters who go into marshes and swales next week that such areas are the driest in many years and that carelessness can start much fires.

ENLISTMENT AGES FOR MERCHANT MARINE

The United States Maritime Service in a sweeping change of age requirements today announced that all men between 17 and 50 years of age could volunteer for merchant marine training and subsequent assignments aboard oceangoing cargo vessels.

Eliminating the recruiting of 18 year olds, the announcement stated that men between 18 and 26, who were previously barred from enlisting in the Maritime Service, would be accepted under the new rulings provided that they had not received a notice to report for induction.

Accepted candidates are permitted to select deck, engine, radio, purser-hospital corps or steward department training and are paid $50 a month plus subsistence, quarters and uniform allowances during the average three month training course.

Maritime Service recruting offices in Detroit are located in room 111 — Federal Building.

CULTIVATION OF MILKWEED FOUND NOT PROFITABLE

Experiments carried on at Michigan State college by farm crops specialists indicate that there is little, if any, prospect for the establishment of milkweed as a post-war cultivated crop in Michigan on a profitable farm enterprise basis at present prices paid for the pods. Proposals of this nature have been made during past months as the project of collecting floss from wild stands of milkweed, to serve in place of kapok in life preservers, has progressed throughout the state.

A comparison of average wields and income from ordinary farm crops with the best observed yield and income from milkweed shows gross returns of nearly $39 per acre for corn, nearly $29 for wheat, $199 for potatoes, and $47 for dry beans, but only $12 per acre for milkweed.

Prime Favorite

Muskrat, or "marsh rabbit" as it is sometimes called, was a prime favorite, especially in winter, with the aborigines of North America. Countless numbers of voyageurs, trappers, and hunters have roasted it over the coals of the camp fire. Traders and Indians dried the meat for winter food.

John R. Dethmers

G.O.P ATT'Y GENERAL NOMINEE IS WORKHORSE

There is little doubt in Lansing today that one of the busiest men in the capital city is John R. Dethmers, Republican State Central Committee chairman and candidate for attorney general. John is directing the activities of all of the state candidates, helping out the counties with their problems, working on the national program and campaigning for office.

There is no doubt that Dethmers works hard for the Republican Party and to top it all off, it is generally conceded that he is the best candidate the party could have picked for the attorney general's job. His record since graduating from the University of Michigan Law School has been excellent. After practicing law for several years in Zeeland, Dethmers was appointed city attorney. Later he was elected prosecuting attorney of Ottawa county, by overwhelming majorities, for several terms.

In more recent years, Dethmers has served as chief assistant attorney general, and also as special assistant representing the State of Michigan before the ICC in freight rate cases affecting the interest of the state. For the past two and one-half years he has been chairman of the Republican State Central Committee, and last year was special advisor to the governor on legislative matters and policy.

Recently Governor Harry F. Kelly said of Dethmers, "There is no one in the state as well equipped by experience as John R. Dethmers for the office of attorney general. He should be one of the best Michigan has ever had."

Scotch Fisherman Would Do This

Trust a Scotchman to make three fish grow where one grew before and thus help in the wartime food program. By putting sodium nitrate and phosphates in fresh water lakes in Scotland to increase supplies of marine vegetation on which fish feed, it has been possible to increase production of some fish by 300 per cent, the Department of Commerce reports. Use of fertilizer has been carried out on an experimental basis.

Fixing Up the Farm

Trench Silo for Economy

IF YOU'RE faced with the problem of building a new silo this year despite the wartime shortages, why not consider the trend toward trench silos? All you need is concrete and some hog fencing. The cost of building a trench silo, of course, is less than that of an upright one of the same capacity.

The walls of the trench are plastered with a two - to - three inch layer of concrete, spread on hog fencing tacked to the earth with spikes, or stiff wires bent to form long staples. The walls go on in two layers, the first just thick enough to cover the fencing. A similar thick layer is used on the floor.

Either a hinged roof or the usual layer of soil seeded to small grain will make a satisfactory cover.

Be sure to locate your silo near the barn, so that it will be readily accessible, and silage can be carted regardless of the weather.

CARBON DISULPHIDE USE IS DANGEROUS

A warning against the use of carbon disulphide for fumigating stored grain was issued today by Ray Hutson, head of the department of entomology of Michigan State college. Many disastrous fires and explosions have resulted from this chemical, the entomologist said.

Several other satisfactory fumigants that are not explosive are on the market, and among these Hutson recommends the ethylene dichlorhle mixtures, which are sold under several trade names.

Virtually all insurance policies are invalidated if carbon disulphide is used for fumigation purposes. A spark from an electric switch or metal striking metal will explode the vapors of this fumigant.

Potato and Apple Show at Gaylord November 1st and 2nd

Premium lists for the 9th Annual Northern Michigan Potato and Apple Show have just been received. The show this year has been shortened to just a two-day affair due to war conditions. The program will be concentrated on November 2nd, with the first day for the placing of samples only.

The prizes are on the same high level as formerly, with first places in pecks of all leading varieties from $10 to $8. 4-H Club exhibits and vocational agricultural exhibits occupy a prominent place in the show. Apples will be shown in baskets, plates and trays. In addition, there are many contests that are highly attractive to both youth and adults.

The location this year is so near this county, certainly a large number of local farmers should select exhibits and attend the big day, November 2nd. Premium books are available at the extension office. If you have not already received one, be sure and request one. If you need help in selecting your exhibits, kindly contact your county agent, who will be very pleased to help you.

Home Economics Groups Being Organized: First Lesson Scheduled for Thursday, November 2.

Several new communities are being interested in organizing groups to participate in the four lessons scheduled for this winter. It is suggested and recommended that all communities meet before the first lesson to enroll the members and select officers necessary for the proper organization of the group.

The first lesson is "Planning Meals from the Abundant Foods." This certainly should be of interest to every housewife. The suggestions given by the nutrition specialist of the Michigan State College will be practical and useful. The second lesson on January 11th will be "Streamlining the Kitchen for War"; the third lesson on February 15th is "Time Savers in Home Sewing", and the fourth and last discussion March 29th will be "The Wonders of a Coat of Paint."

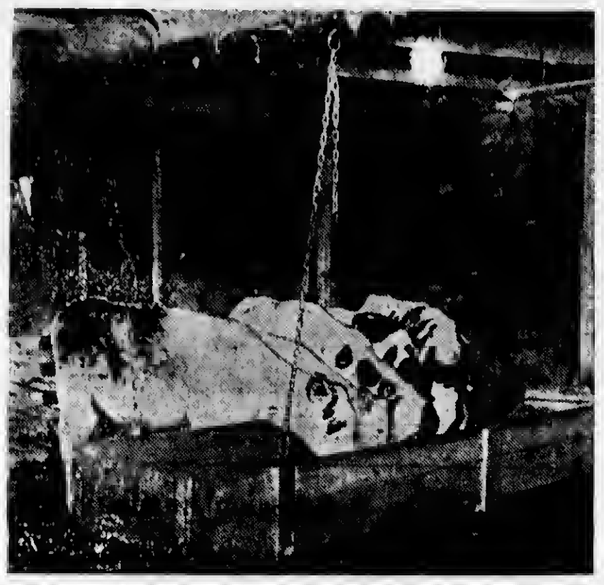
A very cordial invitation is extended to any persons interested in either belonging to a group or organizing their own community. We suggest you contact your extension agent or extension leaders in your community: Mrs. Ida Kinsey, East Jordan; Mrs. Edith Novotny, Charlevoix; and either Mrs. Constance Vanlloesen or Mrs. Dorothy Sage, Boyne City. Last year ten groups enjoyed the program; this year we expect fifteen or sixteen groups. Remember this is free to any person interested in becoming a better homemaker.

Last Call In Baby Bull Project: Send In Your Request At Once.

While some requests from farmers have been received for buying young purebred sires, it is felt that additional dairymen are interested. These young calves should be moved to northern Michigan some time in November before the weather is too severe. Let us know if you are interested in buying one of these young animals not later than October 22nd.

The majority of dairy breeds will be available in this project, and requests for other breeds will receive every consideration. These young animals will be purebreds, out of high producing herds and will cost from $30 up, depending on the production record. This is your opportunity to again purchase the type of animal that should head your herd and one that should improve the production from this offspring.

BUNKER ON CHAINS



Growing calves need feed mangers with "growing legs." Carlyle Waltz, operator of the MacVaughn farm 2¾ miles west of Mason, hangs the feed box on chains which can be adjusted by hooks at the ceiling. The free-swinging bunker facilitates cleaning the stable. The chains are easily adjusted for gradual increase of floor height and growth of the calves. (Submitted through the cooperation of the Emergency Farm Labor Program and the Extension Information Service, Michigan State College.)

4-H BOY MASTERS CANNING ART

The weaker sex has no claim to superior honors in a field in which they ordinarily excell, if Frank Groenveld, 18-year-old 4-H club boy of Norway, Dickinson county, Michigan (inset above), can be accepted as a fair example. When it comes to the gentle art of canning he takes no back seat to any of his girl 4-H colleagues. The picture shows a part of nearly 1,000 quarts of fruits and vegetables which he canned in 1943 — a total of 942 quarts, to be exact. He expects to equal or exceed this record in 1944 before the fall canning season is ended. Frank grows most of the vegetables in his own garden and was state garden champion last year. He has been canning for five years, and had one of the outstanding achievement booths at the Michigan State college State 4-H Show this summer.

One Less Tramp in Our Town

Esther Curless found a tramp asleep in the hammock in her apple orchard, and she didn't hesitate a minute. She grabs a rolling pin—and the last they saw of him, the tramp was making dust tracks to the state line.

"It ain't only that I don't like laziness," says Esther, "'specially in wartime. It's that that particular hammock is Ned's hammock—and Ned's fightin' for it overseas!"

Then she shows us Ned's last letter where he says: "I keep dreaming of my hammock in the orchard, with Rags lying underneath, and a cool glass of beer beside me."

A soldier's picture of home! The little friendly pleasures that he misses so! From where I sit, Esther's mighty right in wanting to defend those "little things" from all intruders. They're among the things our men look forward to returning to—the things we want to keep intact for them.

John D. Morrison

ACCOUNTANT IS G.O.P. CHOICE FOR AUD. GEN'L

The Republican Party has pulled the "unusual" in nominating John D. Morrison, an auditor from the Upper Peninsula City of Marquette as its candidate for the office of auditor general in the November 7 election.

Morrison, if elected with the Republican state ticket, will probably be the first real certified public accountant ever to hold the office of auditor general in the State of Michigan. He is an associate in the firm of Morrisoo Audit Company in Marquette.

Morrison is an active participant in the affairs of his community. He is a member of the board of St. Luke's Hospital, member and past president of the community chest, trustee of the Upper Peninsula branch of the Michigan Children's Aid society, ex-president of the Rotary club and member of the American Legion.

As for Morrison's background, he attended public and high schools and Northern State Teachers College from which he was graduated with second-high honors. He taught for one year before enlisting with Co. C, 107th Engineers of the Red Arrow Division in World War I. On his return from the war, Morrison spent two years working on the docks at Marquette and then went to Chicago University where he gained his Ph.B. He has been an accountant ever since.

In describing the nominee for auditor general, Governor Harry F. Kelly said, "He is a typical, good, down-to-earth businessman who is interested in efficient and economical state government such as the present Republican administration has always advocated."

HYBRID CORN IS MORE RESISTANT WHEN DRY

The superiority of drought resistnnt hybrid corn over the old open pollinated varieties was demonstrnted in unprecedented fashion as the result of this year's dry period. Hybrid plantings of 1,300,000 acres of the stote's 1,800,000 acres of corn this season will bring Michigan farmers a total yield of from 10 to 12 million bushels more shelled corn than would have been secured without hybrids, Michigan State co llege nuthorities estimnte.

Hybrid corn is not immune to drought damage, but suffers proportionately less loss of yield from dry weother thon does open pollinnte.O hio M-15, ono of the most productive hybrids for central Michigan, under normal weather conditions outyields open pollinated about 25 per cent. Under drought conditions this increases to an nverago of 38 per cent. In their respective adaptation areas hybride outyield open pollinated on a similar scnle.

USO Helps Sarge's Loved Ones, Too

THE USO Club in Kansas City, Mo., was a welcome haven for Mestar Sgt. and Mrs. John L. Smith and toddler, Dickie, when they were forced to wait twelve hours for train connections to the Sergeant's post at the Childress, Texas, Air Base. Son Dickie got a welcome tubbing, mother was able to renew the youngster's formula and get some relaxation and dad caught a nap in the club lounge. The Kansas City clubbouse is one of nearly 3,000 USO operations supported by the American people through the National Wer Fund to provide off-duty comfort and recreation for the men and women of the armed forces.

Students can realize how important religions netivity is today as the trend toward more tolerance hecmaes evident.

American History

Early colonial history revealed the hardship endured by printers as they attempted to get facts into the hnnds of a news-hungry public.

The fnmous Zenger case showed the ridicule that was heaped on n printer by one of the English governors. Through the aid of n notoble colonial attorney, Peter Zenger was freed to continue his efforts toward n free press.

There is strong evidence that we shall enjoy n full musicnl year. We have had a good turn-out in all musical activities, and the students show an eager interest and an abundance of talent. You should hear from our thirty voice chorus, and the thirty-piece concert bnnd in the very nenr future. Plans are being lnid now for a school curnivnl on November 10, nt which the band will play a prominent part. The Hnrvest Swirl, held October 14 from 9:00-12:00 in the H. S. Gym and sponsored by the Junior Class wns a decided success. Tho decorations followed the motif suggested by the nnme of the dnnce with four corn-shocks lining the stage and pumpkins realistically grouped about them. The "shell" used for stage singing provided u setting for the nickelodian which furnished the evening's music and leaning against it as its added ntraction was a scare-crow wearing n top-hat. Leaves of autumn hues were pinned to the stage curtnins with the nnme of the dnnce spelled ont above them.

During the intermission refreshments of either cider, pumpkin pie u la mode or a la carte were served in the cafeteria.

LAND BOOM LOOMS, SURVEY INDICATES

Alarmed at the growing tendency for city buyers to pay inflated prices for Michigan farm lnnd, K. T. Wright, of the Deportment of Farm Management, Michigan State college, cautions prospective purchosers to inspect carefully the potential earning power of the farms they intend to huy.

Using dnta gnthered in n survey which he has been conducting in cooperation with the Bureau of Agricultural Economics in eight selected counties in the state since January 1, 1942, Wright is convinced that the large percentage of city buyers is working a hnrdship on farmer buyers who rely solely on the returns from their farms for their living. The survey in VanBuren, Lenawee, Livingston, Gratiot, Ogemaw, Emmet, Delta and Iron counties indicated that non-farmers nre buying more than half the land in the stote. The majority of them, having enjoyed high earning power in wnrtime industries, are in a position to pay more thnn the lnnd is worth.

Wright has learned that a large portion of the city buyers are trying to get security for themselves in case of another depression.

"Many of them," he snys, "do not realize how much the volue of this property and the products produced on the farm may drop after the war. If prices of form products should decline to the 1932 level, they would be worth only one-third ns much as they brought in 1943."

Good Rope

Abaca fiber, also known as manila hemp, makes high-grade rope, prized by the navy and merchant marine for its strength and resistance to salt water. Before Pearl Harbor, the United States imported aonually opproximately 100,000,000 pounds from the Philippines.

THE OLD JUDGE SAYS...

"The war stories I like best, Judge, are the ones by the special writers overseas who live right with our troops. They give us a better idea of how our men react to things going on over there and back here at home."

"I agree with you, Sam. I never miss one of those stories in the papers or magazines. And there's one thing those writers seem to agree on no matter where they are stationed with our men... and that is that the men who have left their homes and families to go away and fight this war don't want to come back and find that prohibition has been put over on them while they were away... either nationally or locally. They have heard about the attempts being made and they resent it bitterly."

"I agree with them, Judge, even though I don't happen to drink myself. Furthermore, I don't think it's fair for us at home to be making any major changes while 10,000,000 of our fighting men are away and have no chance to express their opinions."

Fixing Up the Farm
by BURTON WILLIAMS

Repairing Old Buildings

THE demand for maximum food production has put new importance on many old structures that otherwise might be abandoned. How to do a practical salvage job on them is the question on many farms.

Unless the lumber has been seriously damaged by abuse or insects, there is no reason why old structures should not be rebuilt. One of the easiest things that can be done to keep these buildings in service for years to come is to protect them against the weather and strengthen them with new siding and roofing.

Among the materials favored for this kind of work are asbestos cement shingles and sidings. Both of these materials can be applied right over the old surface with little trouble. Being of mineral composition, they are weatherproof and fireproof and do not need to be painted. Fortunately, there are no restrictions on the use of asbestos products for necessary maintenance and repairs.

SOCIAL EVENTS

The St. Mary's Altar Society met with Mrs. Ben Yettaw on Thursday afternoon. At the business meeting Mrs. Louis Orlowski gave a report at the diocesan meeting of the National Council of Catholic Women which was held in Grand Rapids recently and which she attended as a delegate. At the social hour which followed, Mrs. Yettaw assisted by Mrs. Edward Golden served refreshments.

The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. George LaBlance Jr. on Thursday, October 19, who will be assisted by Mrs. Frank Oleksy.

MICHIGAN OUT-DOORS

The lower peninsula produced more bear than the upper peninsula in 1943, for the first time since 1938.

It is unlawful in Michigan to use live decoys in hunting waterfowl.

The State of Michigan owns 4,556,788 acres of land of which 581,848 acres were purchased, the rest going to state ownership through tax delinquency.

Three of Michigan's larger inland lakes — Otsego Lake, Otsego County; Brevort Lake, Mackinac County; and Indian Lake, Schoolcraft County, will be closed to spearing through the ice for another five years. The Conservation Commission, on recommendation of its Fisheries Division, has voted to renew a ban on ice spearing, effective since 1939, until December 31, 1949.

Acquisition of public fishing sites on Pickerel Lake, Emmet County and Clear Lake, St. Joseph County, brings to 197 the number of such areas acquired for public use since the Department of Conservation began an intensiva acquisition program in 1940.

The Conservation Commission, at its September meeting, approved taking up options on 208 acres of frontage on Pickerel Lake and 300 feet of frontage on Clear Lake.

The frontages are purchased from fishing license fees earmarked by the legislature for this purpose.

Purchase of 8,000 acres of land in four Michigan conservation projects has been given approval of the Conservation Commission. Acreages purchased are in the Escanaba River State Game Area, Marquette County; the Fife Lake State Forest, Kalkaska County; the AuSable Forest, Antrim and Otsego Counties; and the Hardwood State Forest, Emmet County.

Detailed maps of each of the southern Michigan public hunting land areas are now available on request through the Department of Conservation, Lansing. The areas aggregate more than 50,000 acres.

The state conservation department has nothing to do with the distribution of ammunition to hunters in Michigan.

The statement is repented because the department recently received a lengthy petition from sportsmen and farmers in a southwestern Michigan county who pointed to alleged excessive crop damage by pheasants and rabbits as reason why they should get a larger allotment of shells.

Allocation of ammunition to the various states is handled from Washington.

School children living north of Escanaba thrilled to an unscheduled nature lesson recently when a big bull moose stopped their bus on a highway near Rock, north of here. The animal withdrew to a nearby railroad grade where it stood motionless for 10 minutes. It is described as having a perfect set of antlers. Moose also have been seen recently on Keweenaw peninsula.

Pheasant hunters had best luck in Huron county last fall, rabbit hunters fared best in Cass county, according to the conservation department.

Huron county pheasant hunters averaged 4.7 birds for the 1943 season, Cass county hunters got nine rabbits apiece on the basis of averaged game kill reports.

Genesee county, however, attracted most pheasant hunters and the largest kill of birds was taken there. Kent county had most rabbit hunters and supplied the largest total of rabbits taken.

It is unlawful to hunt ringnecked pheasants, rabbits, woodchucks, ruffed grouse, squirrels, sharp-tailed grouse, or prairie chicken before 8 a. m., Eastern war time, each day of the open season.

Allies Plow Through Siegfried Line as Big Guns Blast Enemy; F.D.R. Ponders Wage Increases

Released by Western Newspaper Union

(ST PATRICK'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysis and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

EUROPE:
Shift Attack

With the British Second army running into increasingly stiff resistance in Holland as the Nazis poured in reinforcements to prevent it from swinging around the northern terminus of the Siegfried line into the Ruhr, the American First army swung over to the attack to the south in the Aachen region.

Although continued murky weather prevented full use of the powerful Allied air force, U. S. infantrymen plowed forward in the wake of a thunderous, rolling artillery barrage to advance upon the important communications center of Julich, from which hard surfaced highways lead to the great Rhineland industrial cities of Cologne and Dusseldorf, 20 miles away.

As the First punched its way through the belt of Siegfried forts and pillboxes leading back to a depth of some 50 miles, Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton's Third army continued to meet heavy resistance in its drive to the rich Saar coal basin to the east of Metz and Nancy. About Metz, the Nazis fought from concrete and steel fortifications built so that the fire from one covered the approaches to two on either side of it, while about Nancy, the enemy used the heavy woods for cover.

At the south end of the 460-mile front, Lieut. Gen. Alexander Patch's Seventh army drove to the approaches of passes through the rugged Vosges mountains leading to the enemy border, and moved closer on the sprawling Belfort Gap with its 25-mile open corridor to southern Germany.

Having smashed through the forward defenses of the "Gothic Line" in Italy, the Allies met stiffening German resistance as they descended on the great Po valley, and heavy rains, which greased mountain slopes and swelled lateral streams, added to the Fifth and Eighth armies' difficulties.

Deep in the Balkans, Russian troops pressed down on the rich coal and copper mines of Bor in central-eastern Yugoslavia, while farther to the west, the last columns of 200,000 Germans hurried northward from the Greek border area.

With Russian forces surging against its southeastern borders, the Hungarian army went over to the attack in an effort to stave off a Red breakthrough onto the fertile plains leading to the capital of Budapest, once picturesque, now heavily raced by bombardment. To the north, German forces fought to check another Russian drive through the Carpathian mountains, designed to link up with the columns hammering from the south.

In the Baltic area, remnants of the Germans' Latvian and Estonian armies slipped through the narrow corridor rearguards kept open below Riga to escape annihilation.

WAGES:
Study Boosts

Despite organized labor's assault upon the "Little Steel" formula limiting wage increases to 15 per cent over January, 1941 levels, President Roosevelt indicated that there would be no change in government policy before the November election.

Meeting with high AFL and CIO chieftains in the White House, the President reportedly favored a plan for retaining present wage controls until large cancellations of war contracts cut down working time, when increases will be made in basic, hourly rates to compensate for the difference.

At the same time, it was reported that the War Labor board is considering a plan under which employers would be able to grant increases during the reconversion period without government approval, provided they are not used as a basis for boosting prices, or as a lure for attracting workers from war industries.

PACIFIC:
Shipping Target

With U. S. forces standing on the threshold of the Philippines, powerful American bombing squadrons continued to sweep over enemy supply lines in the vicinity.

As the big bombers sought to disrupt the flow of men and material to Philippine bases, U. S. troops cleaned up the southern Palau islands 600 miles to the east, with the total of over 10,000 dead and only 187 captured attesting to the fanatical resistance of the enemy.

Besides slapping at the Philippines, U. S. bombers attacked Jap defense installations over a wide Pacific area, ranging from the Kuriles in the north to the Marshalls in the east.

Lose Chinese Bases

With Chinese opposition disintegrating because of loose military leadership and inadequacy of equipment, Japanese columns pressed their drive to seal off the whole eastern Chinese coast, with a view toward preventing U. S. landings. As a result of the enemy's drive, U. S. air forces were forced to abandon four advanced bases from which they had been peppering the Japs.

ALLIED CRISIS:
Polish Dispute

With the Russian sponsored Polish Committee of National Liberation in Lublin making another strong attack on the U. S. and British supported Polish government-in-exile in London, the ticklish diplomatic situation arising from the troubled affairs of that country took another serious turn.

Occasion for the Committee of Liberation's latest broadside against the London exiles was the latter's appointment of Gen. Tadeusz (Bor) Komorowski as commander-in-chief of Polish forces to replace Gen. Kazimierz Sosnkowski.

In attacking the London exiles, who have jockeyed against Russian claims to eastern Poland, the Committee of National Liberation not only lauded Komorowski as a criminal for leading the ill-fated premature uprising of patriots against the Germans in Warsaw, but also sought to belittle the refugee government by declaring that it was out of complete touch with the people inside the country.

Batting Champs

Lashing out 191 hits in 533 trips to the plate Brooklyn's veteran outfielder, Dixie Walker, won the National league batting championship with a .357 average, while Cleveland's youthful ...ndger, Lou Boudreau, copped the American league title by banging out 191 hits in 581 trips, for .327.

MISCELLANY

Imports of cattle from Mexico to the United States total about one-fifth to one-fourth of all cattle produced in the nation to the south, according to department of agriculture reports. Most of the animals are young bulls, usually between one and two years of age, with a weight of 200 to 700 pounds. The export quota of 500,000 head imposed by Mexico last year will hold for 1944.

POSTWAR REFORM:
France

Declaring ". . . We do not want to go back to the prewar political, social and moral situation which took us to the brink of the abyss . . ." French leader Charles de Gaulle outlined his economic program for the nation in an address in his home town of Lille.

"Our economic duty is to make the fullest use of what we have in our soil . . . and our empire," de Gaulle said. "The only way we can do that is by means of what is called a planned economy. We want the state to direct the economic activity of the entire nation."

Under de Gaulle's plan, both industry and labor would participate in the formulation of economic policies, but initiative and profit would be preserved. Goal would be the elimination of concentration of interests . . . "which, in England and America, are called trusts," de Gaulle said.

Britain

More radical than de Gaulle's program is one drawn up by the general council of Great Britain's Trades Union congress, calling for public ownership or control of all industry, with immediate transfer of the transport, fuel and power, and iron and steel enterprises to government hands.

In the event of public ownership, the congress' council recommended the formation of public corporations under a minister responsible to parliament, with provision for representation of labor.

Part of the control of private industry through special boards made up of labor, business and public members would call for standardization of equipment and products, pooling of methods and patents and general commercial information, and creation of common marketing and purchasing agencies.

New Diaper

Of all people, Alexander Sonnenberg of New York would be expected to be the last person in the world to invent a pinless diaper, but so he has.

Operator of cigarette concessions at several midtown Manhattan hotels, Sonnenberg's creation consists of a regular diaper which can be folded either rectangular or triangular, with tape run through loops on both wings to hold it fast.

FLOUR:
Canadian Output

With a shortage of space for bulk shipments, and much of Britain's elevator capacity destroyed by enemy bombardment, Canadian flour mills have been kept busy grinding wheat for export.

With some mills operating as much as seven days a week, flour producers turned out 24,474,696 barrels of 196 pounds each last year, of which approximately 13,500,000 barrels were exported. This year, the output is expected to reach 26,-366,000 barrels.

In all, increased milling activity absorbed 100,000,000 bushels of Canadian wheat last year, and bulk exports accounted for 283,000,000 bushels, of which more than half went to the U. S. This year, the dominion's wheat production is expected to reach 447,000,000 bushels, on which the farmer is guaranteed a minimum of $1.25 a bushel under the quota system calling for him to retain his grain until elevator capacity becomes available.

LARD:
Production Down

As a result of shipments of fewer hogs and lighter weights in recent months, lard production has been the smallest in two years, with cold storage stocks cut 50 per cent in a 90-day period, and the government owning 50 per cent of the reserve.

In meeting the situation, packers have trimmed more lard and fat off hogs than in the last 10 years, with the average of 14.6 pounds per live weight comparing with 12.8 in 1943 and below 11 in some former years. Despite the close shaving, however, August lard and fat production at 153,220,000 pounds was about 12,000,-000 pounds below 1943.

With the average weight of cattle in August at 891.6 pounds compared with 943.6 last year, a tight situation also has arisen in production of tallow.

NATIONAL INCOME

Although the national income in July was smaller than in the same month last year, the decrease was more than offset by gains in preceding months. For the first seven months, the national income amounted to $84,310,000,000 this year as against $82,134,000,000 last year.

Preliminary information indicates that the moderate upward trend in the national income will reach a peak in October and will give way to a decline in November and December.

KELLY PLEDGED JOB PRIORITIES FOR STATE VETS

Through the efforts of Governor Kelly, Michigan manufacturers have assured returning veterans that they will have job priorities. In attempting to guarantee to every service man and woman "every personal and material benefit to which they are entitled by the laws of the statute books, and the deeper laws of humanity," Governor Kelly and the Legislature created the Office of Veterans' Affairs to help and advise veterans. A $1,000,000 veterans' reserve fund for use in emergency cases has been set up and a legislative appropriation of $250,000 made for an experimental adult education program.

Already, under Republican leadership, Michigan's rehabilitation arrangements for war veterans are unequalled by any other state in the nation, Governor Kelly said. The Michigan plan, now being directed by the Office of Veterans' Affairs, will embody skill tests, adaptation provisions, physical and mental supervision and care, shop education for up-grading, and careful fitting of the veteran to the job in which he will be the happiest and in which he can prove himself most successful.

STORE PLENTY OF VEGETABLES

It is better for the victory gardener to store too much than too little. Each family's requirements of garden vegetables are different, but so that some general conception may be obtained of the amounts necessary, here are the quantities suggested for a family of five:

Carrots, 2 to 3 bu.; beets ½ to 1 bu.; turnips and rutabagas, 1 to 2 bu.; cabbage, 25 to 35 heads; squash and pumpkins, 20 to 25 fruits; dry beans, 8 to 12 quarts; tomatoes (green-mature), 1 to 2 bu.; Chinese cabbage, Brussels sprouts, sufficient for a short time.

It is important to plan your winter's supply of food ahead of time and to can or store as much as possible so that your meals can be properly balanced throughout the entire winter.

Commercial Turtles

Snapping turtles, soft-shelled turtles and so-called "sliders" are the most important commercial species of fresh water turtles. In the larger markets the greatest volume of turtle sales probably consists of snappers. Soft-shelled turtles are eaten extensively in the South, and to some extent elsewhere.

MICHIGAN MIRROR

Michigan's popular concepts of fish conservation and northern resort hotels are headed for radical changes during post-war years.

Fishermen are going to argue long and ardently the merits of those recommendations which come from the Institute for Fisheries Research at Ann Arbor, a division of the Michigan department of conservation:

Open all lakes, except trout waters, to year-round fishing.

Maintain a closed season for only bass, northern pike, wall-eyes and trout. Any of the first three fish, which are predatory in their food habits, are to be returned to the lake if caught during the closed season.

Remove the size limit on all fish but retain the present rationing system of daily limits.

These proposals, revolutionary as they are to the traditional thinking of the average sportsman, were voiced by Dr. Albert S. Hazzard, director of the Institute for Fisheries Research, at the fall conference of the Michigan Outdoor Writers association at Mackinac Island.

Before you begin to fume and cuss, consider the reasons behind them. They represent scientific fact-finding, not guess-work. They reflect the efforts and thinking of specialists, such as Dr. Hazzard, over a period of 15 to 25 years.

The evolution of the conservation movement in Michigan began in the 1870's when depletion of our timber resources and failure of pioneer farmers to utilize cut-over forest lands prompted a conviction that Michigan's natural resources must be guarded and costly waste must be curtailed, if not completely eliminated.

In recognition of the value of fish and game to Michigan's economy, the conservationist first embraced the concept that fish life in lakes and streams must be consistently replenished. It was a "put-and-take" policy. Hatcheries were built — first on Belle Isle and later elsewhere throughout the state —to put back into our waters as much fish as the public took out of them.

Logically, the idea was sound. Then came the rearing pond a development in sequence.

When a lake appeared to be "fished out", the conservationist immediately turned to the hatchery and rearing pond to replenish the supply.

However, scientific fact-finding does not accept concepts. It examines everything. It checks. It re-checks. Finally after years of painstaking, careful study, the research specialist emerges with his notebooks. His conclusions are as inevitable as the answer to an arithmetic problem.

"Our studies in streams and lakes of Michigan have convinced us, beyond the possibility of doubt, that the past generations of conservationists have proceeded on a fallacious hypothesis," said Dr. Hazzard.

"Instead of widening the base of our fish life by adding young fry and fingerlings to the waters, thereby increasing the natural reproductive production, we must look to an increase in food and shelter. Many lakes are so-overstocked with small fish that lack of food in the winters prevents fish from maturing.

"In many instances fishing would be improved if we could devise some method of the fish birth-control — an admittedly difficult accomplishment."

How does the fish scientist arrive at this conclusion? Listen:

"At Craig lake in Branch county, an 122-acre body of water surrounded by marshes, we conducted a fall census of fish by netting. Fish were marked by clipping of fins. After a winter's season of ice fishing, which will average a catch of 25,000 bluegills, we again took a population count.

"The astonishing fact is this: Despite the unusually heavy fishing to which Craig lake was subjected, running around 25,000 fish in winter, less than one-fourth of the legal size bluegills in Craig lake were removed in any one winter. Actually, heavy fishing has improved the catch of blue gills! It sounds fantastic, but such is the truth."

How can food life be added to lakes? Dr. Hazzard says that this is a new field of inquiry. Tests have indicated the merit of depositing farm fertilizers in certain inland lakes where vegetable life is deficient. Other tests have indicated the value of adding mineral elements such as lime to certain inland lakes. Crushed limestone has been used in these experiments with marked success. Branch piles in shallow water also encourage vegetation.

"We are just on the boundaries of fish knowledge," added Dr. Hazzard.

The second popular concept, that of privately owned resort hotels, is also due for far-reaching adjustment.

Stewart Woodfill, president of the Grand Hotel and past president of the Michigan Hotel Association, is a present day crusader for state-ownership of summer lodge hotels at selected scenic spots in Michigan. These places include the Porcupine Mountains and the Tahquamenon Falls, already owned by the State of Michigan and controlled by the state department of conservation. Woodfill would add, to the above, a vista point overlooking Glen lake and Lake Michigan.

"Instead of competing with summer hotels, state-owned tourist lodges would benefit them," asserted Woodfill. "Private operators are not going to invest funds to the extent of assuring buildings and facilities suitable for these regions. The state should bridge this gap by constructing high-class, attractive lodges and then leasing them to private operators, subject to regulations safeguarding the interests of the public."

That the Upper Peninsula must possess better tourist facilities if it expects to get and to retain tourist business is the firm conviction held by Woodfill whose experience in hotel operation extends over a quarter of a century.

State-owned hotels at the Porcupines, Tahqunmenon Falls and perhaps Glen Lake would do more to boost Michigan's tourist business than a substantial amount of promotional ballyhoo. This sentiment, expressed by the Mackinac Island hotel proprietor, has found warm approval among other hotel men. It is significant also that the state conservation department director, P. J. Hoffmaster, is friendly and sympathetic to this solution.

These two trends — scientific research into fish conservation and state-ownership of key resort hotels at state-owned scenic spots —are due to receive increasing favor during the post-war years in Michigan.

They have a common objective: Making Michigan's recreational resources available to more people. To this extent, they share a purpose that is grounded in American democracy itself.

Beauty Coats No More

When painting to protect property, it costs no more to select a modern, attractive color scheme than it does to use an unattractive color, but the result is worth a lot more to the property owner. Well-chosen, cheerful colors also contribute to the morale of the occupants of a building, and have an uplifting effect upon the entire adjacent community.

Your Home

By Frances Ainsworth

10-18-44

The head of a large heating concern recently remarked to me that the success of his company is largely the result of correcting other people's mistakes. What he meant was that most of their business came from homes which were experiencing heating trouble of one kind or another.

A chief mistake is that of allowing the price rather than the adequacy of the furnace to determine one's choice. In doing so they ignore certain laws of heating which must be conformed to if good results are expected. There are definite formulas for calculating the capacity of a furnace in relation to the size and type of home to be heated, and while it does no harm to install a furnace of over-capacity, it does bring trouble to install one of inadequate size. Size for size, all furnaces run pretty much equal in installed cost; therefore, when an experienced heating man figures out the price of a correct installation, one does not save money by taking a smaller size than is recommended. It just means replacing the inadequate job later on, which in effect is paying double for one's heating plant.

The heart of your home is its furnace, and there just isn't any chance of having a healthy home with an undersized heart. The only safe way is to place the matter in the hands of a reliable heating man who makes the selling of the furnace secondary to the accurate determination of your home's heating needs. He will plan your heating system as it should be for greatest efficiency, using mathematical calculation instead of guesswork, and when he arrives at the correct answer, that's what he'll stick to. And if you also stick to his findings, you'll not be making a mistake that shall later have to be corrected.

7 tbsps. 1 tsp. baking powder

Cream shortening and sugar, add salt and beaten eggs, mix well. Add two cups flour and mix, add milk, rest of flour, bran and baking powder. Stir lightly. Bake 15 minutes in 375 degree oven.

The Value of a Congressman
Ability Supplemented by Seniority Rights
The value of a congressman to his district is not vested merely in his ability, although that is of course a paramount factor in successful representation. A great deal of value in Washington is due to Seniority rights which he has attained. Each additional term which he serves, not only better fits him through experience, but his seniority gives him more advantageous committee assignments.
It is very likely his next term will find Congressman Bradley the ranking member of the Merchant Marine and Fisheries committee, a post particularly valuable to the eleventh district, and also the Chairman of the committee on Mines and Mining, another committee post important to this district because of its interests along those lines.

SEEK TO EXPAND POTATO MARKETS

Means of winning the state's just share of some 12 million potential potato customers who live within a radius of 600 miles are being devised by officials and members of the Michigan Potato Development Association, formed in early September.

Realizing that Michigan is losing some of its best potato markets to Maine and Idaho, a campaign that will publicize and advertise Michigan potatoes and will encourage better merchandising and packaging on the part of the industry is being planned. Immediate job ahead, is to find adequate markets for the state's 24 million bushel 1944 crop. Special emphasis will be placed on disposing of potatoes in Chicago, Cleveland, St. Louis, Cincinnati, Pittsburgh, Milwaukee, Buffalo, Toledo, Louisville, Youngstown, Indianapolis and Detroit.

TULIP TREE NOW ON ITS WAY BACK

Thirty to forty years from now Michiganites will be privileged once more to view with awe the beauty of giant tulip trees growing throughout the southern part of the state. As they look upon the stately magnificence of these trees, they can thank one man—Fred Rass of Cassopolis. Mr. Rass, who remembers when tulip or whitewood trees were plentiful in the section of the state south of the north line of Ingham county, has been responsible indirectly for the planting of many thousands of tulip tree seedlings during the past several years.

He started out in 1936 by producing seedlings in his garden at Cassopolis, and between then and 1942 established over 85 acres of tulip tree plantations at the Russ Forest near Cassopolis.

The tulip trees, which formerly were so plentiful in the state, virtually became extinct when they were harvested for lumber. In the early days they were in great demand for wood cutters, buggies, auto bodies and general farm construction.

FARM YARD SERVICES MAY BE OFFERED FARMER AFTER WAR

Many services that the rural resident must now travel to the nearest town to secure may come at his beckoning to his own front door shortly after the war is over.

If the farmer needs some plow shares sharpened or a horse shod, it will only be necessary for him to telephone for the community traveling blacksmith, who will promptly drive into the yard with a completely equipped blacksmith shop — forge, anvil and all — stowed snugly aboard his truck.

Or, if the farmer needs welding or other forms of machinery repair, he'll call the traveling farm machinery repair man in the community. If his electrical equipment goes bad, he'll call the traveling electrician. There also may be tractor tire repair services, feed grinding, potato spraying and grading, hay baling, land clearing services, and a traveling grocery or bakery.

These are possibilities that may logically grow out of United States army service developments. All types of portable equipment are being used by the army, and it is expected that some of this equipment will be for sale when the war is over.

BETTER GRADES OF COAL TO BE HARD TO GET

Whether the homes of those heating with coal will be warm this fall and winter, depends upon consumers accepting now such usable fuel as their dealers can supply, instead of waiting for the kind or size preferred.

Pocahontas and other bituminous (soft) coals from the southern fields are generally preferred for domestic use in this area.

Last season, because of war requirements and miners strikes, dealers could not get enough of these preferred coals for consumer requirements.

Dealers can make deliveries only as they receive coal that has still to be mined. Because of that, continuing war requirements and other reasons which follow, it is not expected that enough can be mined during the coming heating season to provide as much of these preferred coals as last season. Only by the purchase of such other usable fuels as the dealer can deliver, will the consumer be able to offset this shortage and such purchases should not be delayed because if they are, the dealer, owing to wartime limitations upon his manpower and equipment, will not be able to deliver any kind or size of coal fast enough, once severely cold weather is upon us, to avert cold homes.

There are approximately 45000 fewer coal miners than last year owing to indoctions into the armed forces and the attraction of work in industrial war plants, and the average age of those remaining has increased from approximately 32 to 45 years. To make matters worse, strikes are now being threatened by the United Mine Workers of America in their efforts to organize the supervisory employees of coal mines.

4-H'ERS TO ASSIST IN FIRE PREVENTION WEEK, OCTOBER 8-14

Four-H club boys and girls are encouraged to take part in Fire Prevention Week, October 8-14, to help reduce the annual loss of 3,500 lives and $100,000,000 worth of property in fires on American farms. More than 85 per cent of these fires were preventable, according to authorities.

Many of the rural youth in this state are enrolled in the Mennen 4-H Farm Safety Activity, one objective of which is to have participants check and remove fire hazards on their own and neighboring farms. During Fire Prevention Week, the 4-H'ers may make an end of the year survey to help eliminate every possible hazard as a protection to farm families and properties. Meritorious work in this activity will be recognized on county, state, sectional and national levels with medals, War Bonds, National 4-H Club Congress trips, and $200 college scholarships, respectively. A plaque also will be presented to the county reporting the most outstanding 4-H farm safety program in 1944.

Fire prevention experts report that usual causes of farm fires are defective heating and electrical equipment, chimney or brush sparks falling on inflammable roofs, spontaneous combustion of hay, carelessness in smoking and in use of matches, and improper storage of gasoline and kerosene.

Feed More

Crops will feed more people than will meat and other livestock products produced from them. An acre of land in corn would produce grain to feed a person 635 days. This amount of corn, fed to hogs, would produce enough pork to feed a person only 125 days. In addition the production of pork would require much additional labor.

PFC. ROBERT COLLEY MISSING IN ACTION

Pfc. Cooley is one of the seven grandsons whom Mr. and Mrs. Woods have in the services. Two other grandsons have been given medical discharges. They also have two sons, William, serving in the Coast Guard, and John, in the Navy.

Protect Against Grasshoppers

Farmers can protect fall-planted grain crops against serious grasshopper damage by baiting edges of stubble fields, pastures, fence rows and other grasshopper feeding and breeding grounds, the Department of Agriculture says. Fall baiting will reduce the numbers of grasshoppers and damage to crops next spring. Western and midwestern farmers can get enough grasshopper bait for their farm from their county agricultural agents, bait is supplied free by USDA.

RAMBLERS DEFEAT RED RAYDERS, OCTOBER 21

Saturday, October 21, the Charlevoix Rayders were handed their 20th straight loss by the Boyne City Ramblers. Every year for the last ten years Charlevoix has tried twice to defeat Boyne and has not succeeded. This year the boys came the closest to doing it they have for the last six years when they held Boyne to a 7-0 score on October 4th. Saturday, however, just didn't seem to be Charlevoix's day, and the Ramblers handed them a 25-7 trimming.

Boyne took the initiative in the first quarter and held it for the first three quarters. Charlevoix kicked off and Boyne received on their own 25 yard line. The Rayders held them back of their own forty for three downs and Boyne kicked to our 30. Here our offense bogged down and we were forced to kick, Boyne repeated the kick and Charlevoix again punted out of danger. The first quarter was almost exclusively a punting duel and Boyne came out on the long end.

Boyne's first touchdown came in the second quarter when a blocked kick gave them the ball on their own 30 yard line. With a series of end runs they put the ball over and made good the try for extra point.

Score 7-0

After the kickoff, Boyne again marched down the field for a touchdown, varying, end runs with straight line plunges, making the score 13-0. The half ended before either team was able to score.

In the third quarter Charlevoix began their passing attack and were on their opponents territory when an intercepted pass gave Boyne the ball. They immediately marched down the field for another touchdown. This was nearly the end of the quarter and they changed ends with Charlevoix in possession of the ball on Boyne's 42-yard line.

Score 19—0

In the beginning of the fourth quarter Boyne again blocked a punt and took advantage of it to run the score up to 25-0.

Then Charlevoix began passing in earnest, and started a drive for the enemy's goal through the air. A pass from Graves to Martin was completed and Martin went over standing up for the only Charlevoix touchdown of the game. Graves booted the extra point and the game ended with Boyne out in front 25 to 7. Next Friday the Rayders tackle East Jordan on the South Side Athletic Field, so let's see everyone there.

BROTHERS MEET IN PACIFIC AFTER THREE YEARS

Two brothers who had been separated for three years meeting somewhere in the Pacific on their Dad's birthday is something to write home about. That's just exactly what Walter Henley Jr. SOM3/c and L. A. (Bruce) Henley RDM2/c did in a recent letter to their parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Henley.

The boys, both of whom are serving in the Navy, were always on the lookout for each other but had never managed to get together. On October 11, Walter heard someone on a passing ship calling "Henley" and looking, saw his brother, Bruce. As soon as their ships docked they got together, did a lot of talking about home, the family, old friends, Charlevoix and all the things one can think of so far from home. After two hours together they asked for a longer leave and were granted it. Both went on board Walter's ship and after meeting his shipmates, spent the night lying on deck under the stars and talking.

After twenty hours together the boys parted with the hope that on Dad's birthday next year they'd be home with him to celebrate the occasion, along with a third brother, Floyd H. Henley, Fl/c, who is stationed at San Diego.

HELPED TO ESCAPE FROM YUGOSLAVIA, LT. SUTTON HOME

Shot down over Yugoslavia but getting back to his base in Italy First Lt. William R. Sutton, 25, years old, a B-24 Liberator Pilot, is now in Muskegon visiting his wife, Mrs. Audrey O. Sutton, and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Archie Sutton, after having completed 31 missions against the enemy.

Heavy flak encountered during a raid on Vienna knocked out two motors of his bomber on July 8, and the crippled plane run out of gas over Yugoslavia. Avoiding towns, invariably occupied by German troops, they bailed out near a woods, Lieutenant Sutton fractured his ankle in landing.

Natives came to their assistance and concealed them from the Germans. A woman re-set Lieutenant Sutton's ankle, and checked it by feeling the position of bones in a normal, uninjured member. Her work was so well done, army x-ray technicians said, after he reached his base, that the ankle did not need re-setting.

The Muskegon flier reported back only a week after he was missing. Yugoslavs did their best for the Americans and fed them black bread. Also they furnished a horse-drawn cart for the injured pilot guided him over a safe route, to an escape port to Italy.

On three other occasions, the Muskegon man's ship just managed to limp back on two or three motors. He kept the rip cord handle of his chute as a souvenir of his Yugoslav descent, and feels that entitles him to membership in the "Caterpillar Club."

Lieutenant Sutton entered the Army in October, 1942, and went overseas last March, to Italy where he has been awarded the Air Medal with clusters and Purple Heart decorations.

Born in Ellsworth on Sept. 14, 1919, Lieutenant Sutton went to Muskegon when about three years old. He holds a B. S. in Pharmacy degree from Ferris Institute and was a pharmacist at Hahn's drug store.

On Oct. 28, Lieutenant Sutton will report at Miami, Fla., for his next assignment.

Y., attended the wedding of Miss Frances Sheley and W. O. Robert Fochtman in Lima, O., on Sunday. The Fochtmans returned home on Monday.

The public meeting of the Charlevoix Council of Veteran's Affairs has been advanced to Thursday, October 26th, 8:00 p. m., at the City Hall in order that the public may have the opportunity of hearing Capt. Fred Randall of the State Office of Veteran's Affairs who will outline the work of the organization.

As stated in last week's issue of the Courier the work of this group is the most important post-war activity of the citizens of this community and at the present time Charlevoix County men who have already been discharged from the Service will have the help of the County Organization immediately.

The Councilors have returned from the Training Course sponsored by the State organization and will explain Charlevoix County's part in this important program.

Every citizen interested in the returning boy or girl from the Armed Services should attend this meeting.

Remember the date, October 26, 8:00 p. m., at the City Hall. Charlevoix county must see that their boys and girls are given every opportunity that can be provided.

S/Sgt. Keith Wagner writes from France with a new address and the following letter: Have seen quite a few interesting places since I've been here. Had the lucky occasion to get into Paris and, boy, did I make use of the short time there. Even though the lack of gas and electric power hamper the transportation facilities, I got to see a lot of the interesting buildings and scenes of historical interest. Of course I took in the Eiffel Tower, Notre Dame, Louvre Museum and such and also delved into some of the shops that have stood in Paris since about the time of the Revolution. Some of the scenes are beautiful and some of them aren't so nice. I was glad to have the chance to see it anyway.

H. C. (Budd) Pulsipher S2e, who is stationed at Fort Pierce, Fla., writes the following letter to his friends in Charlevoix:

I am in the amphibs here and am with the staff gunnery unit. I have been on 24 hour emergency call and I don't know from one day 'til the next what I'm going to do but they keep me busy. I am looking forward to being shipped out again soon. I don't know where it will be yet.

I have met many boys from Detroit but have never seen anyone from Charlevoix. It will be a great day when I do.

2ND LIEUTENANT WM. J. FOSTER MISSING IN ACTION

Second Lieutenant William J. Foster, 33, of the U. S. Marine Corps Reserve and veteran of three major invasions in the Pacific area, is missing in action, according to a telegram received Tuesday from A. A. Vandegrift, Lt. Gen. U.S.M.C., Commandant of the Marine Corps by his son, Carlton Foster and his parents, Postmaster and Mrs. J. M. Foster. His parents, who had not heard from him in six weeks, believe he was on the island of Guam.

This is the second casualty message Mr. and Mrs. Foster have received in less than two months. Another son, S/Sgt. Bernard J. Foster, died of injuries suffered in a plane crash at an air base in Italy, on August 25. He was serving as a gunner and radio operator on a Flying Fortress at the time and had earned the Air Medal with Oak Leaf clusters for twenty completed missions.

Lt. Foster enlisted in the Marine Corps in January, 1943, and after receiving training at Parris Island, S. C., and New River, N. C., he attended Officer's Candidate School at Quantico, Va., from where he was commissioned in August, 1943. After further training at Dunedin, Fla., he was transferred to Oceanside, Calif., from where he left for overseas duty in January, 1944. He is known to have participated in three major engagements in the Pacific war zone including the Marshall Islands, Saipan and Guam.

Two other brothers are in the service, Lt. Jack Foster is at Lake City, Fla., with the Naval Air Force and Maurice Foster, Y1/c, is stationed in the Panama Canal Zone with the Navy. A third brother, Robert, resides in Kalamazoo, and his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. John Foster live in Petoskey.

Football This Week

Just two college football games are on the card in Michigan this weekend. But the importance of the Michigan-Purdue and Michigan State-Wayne U. contests will make up for this weekend's empty schedule.

The Michigan State - Wayne game is on Friday night at the U. of D. Stadium. Both are undefeated.

Leading the list of other undefeated teams are Notre Dame, Army, Georgia Tech, Ohio State, Tulsa and Randolph Field.

Notre Dame takes on Illinois this Saturday. Army's Cadets are slated for their hardest game so far against Duke's Blue Devils. Georgia Tech meets Georgia Pre-Flight Friday night.

In the Midwest, Ohio State — which smacked Great Lakes Naval last Saturday—should be successful this weekend against Minnesota. Additional games are Wisconsin - Great Lakes, Indiana - Iowa, and Iowa Pre-Flight - Marquette. Other outstanding games this Saturday: Pennsylvania - Navy, Tulsa - Oklahoma A. & M., Randolph Field - Third Air Force, California - Washington, and Southern California - St. Mary's.

Mrs. Joseph Arvilla entertained a group of friends at her home on Friday evening. Mrs. Ralph McRae and Mrs. George LaBlance Jr. won the prizes for contract and Mrs. Robert Ashdon and Mrs. George Bergmann won the prizes for auction bridge. After the games refreshments were served at tables decorated in a Hallowe'en motif. Others present were Mrs. Harry Stewart, Mrs. Max Novak, Mrs. Jack Genessle and Mrs. Herbert Campbell.

Close To The Folks At Home

A Phone Call, A Wire, A Postage Stamp

Your congressman is no further from you than a Phone Call, a Wire, or a Letter. Fred Bradley has given "personal service" to hundreds in his district whenever he has been called upon.

We know of no congressman who keeps as close touch with the "folks back home" as does Congressman Bradley. His weekly News Letter "This Week In Washington" is read by thousands of his constituents in the eleventh district and his weekly broadcasts over the Soo and Menominee stations give the people of this district a continual and close contact with their representative. This effort takes a good deal of time and considerable expense, but is in keeping with Congressman Bradley's policy of close contact with you.

Capitalist ...AMERICAN STYLE

He's in business for himself, this kid.

He invests his own money in his newspapers because he has confidence in his own ability to sell them at a profit.

He has learned by experience that business grows through hard work, salesmanship and thrift.

He gets plenty of hard knocks—but profits by them.

He knows what competition means—and has learned to meet it.

He uses his wits.

He gets ahead.

He is capitalist, laborer and consumer combined.

He is typically American.

Multiply this boy by millions—and you'll see what makes America tick.

We're all capitalists in America. We don't wear cut-away coats and plug hats. We wear overalls—work in our shirt sleeves.

We carry life insurance, or have savings accounts, or hold war bonds; or own farms, garages, fruit stands, drug stores, or other businesses—large and small. And as capitalists we are all interested in a fair return on our money.

All of us labor for a living. And as laborers we are all interested in making as much money as possible by producing more goods and services for more people.

At the same time we are all consumers. We buy food, clothing, shelter, luxuries. And as consumers we are interested in fair prices, honest values, good service.

Like the newsboy, each one of us is a combination of capitalist, laborer and consumer

Each of us is free to take his own future in his own hands—and pull himself up by his bootstraps. That is the grand American privilege. It makes newsboys into business men—shop workers into industrial leaders and successful farmers out of chore boys.

There are no restrictions on ability in America—and there must be none.

For as business, industry and agriculture grow in this country, more jobs are created. More people benefit. More men, starting at the bottom, reach the top. New products are made. Production goes up. Prosperity follows. Higher standards of living are provided for more people. A desire for still better things is created.

That's progress. That's free enterprise. That's AMERICA.

The Army-Navy E flag waves over seven Republic plants and the Maritime M floats over the Cleveland District plant.

From where I sit ... by Joe Marsh

As American as Huckleberry Finn

About the best-read books in our town are the works of Mark Twain—who wrote Tom Sawyer and Huck Finn and all those other lovable, undying stories.

And I think it's because he's the most American of all our writers. He understood his fellow man—and loved them as he loved all humanity.

You may remember what he said of Tolerance and Freedom—those principles so basic to our way of life. Mark Twain believed in them, of course. He fought for them. But he cautioned: "Never let tolerance become indifference, never let freedom become license."

From where I sit, that's timely wisdom for a troubled world—whether it applies to international politics, or to a man's right to enjoy a friendly glass of beer occasionally.

For tolerance—respect for the other fellow's rights—is important not just in the big things, but in the little human everyday things, too.

THE OLD JUDGE SAYS...

"We can't argue with the Judge on that point, can we Mabel? It's not fair to penalize the many for the actions of the few."

"That, folks, is exactly what we would be doing in this country if we ever voted for prohibition again. Authorities who have made a careful study of the problem, report that only about 5% of those who drink abuse the privilege occasionally... 95% drink sensibly.' Probably doesn't compare with the number of folks who overeat and do other things to excess. Prohibition certainly isn't the answer. It's not that simple. We had nearly 14 years proof of that, didn't we?

"The real answer is education and better control. In fact, the responsible members of the distilling industry are working constantly toward that end. They don't want anybody to abuse the use of their product any more than the three of us do."

"If everybody would take that sensible attitude, Judge, and cooperate as more and more are now doing, we'd be a lot better off a lot quicker."

We are high [illegible] and cargo on [illegible] and wounded personnel returning. It is an impressive sight to watch the wounded boys get aboard when they know that they are going home.

I hope to run into some of the boys from home one of these days. Recently I was on Saipan but didn't have time to look up the boys I know are there. Hope to see them the next time I'm out that way.

Major and Mrs. J. Sidorowicz have received word from their son, Sgt. Ted Sidorowicz that he is now in France with a bombardment squadron after being stationed in England for six months. He writes that he has traveled through many battle areas and towns and villages that have been completely destroyed by bombs and shells. He also states that at last his French is doing him some good for he has acted as interpreter on several occasions. He tells of being in Paris three times, but always in line of duty.

Pvt. Robert J. Plumm, radio operator, son of Mr. and Mrs. Forrest E. Plumm is a member of the 350th Infantry Regiment, one of the 88th Infantry Division units which paced Lt. General Mark W. Clark's Fifth Army smash from the Garigliano to north of the Arno River in Italy.

Men of the 350th, hardened mountain fighters, went into action in early March and during the drive up the peninsula, skipped cities and towns to capture innumerable strategic heights which paved the way for advance of other Fifth Army units.

Cpl. Claude Mitchell, Camp Ellis, Ill., writes: I'm ward master here at the Station Hospital and have been for ten months. It's not what I'd like but someone has to do it and it might as well be me. At the present we have quite a few men who have had overseas duty. This is a 33-bed ward and it is filled up most of the time. I'm getting so I enjoy taking care of the sick although at first it got me down because I had to play the part of a nurse and call it fighting in the army. But when you see these boys who aren't able to do anything you begin to feel sorry for them and will do anything for them. I probably won't get a chance to do overseas duty, but I'll always be glad to take care of a buddy when he comes back.

Would someone please send me Andrew C. Johnson's address? My address is: 1642 S. U. T-5519 Station Hospital, Camp Ellis, Ill.

Paul Gatliff MM2c, of the Navy writes the following from the west coast: I am on a troop transport and can say it is good duty. She is a new ship and one of the biggest transports built in this war. She is over 640 feet long and is all air conditioned, and is really good to see.

I've made a couple advancements in rating since I last wrote. I'm now machinist mate, second class, and like the work much better.

Pfc. Ralph Hofman writes the following from somewhere in France with the infantry: Have received several copies of the paper and want to thank you and the CSO for sending it. I hear you had a good summer at home. I'd sure like to be back there and have a good place to sleep. These foxholes are rather uncomfortable. Have been in France for sometime and where the countryside isn't blown up, it's as nice as any place.

Clair S. Webster S1c (QM), writes from Houston, Tex.: Having completed our training ashore our crew is here awaiting our ship. She will be commissioned soon and then she will be strictly our baby.

This is prtty nice country and the people treat us very well. They do a lot of fishing but it can't compete with what we have at home.

My cousin, Dick Fochtman, is stationed near here but we haven't made connections yet.

How is the deer herd out near Waller's? With the Bergmanns, Websters and a few other individuals gone, a nice herd should result.

Clifford (Tip) Riley, of the Navy, writes the following:

While we are laying up in drydock here in Galveston, Texas I will try and put across to you just how much it means to get the paper from the old home town.

Perhaps few of the people in Charlevoix have ever heard of an LSM, but that is what I am on. Rumor has it that it is what the Navy had up it's sleeve and called a secret weapon. It is similar to an LST in that it carries tanks and their crews, but it is about 75 feet shorter and not quite so broad. They are a rugged ship (if you want to call them that) and can really take it. We picked ours up at Chicago and took it down the Mississippi to New Orleans and then across to Galveston and here we still are, waiting.

[illegible] is quite a lake as far as size goes, but when it comes to [illegible] up our northern Michigan lakes any time, I would like to be[illegible] on the quiet cool land-locked pool [illegible] shores on Lake [illegible] have to [illegible] time. For by the looks of things it will be [illegible] before I get home again.

Well, I've rambled on long enough, so will close for now. Keep the paper coming for it really makes a fellow feel good to know that the folks back home think about him and it relieves the strain of loneliness and home sickness that all of us get at times. Thanks again to you and the CSO for sending the paper, and I will try to repay you by doing my part in the trust you placed in me. The best of luck to you and all the gang back there from one of the boys in blue.

Sgt. David Matchett returned to Fort McClellan, Ala., left on Tuesday after spending a week with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Matchett.

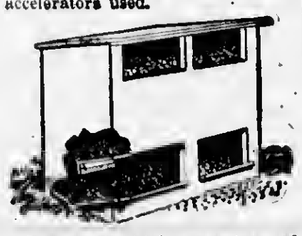
Compost Bin for Fertilizer

A COMPOST bin is an excellent means of obtaining high concentrate fertilizer for garden use and is particularly valuable in truck-farming operations. The bin illustrated below has two sections, each with an opening at the top and bottom to provide for easy and thorough mixing of old and new material, and the ammonia decay accelerators used.



Due to the high percentage of concentrated decay-producing fungi in a compost bin, a very durable material must be used in its construction. A lining of asbestos cement building board will resist the action of the fungi and add many years to the life of the bin. In addition, being of mineral composition, this material is fireproof and will confine the flames should spontaneous ignition occur.

MICHIGAN MIRROR

At the western edge of Michigan's copper country — that once fabulous land of overnight mining booms, fantastic profits and expanding settlements — is a dot on the map known as Silver City.

It was at Silver City, just a few miles west of Ontanogan on Lake Superior, that a group of newspaper writers began a two day "exploration" of Michigan's Porcupine mountain area. A few tourist cabins and a tavern are all that is left to Silver City where miners in 1875 extracted silver from veins in rock along the Iron river, leading to real estate speculation and the subdividing of land for a town.

Silver City is headed for new prominence. It is the entrance to the largest unbroken tract of virgin hardwood timber left in the United States. And what is more important, it is gateway to a recreational area and timber museum comprising 42,000 acres, soon to be owned by the State of Michigan through action of the 1944 state legislature.

Unique from any other tract in Michigan, here is a true wilderness.

In your easy chair, try imagining a vast forest of maple, birch, basswood, hemlock, and white pine —just to mention a few—through which you tramp for hours without once seeing a public road or crossing.

Imagine that you are hiking to Mirror lake in the heart of this forest. You follow an old wagon trail for five miles from Quigley's lumber camp to the abandoned White Pine extension mine. It has rained recently. The trail is sloggy.

You pause to inspect a ghost mining camp of rotting leg cabins and shambles. Then you pick up a new trail going northerly. When the lug marks of a tractor bulldozer appear on the ground, the guide recalls how an army bomber crashed near Mirror lake late last March. All passengers had parachuted to safety.

Was this a temporary path to the bomber? If so, where was the Mirror lake trail? Nobody knows.

No one has a map. You are relying entirely on the knowledge of the guide, who informs you that he had never been in that territory before and was relying solely upon second-hand information.

Discovery of a trail, just a red away, prompts you to conclude that the bulldozer was slashing a new path into the woods. But strangely enough, your newly discovered path is an old trail. Impression of wagon wheels can be traced here and there. Legs have fallen. They were decaying with age.

Then someone detects a blaze mark on a tree. The blaze recurs at intervals, and you have the comforting thought that someone had left signs along the path which falling leaves and logs could not readily obscure.

Following an old blazed trail through a virgin forest is adventure with capital A. But it is also hard work. At times you must literally climb over the trunk of a huge tree that had been uprooted by a storm and which lay untouched after it had crashed to the ground.

Twice the winding trail seemed to vanish. Other members of your party fan out until someone locates it.

Yes, it is a trail all right. But you notice something odd — your compass indicates clearly you are traveling southwest. You had set the arrow on your paratrooper's wrist-watch compass at 330 degrees, a few points west of north.

Finally about 2:30 p. m., after more than four hours on the trail, your party stops for consultation. Rays of golden sunlight filter through the dense foliage. Hours of daylight are limited. And not carrying a pack with food and a sleeping bag or blankets, you realize that you cannot reach Mirror lake and also return before sundown to the station wagon left at Quigley's lumber camp a good seven miles away.

Yes, you have been beaten by the wilderness!

The above incident really DID happen.

While we waited for the guide to rejoin us, four newspapermen built a fire in a hollow near the trail. Frankfurters, wrapped in bacon, soon became steaming, appetizing "pigs in blankets." That cheese sandwich prepared by the restaurant girl at Ewen suddenly became a delectable titbit. And cold water, dipped from a nearby stream, was like sweet nectar itself.

We lounged on the ground, joking about how we had been "lost" in the Porcupines — at least to the extent of having missed Mirror lake. At that moment it was a keen disappointment, for cameras were loaded with natural color film and we were anticipating scenic delights to record at Mirror lake, our destination.

On the previous day we had climbed the Porcupine mountain onto the Lake of the Clouds. Actually the mountain consists of a huge escarpment with black rocky peak.

Allies Reduce Nazi Strongholds; U.S. Plans Landings in China; Shape Postwar Peace Machinery

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysis and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

As British Tommie leans against one of concrete anti-tank obstacles on Siegfried line to write letter home, cow browses in background.

EUROPE:
Batter Strong Points

Historically famous as the center of Charlemagne's ancient empire, and busy industrial city of 165,000 population in recent times, Aachen became the first big metropolis to feel the full weight of big U. S. guns as its garrison of 1,500 defied an ultimatum to surrender, preferring to fight from the charred rubble.

As the U. S. 1st army smashed Aachen to close on a communications hub with broad highways radiating into the Rhineland, 3rd army troops pressed their drive against strongpoints guarding the old French fortress city of Metz, key to the coal-laden Saar basin to the east.

Before Metz, action focused on Fort Driant, long underground stronghold, whose flanks were covered from the big guns of nearby German fortifications. As massed U. S. artillery and bombing planes blasted out tangled barbed wire and laid down a protecting screen of fire, U. S. infantrymen fought their way into the outer approaches of Fort Driant, grappling at close quarters with fanatical enemy troops, who occasionally emerged from their underground quarters in an attempt to check the doughboys' penetrations.

Despite heavy downpours, which mired the terrain, other 3rd army troops hammered forward below Metz, while farther to the south, 7th army units pressed forward slowly onto the foothills of the broad Belfort Gap between the towering Vosges mountains and Swiss Alps leading into Bavaria.

Strong, persistent Canadian attacks whittled down German holdings in southwestern Holland, while in the northeastern section of the country the British turned back Nazi counterattacks against their long, arhead extending to Arnhem.

Even as Allied bombardment increased in tempo, fanatical German garrisons held out in the French channel ports, seeking to deny their use as U. S. and British supply centers.

Squeeze East Prussia

Fierce fighting raged along the meandering Russian front, with the Reds striving to develop a pincer movement on East Prussia, and also driving northward into Hungary deep in the Balkans.

In smashing at East Prussia, where the Nazis held strong defense positions in the heavily wooded lake country, the Reds marshalled 1,000,000 men. In an effort to unsettle the Russians' drive on the province from the south, the Nazis counterattacked strongly at the Narew river in bordering Poland.

With Russian troops 50 miles from Budapest, Hungarian and German forces braced for a stand along the Tisza river, last formidable natural defense line before the capital. Nazi resistance also stiffened to the south in Yugoslavia after the Russian tide swept over the northeastern border of the country.

Old Battle-Ground

At the junction of the Sava and Danube rivers in Yugoslovia, Belgrade has seen more battles than perhaps any other capital city of Europe.

Won and lost successively by Illyrians, Celts, Romans, Huns, Goths and Greeks, fought over by Christian and Mohammedan, held by the Turks for 300 years, captured by Bulgarians, Hungarians and Austrians, Belgrade finally emerged as master of her own destiny when Serbia achieved independence.

PACIFIC:
China Goal

"We must make landings on the China coast in order to secure a land mass close enough to the Japanese empire to enable us to employ the air forces which will be at our disposal."

Thus spoke Adm. Chester W. Nimitz, commander of Allied forces in the Pacific, in a press conference in which he also divulged that current U. S. operations in the Philippine area were handicapped by the blustering typhoons extending from June through December.

Referring to the projected Chinese coastal campaign, Admiral Nimitz said: "To the extent that the Japanese improve their situation in China, our task will become more difficult. But when we have the means to do it, we will get the bases . . . we want."

POSTWAR SECURITY:
'Big Four' Plan

Cooperation of the U. S., Britain, Russia, China and later France in the maintenance of world peace after the war was outlined in a proposed charter drawn by representatives of the "Big Four" after weeks of discussion in the forested Dumbarton Oaks estate at Washington, D. C.

Under the plan, in which other United Nations would form an advisory assembly, the "Big Four" and later France would be entrusted with the responsibility of establishing stability through peaceful methods or force, if necessary.

To achieve peaceful settlement of disputes, the Dumbarton Oaks conferees envisioned an international court of justice, while they provided for the use of force in suppressing aggressive powers by the formulation of a military staff to be headed by their chiefs of staff.

Fully cognizant that settled business conditions contribute greatly toward stability, the "Big Four" proposed the formation of an economic and social council.

Chief administrative officer of the new postwar security organization, which would be known as the "United Nations," would be a secretary-general, appointed by the major powers and six other members of the governing council, to be named from the advisory assembly.

Following conclusion of the Dumbarton Oaks confab, Secretary of State Hull declared: "The road to the establishment of an international organization capable of effectively maintaining international peace and security will be long. But we cannot hope to attain so great an objective without constant effort and unfailing determination of this war will not be in vain. . . ."

DRAFT:
Reclassification

"Work or fight" pressure was taken off men in the 38 to 45 age group under a Selective Service ruling placing them in class 4-A, formerly reserved for those over 45.

Because the army and navy have not made any calls for limited service registrants since June, class 1-A (L) was abolished, with individuals in that category to be deferred under different classifications.

Another Selective Service ruling placing all honorably discharged servicemen in 1-C will prevent their re-induction, since that classification technically keeps them in the armed forces.

MISCELLANY

Plankton, microscopic plant and animal life eaten by fish, thrives on commercial fertilizer applied to lakes and ponds. Fish that consume plankton so nourished are bigger, tastier, more abundant, and gamer than those that eat only the usual plankton found in ordinary unfertilized waters. Yield of trout is increased from 4 pounds per acre of water to 120 pounds.

FARM MACHINERY:
Pinch to Persist

Despite an overall increase in the production of farm machinery for the year ending June 30, 1945, supply will not begin to meet demand, but ample quantities of spare parts again will be available to service old equipment.

In spite of the overall increase, production of different machinery will be spotty, with such equipment as corn pickers and combines probably turned out at 150 per cent of the 1940 level, while tractors may be held to 55 to 60 per cent.

Although manpower shortages present a major difficulty to the industry, production bottlenecks have developed in magnetoes, precision bearings, castings, other foundry products, and chains. Because of the long period required to gear up plants for larger output, an end to the European war or any increase in quotas would not result in any immediate boost in production, trade circles said.

SURPLUS LAND:
Disposal Waits

Because of the need of the new surplus war goods disposal agency to look into its task and formulate regulations governing purchases, there may be a delay of another 00 days before sales of surplus land are resumed.

Sales of such land were halted 60 days ago, when congress was considering legislation giving former owners preference in repurchasing realty, and officials decided to wait so that such owners would receive every advantage when the new law was passed.

Meanwhile, the Reconstruction Finance Corporation has suspended negotiations for sales of oil government war plants costing over $5,000,000 until congress establishes definite policies on such transactions. Under the current law, congress must be given 30 days notice before such plants are sold, and the RFC intends to wait to learn of the legislators' reaction to certain sales proposals.

Son of former tenant farmers, and owner of land, equipment and live stock, 20-year-old Elton Ellison of Ralls, Texas, was chosen the 1944 star farmer of the U. S. at the 17th annual convention of the Future Farmers of America.

Ellison, who was married last July, recently answered his army call, and now is stationed at Camp Roberts, Calif.

WHISKY:
Replenish Supply

Taking full advantage of permission to use their capacities for manufacturing beverage spirits during August after 22 months of industrial alcohol production for the war effort, 129 distilleries plus some commercial alcohol plants turned out 50,000,000 gallons, the treasury reported.

Representing a third of normal annual production, the output included 13,584,910 gallons of whisky; 201,705 of rum; 897,221 of gin, and 367,563 of brandy. In addition, 23,033,499 gallons of spirits were produced in distilleries and 11,514,009 gallons of alcohol in industrial alcohol plants.

During August, the treasury reported, 9,783,894 gallons of whisky, rum, gin, brandy and other spirits were withdrawn from bonded warehouses compared with 7,213,521 gallons last year.

FOOD:
Less Meat, Butter

Civilians can look forward to less meat and butter during the remainder of 1944, with meat being of generally lower quality, the Department of Agriculture reported.

Other food supplies will remain in good supply, the USDA said, with seasonal increases in poultry and citrus fruits. Fresh vegetables, fluid milk, eggs and grain products will be available in large amounts.

Despite heavy wartime pressures, the USDA said, total food costs have increased only 47 per cent since 1939, with one-half recorded before Pearl Harbor. Meat prices were up 33 per cent; cereals and bakery products 16 per cent; fresh fruits and vegetables 100 per cent, and canned fruits and vegetables 41 per cent.

As a result of declining hog slaughter, which totaled 3,520,588 for the smallest volume since August, 1942, most pork cuts were scarcer in September.

Although supplies of top grade meats were small, heavy marketings of unfinished cattle resulted in abundant stocks of low-grade beef. Slaughter of 1,310,310 cattle in September was the second highest for any month on record, being only topped by August's 1,339,198. At 2,002,641 head, sheep slaughter showed a seasonal increase, but was lowest for September in three years.

RAIL INCOME

Class I railroads of the United States in August, 1944, had an estimated net income, after interest and rentals of $63,000,000.

In the first eight months of 1944 they had an estimated net income, after interest and rentals, of $451,000,000.

Class I railroads in the first eight months of this year had a net railway operating income, before interest and rentals, of $758,574,913 compared with $972,297,169 in the same period of 1943.

last week. A few of our people have composed a short poem. We put them on our bulletin board.

The Study Shop

We are glad Hot Lunches are starting today. Fourteen of us are eating this week. Six are signed up to drink milk at recess.

Charls Rose is absent while having his tonsils removed. We hope he comes back soon, well and strong.

Betty Kerr went to Traverse City Monday to have her eyes examined.

Friday we went for a walk through the park. We found many plants to plant in our terrarium. We were pleased Monday to see the moisture collected on the top glass and "Raining" on the plants.

Mrs. Scott and Mrs. Swanson visited our room last week.

5th Grade

Helen Moore is in the hospital with appendicitis.

The fifth grade made Hallowe'en posters Wednesday. A great many children have been out of school with chickenpox.

Quite a few fifth graders have taken advantage of the hot lunch.

Both boys and girls in the fifth grades are interested in joining either the Service Squad or Safety Patrol.

6th Grade

We have learned the words to the Star Spangled Banner and can sing it without our books. We are now learning America.

In English class we are learning or trying to put into practice everyday habits and rules of courtesy. We are finding it very pleasant to use polite and courteous to our classmates and companions.

Our Hallowe'en posters are very pretty. We took Jim Bowman, Verle Anderson and Beverly Ann have finished theirs.

Industrial Arts Dept.

We wish to thank C. S. Webster of the Dexter Boat Co. for the nice load of salvaged lumber which we received.

The work is progressing nicely in the shop. The boys have completed several neat looking metal projects and a few woodwork projects. The boys in the drawing room have completed a number of machine drawing parts.

We have an exhibit in the show case at the present time.

The Sophomore English classes are reading "The Prisoner of Chillon" by Lord Byron and "Sohrab and Rustum" by Matthew Arnold.

The English I. classes are working with the subject of outlining.

In Speech class the students have been giving 2-3 minute talks with the purpose of providing entertainment for the audience. This week the topics are chosen from the standpoint of giving information.

The Home Economics classes are progressing about as planned. This week will finish sample exams, and next week seventh clothing hopes to begin first garments—aprons. The machines are in good repair and several have been practice stitching. Eighth grade clothing have finished the appropriate clothing and are ready for a unit test this week as a checkup for accomplished gains in knowledge and skills. Advanced clothing have been working strenuously on clothing budgets and are taking inventory of their own wardrobes.

All first year 4-H clubs have their first project well along. Towelling is hard to get, so those waiting for their own material are working on Red Cross material. 2nd year 4-H are about ready to begin their first garments, and are practicing flat fell seams. Girls in 3rd and 6th year 4-H have plans made for their projects.

They have been waiting for leader's meeting to help in decision as yard goods is hard to get.

American History

Students are recognizing the causes that led to the American Revolution. Great Britain wanted to establish a stronger hold on all colonies but the original thirteen colonies along the Atlantic coast declined to submit. Various means were used by colonial and representatives to iron out differences but the drift toward actual warfare continued.

World History

The city states of Greece particularly Sparta and Athens emphasized more citizens dealing with the government. This appeared to be democratic, but many slaves had no part in the governing procedure at all.

Many modern ideas in construction have their origin in the minds of the Athenians. Three basic columns, the Doric, the Ionic, and the Corinthian were perfected by the Athenians.

Mancelona Game

The Red Raiders took another defeat on the chin by a fast-stepping Mancelona aggregation to the tune of 13-0. Charlevoix did not look like the same team that beat Mancelona on a one-sided affair during the first of the season. The Charlevoix boys were pretty discouraged to see their own Alma Mater played off their feet after holding down the powerful Boyne City team, but it was one of those days and we were just outplayed from the time the first whistle was blown to the last.

Co-Captain Novotny elected to receive the ball, came down to Sharer who muffed it on his own 20 and Graves picked it up, was tackled hard on his 5. A fumble by Martin on the 5 gave the ball to Mancelona. The Red Ryders held, by displaying an air-tight defense and Graves kicked out of danger to Mancelona on the 50. The fire works started and Mancelona's aerial attack started to function and pulverized the Ryders 6-2-2-1 pass defense, bringing Mancelona their 1st 6 points, the try for the extra point blocked.

The second quarter showed no change in the score, but still the Ryders were being outplayed. The line-up was shaken up considerably at the start of the second half and things began to function for the Ryders, but not for long, after a series of 1st downs bringing the ball down to Mancelona's 20-yard stripe, the ball was lost on downs and Mancelona started on another rampage, giving them 7 points and a score of 13-0. Martin intercepted Mancelona's pass, but lost the ball again on Mancelona's 15 yard line ending the game.

The conference had two big upsets, with Boyne City going down to defeat at the hands of East Jordan 26-6, thus putting East Jordan in 1st place and Mancelona, Boyne City and Charlevoix tied for third.

WHY

Thoughtful Voters of Michigan Who are Interested in Good Government and Responsible State Rule Will Vote "NO" on Proposal No. 4 on Nov. 7.

BECAUSE

1. This Amendment DOES concern the whole state, not Wayne alone, as its sponsors contend. It is aimed at BREAKING DOWN local government. Attempts to pass a similar amendment applying to all counties were heavily defeated in 1931 and 1936. Then, two years ago the effort to take one county at a time began. Again they failed, but the defenders of local government must now rally to decisively reject this proposal for all time.

2. Proposal No. 4 would destroy the two-party system of government, as American as the Liberty Bell, by substituting "nonpartisan" candidates for county offices, all of whom would be elected AT LARGE and responsible to no group!

3. Detroit's present city and legislative officials, now elected AT LARGE, have been notoriously inefficient and corrupt. In grand jury actions one-third of the city council, the MAYOR and a host of police officers were indicted and convicted! The majority of Detroit state legislators in 1944 were indicted and convicted of graft!

4. By giving two-thirds control to Detroit, Proposal No. 4 would destroy home rule for 11 cities and 18 townships in Wayne county. Detroit's debt has soared over 1,000 per cent since 1919; Wayne county's debt, due to tariffy government, has decreased 13 per cent!

That's why the Michigan Institute for Local Government and the Committee for Representative Government join in urging you to Vote "NO" Proposal No. 4

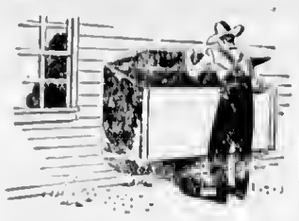
Poultry House Feeder

TO CUT down on extra steps and unnecessary work, why not build feeders for the poultry house that can be filled from the outside? This will eliminate carrying feed into the house and struggling with doors. Also, the feeders can be built extra large, so that th y do not have to be filled so frequently.

The construction of the storage bin for this type of feeder is an easy job with the materials now available. A simple framework can be built of scrap lumber heavy enough to support the weight of the grain. Nail to this sheets of one of the panel type building boards, preferably asbestos cement board, since it is ratproof and weatherproof.



Cut the necessary openings for feed chutes and fasten the bin securely to the building. If the bin is very large, it may be necessary to use diagonal braces from the outer edge of the bottom of the box to the building wall. Provide the feeder with a hinged top that can be locked back against the wall to hold it open while filling.

proval of state authorities, but the conservation commission has acted to protect interests of operators who strike oil near shorelines and who want no rivals to operate under waters opposite their holdings.

Expected approval by the conservation commission this week of auction of oil and gas lease rights on approximately 20,000 acres of state-owned lands, the sale to be held November 3, will lift the total acreage leased this year well above the 1943 figure.

To date, 195,112 acres have been leased for oil and gas exploration and development; the 1943 total was 195,819 acres.

In excess of a million 1945 fishing licenses and a million fish law digests are being printed now for early distribution by the conservation department.

A total of 725,000 resident fishing licenses — 25,000 more than were printed for 1944 — has been ordered, together with 125,000 temporary nonresident, 100,000 annual nonresident, and 100,000 wife nonresident licenses.

Distribution of licenses to dealers will be made next month.

Although the conservation department will offer 64,000-odd acres of upper peninsula lands at auction late this month and next, it emphasizes again that returning veterans should not attempt to establish themselves as farmers or stockmen on such soils.

In fact, cheap land in northern counties that will provide a living for returning veterans is practically non-existent, the department warns.

Average price paid for tax-reverted lands offered at auction by the department in 1944 has been around $4. The department sells only such lands as do not fit into its land-use programs — state forests, game areas and the like.

Conservation department game men will be stationed at principal downstate game areas each week end during the pheasant season, which ends November 5, to check hunter success and to gather data about game area use by hunters.

Seventeen forest fires during the four-week period ending October 15 burned 249 acres, according to the conservation department. Fires to date in 1944 total 1,183, have burned 14,643 acres.

How to keep a house from catching cold!

ONE WAY to keep a house from getting cold is by weatherstripping all doors and windows. Closing up the cracks that let cold in—and heat out.

There is going to be some shortage of coal delivered to homes this winter. Not because less coal is being mined. It is estimated that 29 millions more tons of bituminous coal will be mined this year than last—with fewer men. Quite a tribute to mine owners and miners alike!

There are adequate rail facilities for hauling the coal to your city. But certain grades of coal are going to be greatly in demand for war production. And your coal dealer is handicapped by a shortage of manpower, trucks and tires. So be patient with him.

Little, common-sense precautions can make your coal pile last 10% longer—and save that much on your fuel bill.

Such things as weatherstripping, cleaning the heating system, closing off unused rooms, firing carefully, and drawing your shades at night can help to keep your family snug and warm.

One of the biggest jobs of the C & O Lines is hauling coal from the mines along its routes, so we're in a position to understand the problem, and to know how essential coal is these days.

WAR FUND DRIVE IN FINAL WEEK

East Jordan is the first district of Charlevoix county to report reaching or passing its quota in the National War Fund Drive. With a quota of $1016, L. B. Carr, chairman, reports total collections to date of around $1500, with additional pledges still to be added. Fine public response coupled with good city organization gives East Jordan this honor.

The picture is not as pretty in the rest of the county, although Boyne City will meet their quota with less than $200 to be raised of their quota of $1560. Rev. J. M. DeVinney and his workers will see to that.

Beaver Island and many of the townships are yet to be heard from Benver Island was the first to go over the top last year and not much fear is felt regarding the final outcome, although they got away to a late start this year.

The rural areas can fill quotas just as soon as they forget this is no 'one dollar matter'. One worker reports making 37 calls and collecting only $18, and that is hardly wages for the time spent in making calls in sparsely settled sections. This is not a matter for the townspeople, it is everybody's duty. Just as many suburban boys benefit from the fund in recreation and entertainment as the urbanites. Last year Charlevoix district fell short of the goal by $700. This year we have $400 less to raise and lets make it. We need $725 more to reach our $2325 goal.

There will be no house-to-house canvas this year. Donors are requested to leave contributions at either bank. Businessmen will be solicited and letters have gone out to a great many of our summer people, who are responding generously.

LOCAL BOY MARRIES IN LIMA, OHIO

In an impressive ceremony solemnized at 3:30 o'clock, Sunday afternoon, October 21, in the Trinity Methodist chapel, Lima, O., Miss Frances Irene Sheley became the bride of Warrant Officer Robert C. Fochtman, U. S. Army Air Corps, son of Mr. and Mrs. Angus L. Fochtman, of Charlevoix. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Eva Sheley, of Wapakoneta, O., and Nick Sheley, of Spencerville, O.

Baskets of autumn flowers and candelabra holding white tapers were placed on either side of the chancel for the single ring ceremony read by the Rev. J. Ira Jones. Miss Lucille Eddie played a group of piano selections which included Schubert's "Ave Maria" and "O Perfect Love". The traditional wedding marches were used at the entrance and departure of the bridal party.

The attendants were First Sergeant and Mrs. John M. Keirns, of Greenville, S. C.

The bride was attired in a cocoa brown wool gabardine suit with autumn gold hat and brown circular veil. Her accessories were in gold and brown and her only ornament was a wide gold antique carved bracelet which belonged to her grandmother, the late Mrs. Josephine Wright. She wore a lavender orchid tied with gold ribbons.

The couple left for a trip through Michigan and Wisconsin after which they will go to Malden, Mo., where W. O. Fochtman is stationed at the Malden Army Air Base. The bride wore her brown suit and beige topcoat for traveling.

The bride is a graduate of the Spencerville high school and until recently was employed in the Lima offices of the City Loan and Savings company. The bridegroom is a graduate of the Charlevoix high school and before entering the service in 1939, was employed with the Charlevoix Oil company. He recently returned to this country after 28 months in the South Pacific, and is the holder of the Bronze Star award for his participation in several major battles.

Among the out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Angus L. Fochtman, and son, William, of Charlevoix, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Riggle, of Lansing, and Sgt. Edward Fochtman, of Buffalo, N. Y.

A PLEA TO FARMERS APPLIES TO EVERYONE

To Farmer Friends in Charlevoix County:

I am writing this letter to my friends, the liberal and clean, straight-thinking farm folks of Charlevoix county.

Folks—I have lived with, or worked with, or worked for, farm folks nearly all my life. I love their way of life. My farmer friends, a great United War Fund drive is now in progress. Charlevoix county has a definite quota of $8,200 to raise. Last year our county fell short of raising our quota by $2000. This year the cities of Charlevoix, Boyne City and East Jordan are raising their portions nicely, but the townships are lagging. I am "Regusted", as Andy says, because I hear folks on the street say that farmers out in these townships are not responding as well as the town folks. I believe if that is true, it is because farmers do not know the facts in the case. Farmers DO give most unselfishly.

The twenty-three Allied Agencies, including our National Agencies, are depending upon us all to help now when that help is most needed. If there is any one class of people who know most what it means to save and cherish human life, it is farmers themselves.

Because I am hurt deeply when I hear folks say farmers won't give at this terribly critical time, I am issuing this friendly challenge:

I'll bet all that I am enjoying and loving and living for in life, that before November 1st the farmer folks of Charlevoix county will give their ten, fifteen, twenty, or twenty-five dollars each, just as readily and loyally as their town friends do. Farmers have a beautiful pride in their profession. Of course they will give! I have found them two-fisted in their pocketbook ability to fight and give for their country.

So, I'm betting on the farmers. Each of the three banks in the county is receiving funds to bring our county quota up where it speaks eloquently. The Railroad Office in Boyne City receives funds too. If you have already given, will you kindly reconsider your contribution? This money is urgently needed for aid to the suffering peoples of Greece, Italy, Holland, Belgium, France and others. Kindly leave the funds at your nearest bank.

With only pride in my heart for Charlevoix county farmers.

EMERSON G. HULL DIES AT AGE 52

Emerson G. Hull, 52, died at his home early Thursday morning following ten months of ill health.

Mr. Hull was born in Ogdensburg, N. Y., on January 22, 1892, and came to Charlevoix with his parents a year later. He has since made his home here. On August 15, 1917, he married Lillian Engstrom.

He was a member of the Masonic lodge of Kenwood, Ill. At various times he has served with the maritime service on the Great Lakes.

Surviving are: his wife; one son, Richard, coxswain, serving with the navy in the Pacific area; three daughters, Mrs. Kenneth McKay, Mrs. Robert Miller and Mrs. Joseph Koboski, all of Charlevoix; and three grandchildren.

Funeral services with Masonic rites were held at the See Funeral Home at 2:30 o'clock, Saturday afternoon. Interment was made at the Brookside cemetery.

BIBLE MEDITATION LEAGUE TO HAVE SPEAKER ON THURSDAY

The Rev. B. Francis Glenn, of the Bible Meditation League, will speak at the Baptist church at 8 o'clock, Thursday evening, November 2, on the topic, "Christ and Servicemen". Through his work in the Meditation league which distributes Bibles, testaments and reading material to the men in the services, Rev. Glenn can speak with authority on religion and servicemen. He will also show motion pictures of the Invasion of Europe and the Liberation of Paris. The Rev. Maurice Peterson extends an invitation to the public to attend. No admission will be charged.

Veteran's Council Plans County-Wide Organization

At a meeting held last Thursday evening at the City Hall, the Charlevoix Council of Veteran's Affairs, in conjunction with other veteran's organizations of the county formulated plans for a County wide organization.

After an interesting talk by Capt. Fred Randall of the State Office of Veterans Affairs and reports given by Councilors who had returned from preliminary instructions at Pine Lake Camp, Doster, Mich., it was decided that with the magnitude of work coming under the scope of an organization of this kind, it would be necessary to have employed a full time Councilor for the County at large.

The meeting was well attended with representative groups from Boyne City and East Jordan. Many questions were discussed and upon motion it was agreed to have a County meeting, November 10th, 8:00 p. m., at the American Legion Hall, East Jordan, where an Executive Board would be elected to place the issue before the County Supervisors and the various City Councils.

ELECTION DAY NEXT TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 7TH

Election days of old were days of shouting, bonfires and foolish bets. We took the ballot for granted along with our many other American privileges. Our enemies have shown us that we can take nothing for granted. We are paying in blood and dollars for what we consider one of our casual rights—and the price is high! In all the history of the world, there has never been such a bitter, cruel and pointed lesson.

"My vote won't make much difference in a big election," you say. In the election of 1884, New York state made the decision between Cleveland and Blaine. If 575 people had voted for Blaine instead of Cleveland, New York state would have gone Republican by one vote and James G. Blaine would have been the President of the United States.

In 1916, with the entry of our country drawing nearer the war in Europe, the November election was the closest in many years. Woodrow Wilson retired late that election night apparently a defeated man with the decision in the hands of California which would go Republican, it was reported. The final count next day revealed that 1904 votes made Wilson and not Charles Evans Hughes the war president.

Only 62% of the registrants voted in the 1940 election. In an appeal to get out the farmer vote, Vern McGhan, president of the Charlevoix County Farm Bureau, says, "The farmer has an obligation to get his crops in at the proper time but he has a duty that transcends even the obligation to produce, and that is to contribute to good government by exercising his right to vote."

It is not likely that your vote will decide this election, but the fact remains that individual votes make up the total. It is not only your privilege, but your duty to vote Tuesday, November 7. As a good citizen you should do nothing less. The fulfillment of your voting obligation is the only assurance of representative government. The ballot is the badge of freedom Americans wear. Vote and remind your neighbors to vote.

THE SOLDIERS ARE VOTING —THEY KNOW WHAT THEY ARE VOTING FOR!

Mr. and Mrs. Willis Cross and their son, Willis Cross Jr., left on Saturday to spend several days in Ludington, Muskegon and St. Joseph.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph W. Smith and son arrived Monday from Los Angels, Calif., to spend several days with the former's parents, Capt. and Mrs. Oscar Smith.

MICHIGAN MIRROR

As a Michigan commentator who is limited in the field of politics to non-partisan observations, we have been watching for some time the efforts of the Michigan CIO-sponsored Political Action committee to swing the urban CIO vote to Roosevelt and Fry.

Here is definitely something new to the Michigan scene.

Not that labor organizations have not plumped previously for candidates, for their leaders have. But not until 1944 has any labor group in Michigan engaged so actively in the field of politics with an aggressive campaign to get out the vote on November 7 and to put over certain favored candidates.

In fact, the CIO prominence in the Democratic camp is a matter of considerable speculation among Michigan Democrats as well as Republicans. They are all wondering what may be next.

What is the Political Action Committee? It had its origin at Cleveland in March, 1943. CIO President Philip Murray invited 200 key leaders to consider the problems of the rising cost of living, the threatened swing to the right at Washington and elsewhere, and the possibility of post-war reprisals by industrial managers weary over labor troubles.

Fattened wages had made labor a bit complacent. Workers no longer listened to the appeals of business agents and organizers with usual attentiveness.

Murray and others frankly felt the need for a pressure agency which would express the workers' views and represent their interests in the field of politics, much as the union speaks for workers in collective bargaining. Sidney Hillman was named chairman.

Here was a legal way to circumvent the restrictions of the Smith-Conally act which barred contributions to political parties by unions. The PAC would do it. Political education were the words of the hour.

First objectives were the national and state conventions of the Democratic party. The CIO committee in mid-May of this year openly pledged support to the President for a fourth term. It insisted that "a small but powerful minority" in the nation sought to "prevent the complete liquidation of fascism" through the defeat of the President.

At the Democratic national convention in Chicago CIO leaders were admittedly effective. They blocked the naming of James F. Byrnes for vice-president; failed to help push through the renomination of Vice-President Wallace; and finally gave their support to Truman whom they regarded as "acceptable" on his record.

The Grand Rapids convention of the Michigan Democrats likewise saw the CIO at the front. Here was something daring on the Michigan political scene — an organized campaign by a major labor organization to achieve its goals through political action. Following the traditions of Samuel Gompers, the American Federation of Labor through its non-par-

Playground News of Field and Stream

Substantial increase in sales of 1944 small game licenses over 1943 is indicated by dealers' reorders, the conservation department reports. Twenty per cent more small game licenses and 10 per cent more deer licenses were shipped to dealers last August than were supplied a year ago.

Typical instance of the heedlessness that causes gunshot fatalities during hunting seasons is reported by Dr. Miles D. Pirnie, in charge of the W. K. Kellogg bird sanctuary at nearby Wintergreen lake.

Hunting near Marne, northwest of Grand Rapids, Dr. Pirnie says he saw "an enthusiastic but rattled hunter, a boy of 18, race across a field to a pheasant he had downed and begin striking the flopping bird with his gun stock, swinging the gun club fashion."

Gross acreage in northern Michigan state game areas total 2,256,328; the state owns 1,189,064 acres in these areas.

During the 15 years the conservation department has been keeping accurate records of hunting accidents in Michigan, 375 persons have been killed, and 833 have been injured. The hunting accident toll during 1943 seasons was 23 killed and 60 wounded.

The conservation department hopes to demonstrate with small dams on trout streams of the upper peninsula that man-made installations of the kind are better than the dams built by beaver in creating conditions favorable to trout.

A dam has been built recently on Clear creek, north of Seney, which will allow control of the stream level and passage of fish upand down the stream. Such dams can create pools that may help to increase trout carrying capacities of streams.

The conservation department will operate trout rearing stations at Cooks Run and on the Fox River in the upper peninsula, and at up and down the stream. Such er below the Straits, during the coming winter. Other rearing stations will be closed.

Roscommon county produced the best deer hunting in Michigan in 1943, when 4,019 deer were taken under hunters' licenses.

Chiefs of game and fish divisions of the state conservation department — Harry D. Rubl, and Fred A. Westerman — will represent the department at the annual meeting of the Northern Sportsmen's association, to be held Sunday, October 29, in Negaunee.

Payments of bounties on fox, and control of beaver to improve trout fishing, are among the more important proposals that were discussed.

An unusual number of fox are being killed by pheasant hunters during the present open season, according to reports received by the conservation department. Most downstate counties pay bounties ranging from $3 to $5.

* * *

Better protection against forest fires on Benver Island will be supplied next season with completion of an equipment shed now under construction, according to the conservation department's forest fire fighting service.

SCHOOL NOTES

Kindergarten

Kathleen Fessenden brought six goldfish to school. That makes 30 fish the boys and girls are taking care of in their pond.

The afternoon children visited Mrs. Warner's room on Friday. They enjoyed the Indian exhibit very much.

Clara Belle Gaunt came back to school on Monday. The Kindergarteners will be happy to have George Olsen, Amanda Lovelace, Carol Diner, Kitty McDermott, Evelyn John, and Sonny Pierce back again, too.

1st Grade

We enjoyed a trip to Mrs. Warner's room last Thursday to see the Indian exhibits.

The first grade is making good use of the library. We are glad that the parents are cooperating by encouraging the children to get library books. More than half of the first grade had milk at recess during the past week.

Second Grade News

Mrs. Violet Bush Moody visited our room last Friday. She was our Kindergarten teacher.

We have been talking about being careful of lighting bonfires. Bonfires are fun, but we need a big person to help us, and practice safety rules.

The second grade enjoyed the visit to Mrs. Warnor's room.

We were all very happy to have the Kiwanis Invite us to the movie on Hallowe'en.

We have been trying very hard in our room to be clean and neat. Our hands seem to be the hardest to keep clean.

3rd Grade

Our new geographies and language books have come. From our language we learned to introduce our friends to others. We found it hard to do at first.

When we see people raking and burning leaves it reminds us of the poem we learned, "Autumn Fires", by Robert Louis Stevenson.

Many of us are doing well with phonics. It helps us to "sound out" new words by ourselves when we are reading silently.

Mrs. Warner's room invited us to see their Indian project and terrarium. They had some interesting things to show and explain to us.

4th Grade

We enjoyed our visit to the Study Shop Room as we had been studying about Indians too. In our geography test Friday Elaine Potters, Janet Krublik, John Nordrum, Deborah Bergeon and James Lewis received S plus.

All the boys and girls were delighted to hear Mr. Wagner's announcement about the picture show on Hallowe'en and we are all looking forward to it. We made Hallowe'en posters Friday.

Several of our boys and girls are out of school with the chicken pox. We hope they get well soon.

6th Grade

We were not quite so proud of our attendance record this last week. Some were absent because of illness, some were helping to harvest potatoes—both very good excuses. But those who came in late we could not excuse so easily. In most cases of tardiness, there is no really good excuse. May we have much cooperation from the homes and the parents to help overcome this bad habit?

Our new English text books are here. We are really enjoying "Putting English to Work".

In connection with our study of the British Isles, Donna Farmer brought some English coins, and Nita Brumm brought a beautiful ring for us to see. This ring had been purchased by her father in England.

We wish to thank our friends of the Study Shop Room for the opportunity to have seen their Indian exhibits and their terrarium.

Overflow 1, 2, 3,

We visited the rooms on the second floor Friday. We especially enjoyed the "Indian Unit". One boy brought in an Indian canoe, another boy drew an Indian chief.

Friday was visiting day. We visited the library. We enjoyed the books. We are going again soon.

Many pupils have recovered

Cracker-barrel versus Dog House

Most of the political conventions in our town are held around the cracker-barrel—in Sam Abernethy's store.

We were settling how the country should be run the other night when Homer Watson starts to put in a word.

"Wait a minute, Homer," Sam said sharply, "did you vote in the last election?"

"Well," Homer fumbled, "I was awful busy just at the time."

"That don't matter," Sam insists. "Free speech around this cracker-barrel is for them who help protect it—and all the other freedoms in America—by voting. Folks that just talk freedom don't count here."

From where I sit, it doesn't make any difference how you vote—the important thing is that you Do vote. Call it a sacred right if you want to, but to me it is the bedrock of the whole idea of democracy

Why is Ed Lane up in the air?

BECAUSE he's down to earth about conserving coal. That's why he's putting up storm windows. He knows there will be some shortage of coal going to householders.

No less coal is being produced. More is being mined than ever before—with fewer men. Mine owners and miners alike are doing a splendid job. And there are ample rail facilities for transporting coal to your city.

But certain grades of coal are going to be greatly in demand for war production. And, to make things worse, your local coal dealer faces a shortage in manpower, trucks and tires.

So if you want to keep warm this winter, do everything possible to conserve the coal you can get. The little, common-sense things you can do will make your coal pile go 10% further—and save that much on your fuel bill.

Install weatherstripping. Clean your furnace. Fire carefully, and avoid overheating. Shut off unused rooms. Pull your shades low at night. For other suggestions, see your coal dealer.

One of the biggest jobs of the C & O Lines is hauling coal from the mines along its routes, so we're in a position to understand the problem, and to know how essential coal is these days.

Study Shop News

We enjoyed entertaining the other rooms Friday with our Indian exhibits.

Our new geography books have come. We are to study foreign lands in the sixth grade.

We are happy to have an invitation to the theater from the Kiwanis Club.

Weekly News

General Mathematics

Here we have formulas, formulas, and more formulas. This week we are having some introduction to Algebra with particular attention to the computation of interest both simple and compound. The class does not seem to find the going too hard.

Algebra

We are working with equations of the first degree and learning what are identical and what are conditional equations. Sometime this week we shall begin the study of positive and negative numbers. In the meantime, we are not forgetting to have a few useful drills in good, old-fashioned Arithmetic also.

Geometry

This week marks the beginnings of formal proofs and demonstrations. We are learning to be on the lookout for any statements that are not supported by proper evidence and also faulty conclusions that might be drawn from these statements. This should prove a valuable training in logical thinking and should have a carry over value into other fields.

Physics

The behavior of molecules in solids, liquids, and gases with such related subjects as diffusion, evaporation, and osmosis is being considered. The numerical problems are not quite so difficult as those of preceding units, but there is still plenty of opportunity to use the old math.

Biology

The method used by biologists in classifying plants and animals is presenting some difficulties. Those students with some knowledge of Latin have a distinct advantage. But in spite of the long names we have to master, we are learning many interesting facts about the similarities of animals in the same family and genus. Now that we can refer to the dog as "Canis familiaris", we are beginning to feel quite learned.

The Sophomores will soon be engaged in collecting poems for their individual anthologies which are to be completed by the first of December. Since each anthology is to be a collection of that student's favorite poems, the class has not been limited to any certain authors from whose works they should gather their material. As a climax to this project ad to be included as the 25th poem of the anthology is an original poem of the students. At present for class assignments, the students have been writing couplets.

One of the freshmen English classes has completed Treasure Island, and by Friday of this week several of the voluntary projects of the students will be on display in the English room. The second English I class is studying paragraph structure.

The Speech class has been engaged in the giving of practice speeches of introduction. These the students have learned are best when thy bring the person being introduced to his feet feeling comfortable and glad to be present.

In Latin I the class is beginning the study of the infinitive.

World History

Students are delving into the Greek city - states to discover what caused them to have such effective forms of government and such beautiful sculpture and architecture.

Studies emphasize such names as Socrates, Phidias, Plato, Aristotle and Solon.

FACTS about Proposal No. 4

1. Elected officials of local governments in 83 Michigan counties are vigorously opposed to Proposal No. 4 which imposes Detroit rule on 11 cities and 18 townships in Wayne county. It constitutes the entering wedge for destruction of responsible government in every county of Michigan.

2. It vitally concerns all of Michigan. The so-called county home rule plan FIRST applied to ALL counties. It was beaten by Michigan voters in 1934 and 1936. The Wayne county scheme was rejected in 1942. Let's bury this threat for all time! Defeat Proposal No. 4!

3. Let Detroit clean house first in Detroit! Here is the record of Detroit city officials and Detroit state legislators, now elected AT LARGE:

CONVICTED! One-third of Detroit city council, mayor and many police officials.

CONVICTED! A majority of Detroit state legislators in 1944.

Proposal No. 4 would impose AT LARGE elections with non-partisan ballots upon Wayne county, despite Detroit's record of corruption under that system.

4. Proposal No. 4 would destroy responsible county government. Wayne county has the lowest tax rate and bonded debt of any county of its size in the nation. Contrasted to the county's 13 per cent debt DECREASE since 1919, Detroit's debt has soared more than 11 times—$30,627,253 to $332,125,738. Detroit city taxes have doubled, while the county tax rate goes downward—dropping another 14 cents on Dec. 1, 1944.

Open Pasture Gate

IF YOU'RE annoyed by having to open and close the gate to your pasture every time you go through, here's a simple way to eliminate all this bother.

An open gate that a cow, horse, or mule cannot twist through can be made with an extra fence post, a hole digger, a few staples and nails, six planks about three feet long, and two 2-by-4's about seven feet long. Just pick out a spot in the fence that's convenient and set a new post about 18 inches from one of the old ones. Nail the wire to this, then cut out the wire between the two posts.

Next, set one of the 2-by-4's on each side of the new post about 1½ feet from it—one inside the pasture and the other outside. Then nail three planks to each of the 2-by-4's, running to the original fence post, as shown in the drawing.

THE OLD JUDGE SAYS . . .

"Quite a stack of newspapers I left you yesterday, Judge. Aren't goin' in the newspaper business, are you?"

"No, I just enjoy reading different papers so my nephew George sends them to me whenever he takes a business trip. I got a big kick out of some he sent me from several counties where they still have prohibition. Particularly from some headlines that read 'Drunk Driving Arrests Rise', 'Bootleggers must post Ceiling Prices', 'Federal Agents seize 'Trick' Liquor Truck'. Doesn't that go to prove, Joe, that prohibition does not prohibit?

"I watched conditions pretty carefully during our 13 years of prohibition in this country. The only thing I could see we got out of it was bootleg liquor instead of legal liquor . . . plus the worst crime and corruption this country has ever known."

Be A True American - Go To The Polls and VOTE November 7th

A SERIOUS MESSAGE

To Every Michigan Voter!

Through New-Deal-controlled depression, for 10 years we have seen our liberties disappear. Year after year, millions have been forced to live on New Deal doles. Even Churchill, in 1937, accused the New Deal, through its persecution of capital, of forcing the world back into another depression! To restore our liberties, protect our freedom of speech, our vote and our opportunities to progress, vote for Dewey's program. To preserve good government in Michigan, re-elect Governor Harry F. Kelly!

DEWEY'S PROGRAM:

An administration devoted to public service instead of bureaucratic bickering.

An administration working in harmony with Congress.

An administration in which the Cabinet is restored as a responsible instrument of Government.

An administration in which you will not have to support three men to do one man's job.

An administration which will root out waste and bring order out of chaos.

An administration which will give the people of this country value received for the taxes they pay.

An administration made up of the ablest men and women in America who will receive full authority to do their jobs and will be let alone to do them.

An administration free from the influence of Communists and the domination of corrupt big city machines.

An administration in which the Constitution is respected so that the liberties of our people shall again be secure.

An administration which will devote itself to the single-minded purpose of jobs and opportunity for all.

KELLY'S RECORD:

Distribution of blood plasma to civilians, a program which the medical profession says is saving 1,000 lives a year.

Statewide tuberculosis diagnosis program.

Pioneering in postwar adult education and preparing for return of veterans to civilian life.

More adequate aid for dependent children.

Increased assistance to aged.

More liberal assistance to injured workmen.

Correlation of tourist and resort agencies.

Providing recreation facilities for "starved" metropolitan areas.

Youth guidance program designed to prevent delinquency.

Orderly future planning under State Planning Commission.

A farm program administered and approved by practical farmers.

Should the incompetent, radical-supported New Deal continue, we may end with dictatorship. THIS may be your last chance to vote for the preservation of your freedoms.

tisan political committee has largly limited its national program to the assembly of labor records of members of the senate and house at Washington and its transmission to state and local organizations. The CIO scorns this, going directly to Democratic conventions to obtain candidates favorable to their interests and then appealing directly to the CIO workers themselves.

That the Political Action Committee has been successful in getting a heavy registration of workers in urban centers is being freely conceded.

It points to a basic strategy in the Michigan Democratic party: To concentrate on the industrial centers where reside the so-called "low income" group which has been the backbone of the New Deal.

Recent polls of the Detroit News again emphasizes the likelihood that Detroit's tremendous urban vote will swing heavily toward the Democratic column. If the Republicans are to counterbalance it, they must get out the vote in upstate counties.

The two separate ballots — one for president and vice-president, and the second for the governor and others including Congressman —offer another factor in 1944 which may put Kelly ahead of Dewey in the final tally. Another complication is the fact that in about 35 counties the Democrats have no county ticket. Thus a lack of ballot interest may tend to keep Republicans at home in areas which are predominantly Republican, while the CIO Political Action Committee swells the Democratic vote in centers which are apt to go Democratic.

As an observer studies the 1944 scene, he can find few logical reasons for believing that as a nation we are due for a sharp swing to the right — towards so-called conservatism, old-time capitalism, uncontrolled free enterprise — call the "right" whatever you may.

At San Francisco on Sept. 21, GOP nominee Dewey declared that "we are not going back to the days of unregulated business and finance. We are not going back to the days of unprotected farm prices . . . to the leaf-raking and the dole." He said government control was necessary, favored a peacetime economy halfway between regimentation and uncontrolled business."

On the following day (Sept. 22) Dewey favored an extension of old-age pensions and survivors' insurance to farmers, domestic workers, government workers and self-employed; extension of unemployment compensation to similar groups; and assurance of medical service to those who cannot afford it. He pledged retention of collective bargaining and other rights of the workers.

It seems significant to us that every representative public opinion survey in recent years has repeatedly affirmed the public's favor of freedom from want by old-age pensions, job insurance, health insurance and even aid for students.

The conservative may snort and call it "communism", but the fact still stands that the American people — as tested by accurate polls —is not going to the right in terms of opposition to social benefits. Even Dewey's declarations add weight to this trend.

More benefits — not less — are on the horizon.

The question is more as follows: How much to the left shall we go?

Voters will furnish the answer, to a large degree on November 7.

Why we are for Dewey!

His administration will restore our rights as individuals. He will eliminate communistic influence from our government. He will encourage business to expand and make more jobs — to do away with the New Deal's controlled-depression form of rule.

He will bring the boys back from overseas, out of the armed service into jobs, as soon as possible. He will take the racketeering out of labor, restore honesty and decency to trade union growth.

He will employ able men and women to assure a capable and representative government at home — not a crowd of New Deal theorists whose failures have been consistent. He also wants America to be represented with ability and dignity abroad.

He wants to restore your rights and ours — to make our dreams of decent homes, living conditions and future stability a reality. It's time for a change for the better! Help us make America a better land. Vote for Dewey!

Recipe for a V-Mail Letter

Read the other day about a G.I. overseas who received an installment notice from the income tax collector. He wrote back: "Over here, even a letter from you is news from home."

A gag, of course—but with an overtone of truth about it. More than anything else, the men like getting letters from home. More than anything else, our V-Mail letters can help to keep up their morale.

What to write about? That's the easiest thing of all. For it's the little things they dream of and remember! The backyard baseball games . . . the fishing trips . . . the picnics with the chicken sandwiches and ice cold beer.

From where I sit, the least we can do is write those V-Mail letters often—let our men know that those little things they miss so much—from the ball games to the beer—are still here, waiting for them till they come back home.

Eighteen children from our room have hot lunches at school, and 23 have milk at recess.

We enjoy the puzzles and games that aome of the mothers sent to school for rainy days.

2nd Gradn

We entertainod tha Kindergarten Friday witb a short Navy Day program:

Saluto the Flag
Star Spangled Banner
Anchors Away
Raise the Flag—a song
Our Flag—a poem

All second graders took part. Wo all made sailors, paul Allers and Faye Meggison brought flags to decorate for Navy Day.

We are reading a story "Hallowe'en Fun" in our readlng books.

We are sorry so many in our room have the chicken pox.

3rd Grade

"The Ranch Book" is Group III's new reading book. tt tells all about life on u ranch out west.

Fifteen boys and girls had perfect scores in spelling last week. That is our best record.

Gordon Mol und Bob Miles are first to have their numes on our chart for library reading. Each book read for pleasuro is racorded on the cbart.

Ritchie Davis is back after spending a week with his grandparents.

Many pupils havo been absent tho last few weeks witb chicken pox.

1st, 2nd, 3rd Grades

"Watch us grow!" Nearly every one in our room is drinking milk.

Many pupils have recovered from the chicken pox. Our enrollment was back to normal last week.

We aro enjoying our new arithmetic books. "t do my best," is our motto.

Everyone liked the story "Blaze" that Glenn See brought for us.

4th Grade

Nearly all the boys and girls in our room have enrolled in Mr. Gray's Tonette Class. Several have bought tonettes of their own. Jack Niswander received a clarinet for his birthday, and he is taking lessons with tha Junior Band.

All the children who were out of school with the chicken pox have returned. We were glad everyone could be present the day we went to the library. Mrs. Bowman gave us a special treat by telling us about the movie "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" which she had seen, and then she played the records which belong with the story. We did not have time to take out any books that duy, but will go again to browse around.

Our room looks very pretty with its Hallowe'en decorations. Some brought cornstalks and others pumpkins. Stuurt Walker drew a Hullowe'en picture on our blackboard in colored chalk. t think we will have to vota him tbe "class artist."

6th Grade

This is a happy day in tha sixth grade room. Beverly Stroud, whom wo thought was leaviug us for tbe winter, tells us sha is going to stay with us. We are so happy, Beverly, to know that you are to continue to be one of our group.

Billy Stevens has returned, after having had a friendly visit at home with the "chicken pox."

Not one tardy mark all this past week! Are wo proud of that record! We hope not to have a single tardy mark again this week.

Many thanks to Mrs. Stawart for the splendid help she gave us Friday p. m.

Homemaking and 4H Work

Aprons are progressing nicely in Seventh Grade Clothing Class. Eighth Grade Clothing Class is not yet ready to actually sew—they are working on a brief clothing budget. Tho Advanced Clothing Class is to begin first garments this week. Materials are hard to get, and often choice has to be limited because of available material.

All 4H Club girls aro doing fine with their sewing. Several have completed their first project, which was the making of a towel.

Girls in sewing and 4H who havo not material to sew are helping out with Junior Red Cross sewing.

4H Club girls are making favors and decorations for Charlevoix Leaders banquet to be held at the Higher School, November 7.

Boy's 4H Club

The Charlevoix 4H Club expect to entertain the county leuders here on November 7. We plan to have a smull exhibit of projects completed at that time. The 4th grade group have finished attractive hot pad holders. In the 6th grade group, the boys have finished cutting boards and neat looking hook racks. The older boys are working on assorted items from match boxes to wheelbarrows.

Englisb 1 and tl

One of the freshmen English classes is devoting this week's class periods to the production of a play for presentation at the Opan House program Thursday evening. The sophomore English classes ure still engaged in their study of poetry.

Industrial Arts

The senior drawing boys are working on revolutions and projections. Several new drawing tools have been received and will bo put to use in the near future.

The woodwork unit is coming along fine. We will have a few projects on display at the Open House.

A great deal of interest is being shown by the boys in tbe metal work unit. We recently received u complete set of hand tools for this unit.

Workshop

Our boys were glad to start working on the Safety Patrol this week.

Every child in this room is drinking milk in the morning. Milk builds strong teeth. Many of us are visiting a deutist soon.

We have a new map in our room. We are studying the British Isles.

Some goldfish have come to live with us.

Science

The biology classes are studying the classification of plants aud animals. The somewhat lengthy Latin names seem to give little trouble.

In physics we are working with resultant forces and getting ready to study the simple machines. Most of us agree that this subject is just mathematics in a different form.

Geometry

The class in geometry is having formal proofs now. We enjoy many discussions and quite frequently there is good-natured difference of opinion. Student discussions are and should be encouraged.

American and World History

As current history is of great importance in establishing a background for citizenship training, a number of problems have been stressed duriug the past week. Students have been organized as committees to find suggestions as to what should be done by the United Nations in dealing with Germany and Japan.

Many problems and their suggested solutions overlap, but they do provide u basis for discussions.

Some of the solutions provide for such extreme severity as to be unworable for any length of time. Thinking is provoked, however, so a general plan does seem possible.

The Americun History Classes of the eighth grade have studied the westward movement of our people following the Revolutionary War. They have noted the even greater movement after the Civil War und are tracing the routes these pioneers followed upon their maps. Maps are used a great deal in showing the students tbe effect such movements had upon the country as u whole. Individual work upon maps help to fix this conception more thoroughly.

Geography

In the Geography of Soutbern Lands, the seventh grade classes have completed the study of Chile audn have fouud it to be a region of great contrasts. From the rainy section of the far south, the childreu found that the couutry

They have learned that Chile is the world's largest producer of nitrate—one of the components of explosives—and thus has its part in the present war. They have learned, also, that the country is decidedly different from either Argentina or Brazil.

This completes the study of the so-called A.B.C. countries of South America, which are the most influential countries of that continent. The class will now go on to other Andean countries—Bolivia, Peru, etc.—and note the comparisons with them and with the countries already studied.

THE OLD JUDGE SAYS...

"That's really a great editorial you just read to us, Judge. Where did you say it appeared?"

"In 'The Stars and Stripes'...the newspaper of the U.S. Armed Forces in Europe. Kind of gives us folks back home something to think about, doesn't it, Bill?"

"It certainly does, Judge. Particularly the last paragraph. Would you mind reading that again?"

"Glad to, Bill. It says, 'We can remember the days of prohibition, when moonshine whiskey made quick fortunes for bootleggers, crooked politicians and dishonest police officials. As a result, we claim we know what we want in the way of liquor legislation and feel those at home should wait until we return before initiating further legislation on liquor control.'"

"Out of fairness to our boys over there fighting, Judge, how could we disobey such a wish?"

Sixth War Loan Campaign Under Way

Charlevoix County's War Finance Committee has "jumped the gun" in the 6th War Loan Drive.

Although the drive officially starts on Monday, Nov. 20th, Robert Bridge, County Chairman, reports that several investors are doing their own bond buying by visiting one of the three banks in the county.

This is a fine attitude on the part of the public and aids the committee in determining the amount to be raised by solicitation to attain the county goal of $366,000. Every effort will be expended to make this quota in a short and sharp campaign, climaxed by a Bond Rally to be held at the High School Gymnasium, Wednesday, November 22.

The full page appeal on page seven of this issue is the result of a committee effort representing the Kiwanis Club. The response was so generous during the solicitation for sponsorship of the appeal that an oversubscription of $58.50 was obtained, which was promptly donated to the school lunch fund.

The nation will raise 14 billion dollars in the 6th War Loan of which Michigan's share is 472 million dollars.

COUNTY POLLS HEAVY REPUBLICAN MAJORITY

The voters of Charlevoix and Charlevoix county turned "all out" for the Nov. 7th election when 1080 city and 5195 county ballots were cast.

The comparison with the two previous record years is 1940, 1259 city and 5736 county; 1936, 1216 city and 5722 county.

The heavy vote is remarkable considering the number of our people who have been in the defense areas long enough to establish residence. The absentee voters, which include those in service, approximated 500 in the county.

Of the 5195 presidential votes cast, Dewey received 3039; Roosevelt, 1893; Watson, 21; Thomas, 3 and Smith 2 for a total of 4958. 237 voters did not use the extra presidential ballot, which was in use for the first time, and 124 voters did not mark their ballots for governor.

Charlevoix county turned thumbs down on all four amendments.

From where I sit ... by Joe Marsh

Soldiers' Wives and Returning Husbands

You may have seen in the papers where a writer cautioned Army wives that their returning husbands would be "strangers" to them—because they've been through experiences that their wives could never share.

Well, a high-ranking officer wrote an answer to that; he called it nonsense. "What do our men want most? To finish the war and come home . . . What are they fighting for?...for everything the word home means."

Of course, the word "home" means something different to every fighting man. For home is a lot of little things! A garden or a work bench—well-thumbed books . . . a mellow glass of beer with friends.

But whatever they are, it's the memory of these small familiar things that he takes with him into battle. And it's these little things that link his thoughts to home—and to the familiar life that he looks forward to returning to.

My Sincere Appreciation—

It will be my endeavor, as your Congressman, to represent the district along those lines which the voters have approved, as indicated by their support of my candidacy in this and previous elections.

Many individuals have given of their time and effort in this campaign and they have my personl thanks. To the voters, many of whom I am unable to see in such a widespread district, may I express my sincere thanks for their help, which I accept not only as support of my candidacy, but as support of the principles of government which our party represents in that great people's body — the Congress of the United States.

Sign of a good housekeeper!

SURE, there's a cobweb on that door. In a moment it will be gone with a flick of the duster. But right now, it's a sign of good housekeeping, for it shows that an unused bedroom has been closed off to save heat.

There's going to be some shortage of coal delivered to homes this winter. This isn't because less coal is being produced. More coal is being mined this year than last. Mine owners and miners alike are doing a splendid job. And there are ample rail facilities for transporting coal.

But certain grades and sizes of coal are needed for war production. And, in addition, your local coal dealer is suffering from a shortage of manpower, trucks and tires. So be patient with him and make the coal you get go as far as possible.

Be sure your heating system is clean and in good shape. Fire carefully. Pull your shades and draw the drapes at night. Close off unused bedrooms. For other suggestions see your coal dealer.

One of the biggest jobs of the C&O Lines is hauling coal from the mines along its routes, so we're in a position to understand the problem and to know how essential coal is these days.

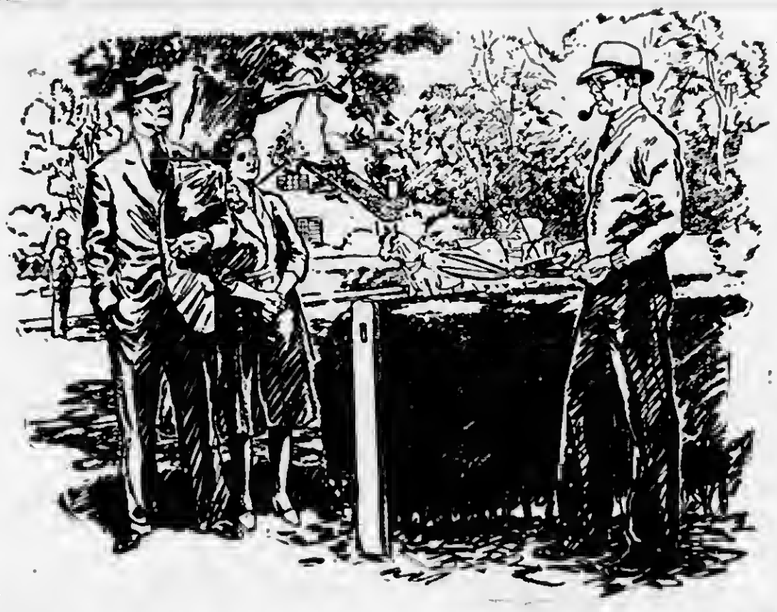
THE OLD JUDGE SAYS...



"Mary and I were just saying, Judge, how lucky we are here in America that we have so many natural resources to help win the war."

"That's right, Jim. When war broke out we had oil, we had steel, we had food, lumber, aluminum... practically everything we needed. There's one thing we didn't have... rubber. The enemy had that."

"But that didn't bother us for long. Soon American brains and industry had synthetic rubber by the tons rolling out of plants. That filled a critical need... you can't win a war without rubber."

"I was very much interested the other day in reading a statement made by a high government official on synthetic rubber. In it he said' It is fair to regard the rubber manufactured to date as being almost solely the product of the beverage distilling industry.'"

"He also said that, in his estimation, the tremendous contribution of distillers' industrial alcohol to the synthetic rubber program had not received the recognition which it deserves."

"We certainly learned something today, didn't we Mary?"

RED CROSS HOLDS REGULAR MEETING

Seventeen officers and directors of the Charlevoix County Red Cross chapter were present at the regular meeting held Thursday in the Charlevoix City Hall.

Following reports of the secretary and treasurer, plans were discussed for a program of home nursing classes during the winter, under the direction of Mrs. Elizabeth Stocum Robertson, of East Jordan.

December meeting of the chapter will be held at the Hotel Dilworth in Boyne City.

Football This Week

Attention is being focused on the close finish that may develop in the Big Ten race.

Michigan now is the most serious threat to Ohio State's march for the title. Fact is, the Wolverines can capture the championship by winning from Wisconsin this Saturday at Ann Arbor and then knocking off Ohio State in the finale at Columbus the following Saturday.

Of course, Purdue still is in the running but other teams must further the Boilermakers cause. Should Ohio State and Michigan each lose one of their remaining game, Purdue will get a tie for first place.

Elsewhere in the Midwest, Notre Dame meets Northwestern and Ohio State—Illinois, Minnesota—Iowa, Pittsburgh—Indiana.

Army and Navy, now are in a class by themselves following their smashing victories over Notre Dame. Army plays Penn and Navy meets Purdue in what should be two breathers.

Additional top games bring together Mississippi State and Alabama and Georgia Tech at L.S.U. In the West, Southern California will meet California for the second time this season.

BAGS BUCK IN FIRST HOUR

Harry Foster, hunting with Clair Webster, shot a deer at about 8:00 o'clock this morning near Burgess, just north of town. The ten-point buck weighed 165 pounds and was the first reported from this vicinity.

The W.C.T.U. held their annual Roll Call luncheon at the Congregational church at 1 o'clock Friday afternoon. Mrs. Guy Smith presided at the business session which followed. A report on the recent district held in Petoskey on October 30 was given by Mrs. David Blake and Mrs. A. J. Hamilton, Mrs. Blake also gave an interesting talk on the topic, "How far we have come fighting the liquor traffic", and a report on the history and accomplishments of the Union during the period it has been in existence. The local chapter of the Union was made a Light Line Union. Mrs. Maurice Peterson and Mrs. Smith played a duet at the social hour. Mrs. Peterson also lead the devotionals.

The committee for the luncheon was made up of Mrs. Trian Nelson, Mrs. Jake White and Mrs. Thomas Milaer.

BOOK WEEK IS NOVEMBER 12 TO 18

National Book week, November 12-18, is being observed in the Charlevoix public library, it is announced by Miss Floranz Milner, librarian. This year is the 200th anniversary of the first book for children. "Little Pretty Pocket Book" issued by John Newberry in England in 1744. Because of the anniversary and because of the deep social implications in this year's Book Week theme, "United through Books", the 1944 celebration is greatly expanded. Arrangements have been made for simultaneous celebrations in the countries of many of our great Allies.

In sponsoring this year's theme, publishers are especially featuring children's books which will build a solid foundation of understanding among children of all nations, creeds and races.

National Book Week was organized in 1919 through a suggestion from Franklin K. Mathiews, chief librarian of the Boy Scouts of America. During this week arrangements have been made for all children in the Charlevoix schools to visit the library and see the many books made available to them.

It's Love, Love, Love-or Maybe the Moon

It's crazy what love does. One ardent swain rubbed his sweetiepie's face with poison ivy — and won her. Pattlng on a dog collar, a luckless chap pitched a tent outside his beloved's house—and lost her. Read about the odd things love does, in The American Weekly with this Sunday's (Nov. 26) issue of The Detroit Sunday Times.

Hooker Barn Burns In Saturday Fire

The M. B. Hooker & Son barn, located southwest of Charlevoix in Marion township, was completely destroyed by fire from an unknown cause late Saturday evening. The fire was noticed by motorists on the trunkline after the building had burst into flames. About 40 tons of hay was stored in the barn. Finding it impossible to save the large barn and its contents, the Charlevoix fire department devoted its efforts to other buildings and hay stored in stacks near the barn, Fire Chief Charles Marshall advised. No insurance was carried it was stated.

Young Lady Drowns Self Friday Night

The body of the woman found on the beach of Lake Michigan at the head of Antrim St. early Saturday morning, has been identified as Miss Bentrice J. TerMeer, 34, 148 Oak St., S. E., Grand Rapids, 4 foot, 5 inch, 105 pounds, attactive social worker.

John Andrews discovered the body while walking along the shore on his way to work. He notified his employer, John Cross, local fisherman, who returned to the spot with Andrews. The police were notified and Dr. F. F. McMillan, coroner, empaneled a jury at the scene. The verdict returned was suicide.

Through the efforts of the sheriff's office and the Gaylord post of the state police, it was learned that the woman arrived here on the afternoon train from Grand Rapids, went to the Charlevoix Hotel where she rested and wrote a letter, which Joel Johnson, hotel guest, volunteered to mail but it is not known to whom the letter was addressed. Shortly after dark, around 5:30 p. m., Miss TerMeer trudged up Antrim St. to the lake where crutch marks in the sand to the water's edge leads to the assumption that she removed the leg braces and crutches, worn due to infantile paralysis since childhood, tied them to her shoulders with clothesline and crawled out into the shallow water.

It was learned through the Grand Rapids police department that the act was apparently premeditated as the woman had resigned her position and told her associates in the Rehabilitation League she was leaving the city and would be unable to return to deliver a lecture on the 22nd.

Mrs. Wallace Wilson, a sister, arrived Sunday from Spring Lake, Mich., and identified the body, but could furnish no clue to the young lady's act, reporting that she had been active and cheerful in spite of her handicap. Mrs. Wilson returned to Grand Rapids Sunday afternoon hoping her sister's letter had been dispatched to her and the contents would divulge a cause, also her reason for coming to Charlevoix, her first trip here although she had visited in Bay Shore.

The Glenn Seo funeral home shipped the body to Grand Rapids Monday afternoon for funeral services held Tuesday.

Miss TerMeer was born Nov. 23, 1910, the daughter of Christopher and Gertrude TerMeer, who preceded her in death. She received her education and always resided in Grand Rapids.

NEWS FROM OUR SERVICEMEN

Pvt. Thomas Louiselle will return to Camp Roberts, Calif., on Thursday after spending a furlough with his wife and child and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Louiselle.

Elwood Zavitz who is stationed in the Aleutian Islands with the Navy has been promoted to lieutenant, junior grade, from Ensign Lt. Zavitz has been overseas since July. Mrs. Zavitz and their daughter make their home with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Milton Block.

From somewhere in New Guinea Clarence Goblstick sends the following poem:

To the Courier I say:
It's just a paper sent from home,
It's old and torn and damp
But it really means a lot to me
And all my buddies here in camp.

A breath of home to cheer us on,
It helps make our burden light,
For peace of mind is needed
And will help us in the fight.

The same old goods that we all knew
Are lined up in displays
The brand of footwear and of shirts
We wore in peaceful days.

A paragraph will start us off,
It stirs our memory clear;
A certain place, a certain girl,
And all we love so dear.

Tho' it's old and kind of battered,
And the prints no longer bright,
But we sure would hate to lose it,
It brings home to us each night.

So thanks to the C.S.O. I say
And all of those concerned.
I'll see you all another day
When our peace and rights are earned.

Jr. Red Cross Great Help In War Effort

Not one boy nor girl in America is too young to be part of the war effort. By the things they have done, they have proved that they, too, can help win the war and the men who are fighting the war."

In their schools, they have carried on the work of the Junior Red Cross. There are eighteen and a half million of them enrolled in that organization — they are a large army in themselves.

They are an effective army. Their efforts have resulted in nursery homes for children left homeless in bombed-out sections of England; in medical supplies for the children of China; in school supplies for the refugee children of Poland and Jugoslavia; in thousands of shoes for Russian orphans.

They have produced millions of comfort articles, games, favors and furniture for the use of soldiers in this country and overseas. By their efforts, they have comforted and helped the men of our Army and Navy and the children of other countries who have suffered all over the world.

By carrying on so large a part of the work of the Red Cross, the children of America have taken their place on the fighting front.

With pennies jangling and feet pattering, the children of McKinley School, Sunnyside School and St. James High School of Beaver Island joined the march Friday, November 17, to do their share in contributing to the Junior Red Cross. The total contribution when the music ceased was $28.00. The amount was forwarded to the County Chapter.

PROGRAM WED. TO PROMOTE 6TH WAR BOND SALES

Fighting Yanks, back from combat in some of the hottest theatres of operations, are taking their places with the men and women on the home front in rallies to insure the success of the Sixth War Loan Drive, opening November 20 and continuing through December 16.

A representative group of men of the armed forces is coming to Charlevoix to do its bit.

Touring a large number of cities throughout Michigan the battle-scarred service men will be in Charlevoix on November 22 and will take part in the free program to be staged at the High School Gymnasium at 8:00 p. m. Wednesday, November 22nd. In the afternoon, the movies will be shown to the school pupils.

The returned combat veterans will tell of their experiences in theatres of war that have been making the big headlines. The program to be presented will include the showing of official films of some of the most recent action in the Pacific theater. A Navy chief petty officer will be in charge of the visiting service men's unit.

At about 3:30 Wednesday afternoon, several planes will soar over the city distributing pamphlets.

Included in the group coming to Charlevoix will be: Chief Turret Captain Frederick H. Schoewe, Burlington, Wis., a veteran of 32 years service with the Navy. Chief Schoewe was with the Fleet at Yokahama in 1923 at the time of the historic earthquake. He was one of the U. S. Bluejackets who helped transfer refugees from Yokahama to Kobe following the earthquake. Retiring from the Navy in 1934, he was called back to active service early this year.

Robert Hitch Rice, electricinn's mate, second class, Springfield, Ill. Rice saw action for but two hours in the invasion of Normandy, but those two hours were packed with enough action to fill a book. He was a member of a crew of one of four ships that went in before the big invasion fleet to draw enemey fire. He suffered a fracture of the left arm when he was washed down the deck by a wall of water after his ship was hit by a big shell. Besides the Purple Heart, he holds the American Theatre and European medals. Rice is 24, and entered the service July 15, 1942.

Sergt. Robert S. Wilson, 25, of Sioux City, Ia., who "absorbed" five machine gun slugs on Saipan, then lay unattended from early afternoon until dark because his mates were too busy shooting it out with the Japs. The son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wilson Jr., of Sioux City, the Marine sergeant entered the service May 12, 1942. Besides Saipan, he also saw action in the Marshalls. His decorations include ribbons for the American Theater and Asiatic-Pacific Theater campaigns. He also wears the Purple Heart.

All local boys having seen service are asked to report immediately to Harry Bingham, in charge of the program.

It is hoped that the sponsored appeals in last week'a and this issue by patriotic Charlevoix business and professional citizens will fill the gymnasium to capacity, not only to enjoy a splendid program but to put over the drive in a short campaign.

Ed Carey Talks (Thanksgiving) Turkey

Bert Childers hails Ed Carey on his back porch. "What you doin', Ed?" he asks.

"Pluckin' our Thanksgiving turkey," Ed replies.

"Looks like a chicken to me," says Bert. "Looks like one to me, too," Ed allows. "But with so many turkeys goin' to our fightin' men, some chickens got to do a turkey-size job."

Guess that's the way Thanksgiving is going to be in a lot of homes this year. We'll be sitting down to rationed foods and substitutes—and being mighty glad about it! . . . knowing that the best is going to our men overseas.

And from where I sit, the most important thing of all isn't rationed. That's the Spirit of Thanksgiving! Today—as the lights are going on again all over the world—there's more of it than ever! And more cause for it—as the powers of darkness yield to freedom, tolerance, and human kindness!

A Prayer

Across the world the sound of shells has ceased . . .
And quiet shrouds the battle-rubbled West . . .
The enemy has laid away his arms, and Death and Pain are done in France.
But I go on . . . for I must fight and kill . . .
And work and sweat . . . and hide and run . . .
For here the enemy is very much alive . . .
His bullets still are made of lead . . .
Their angry whispers still foretell of sudden death
For me and others crouched in slime and mud . . .
The end for us is yet to come . . .
And so we pray to God to give us strength
To fight and win . . . without the waste of Time . . .
And with His Will . . . to see our homes again.

Burns' Celebrate Thanksgiving

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Burns on Alice street was the scene of a lovely cooperative dinner party Thanksgiving Day. Youth and old age were spectacular, while middle-age played the part of supports. The seventeen-month-old infant coyed with the sages Mrs. Ed Burns, eighty-eight years and Mrs. George Burns, ninety.

At one o'clock the guests were seated at three tables, beautifully decorated with yellow and white chrysanthemums given by Mr. and Mrs. Albert Edwards. Fourteen were seated at the speakers table. Mrs. Ed Burns acted as toastmistress. Mrs. George Burns returned thanks before the twenty-one pound turkey, prepared by Aunt Kate, which had once strutted on the Sandy Matchett farm, was passed by the waitresses, along with scalloped oysters, squash, creamed onions, fruit jello and all that the eye and appetite could wish for. Waitresses were: Miss Edson, mesdames Charlotte Edwards, Susie Myers and Bessie VanDorn.

After the repast everyone stood and sang "America", following, Mrs. George Burns gave an inspiring talk on our Pilgrim Fathers to whom we were indebted for the holiday, and its spiritual significance. Also the trend of the New Order, why we need faith and thankfulness as the key to understanding God; that the root of all thankfulness to God comes from a sense of obligation to God. Not for these wartime changes and separations are we particularly thankful, but for the meanings that lie hidden in them. Mrs. Burns closed with a prayer.

The afternoon was spent getting acquainted with new relatives and those who had not met for years. There were thirty-six present, of which many were from out-of-town.

The Burns family came to the United States from Canada during the last year of the Civil War and settled on a homestead in what is now known as Barnard, named in honor of Mr. Burns.

Charlevoix High Basket Ball Starts

Once again the curtain has fallen on the football season, and the Red Rayders' athletic interests are focused on "King Basket Ball."

After a week's lay-off for the football players, Coach Geniesse made a call for prospective basket ball players, and 40 interested boys answered his call. Twenty ball players were retained after a series of shake-down practices.

Experience will certainly be lacking in the Red Rayders' camp with only two letter men returning; Dick Hardy at forward, and Bernie Ward at center, forming the nucleus. Bernard Zeitler, another forward, is being tested at a forward slot, a position that he was occupying last year until misfortune plagued him. Other ball players making bids for positions are: Bill Peterson, Emerald Howe, Bill Carey, Bob Carey, Vince Olach, Jack Mol, James Harvey, Bob Rickerd, Doug Byers, Cliff Logerman, Chuck Bennett, Don Brown, Frank Martin, Donald Zeitler and Alfred Bergman.

War Bond Sales Very Gratifying

War Bond sales mount rapidly in Charlevoix, Robert Bridge, County Finance Committee Chairman states. Totals on the 6th Loan as of November 25th were $138,300.00 for the entire county. Of this amount the individual subscriptions in the city of Charlevoix and surrounding territory are $113,775.00 toward the entire county's quota of $366,000.

The Bond Rally held at the High school gymnasium produced $32,400 in individual sales. Much credit is due the Charlevoix Kiwanis Club for promoting this meeting and to all the persons who so generously assisted in making the Rally a success.

If the other communities in the county follow the lead set by Charlevoix and sell a like amount of bonds, Charlevoix County will go over the top in short order. No house-to-house canvas is contemplated in Charlevoix. Both banks and the postoffice will take your subscriptions.

A problem that is assuming steadily increasing importance in the entire War Bond financing program is to see the greatest possible number of bonds "stay sold." Treasury officials believed that making the bonds more readily cashed before maturity, would be an added incentive for investors to hold them. The opposite has been true, particularly in the smaller denominations. Redemptions of the $25 bond increased from 12 to 21 per cent, the $50 bonds from 7 to 13 per cent and of all the series E bonds the increase has been from 6 to 11 per cent in 1944 over 1943.

War bonds are not only essential in winning the war but also provide a major medium for achieving the individual's own future security by avoiding inflation. Never in our entire history has it been so necessary to save as right now.

MAIL CHRISTMAS PACKAGES NOW

Public response to the Post Office Department's "Shop Now! Mail In November" campaign is good but needs to be better, according to Postmaster General Frank C. Walker.

"Extraordinary wartime conditions face us," Mr. Walker said. "Unless more people buy and mail this month the Postal service cannot do its job of delivering all Christmas gifts on time.

"It is not pleasing to us to have to ask the American people to mail packages so far in advance of the delivery date. We do so only because it has to be done. The job is a tremendous one, but we are confident that it will be done because we know from experience that given sound reasons Americans cooperate magnificently.

"Unprecedented shortages of man power and transportation facilities growing out of the war compel early mailing. The Postal Service has given 50,000 experienced employes to the armed forces and 300,000 railroad workers have gone to war. Equally serious is the fact that rail and other transport facilities are taxed to the limit with the great burden of war traffic which all of us know must take precedence.

"In a great number of our 43,000 post offices the man power situation is critical. The 200,000 extra workers whom we normally recruited to handle the swollen Christmas volume of mail were able to work long hours of overtime and to do heavy work. This cannot be expected from the women and high school boys and girls to whom in large part we must look this year to meet the situation.

"The way in which everyone responded in making it possible for us to handle a volume of 70,000,000 parcels for the armed forces overseas leaves no doubt in my mind that the November Christmas mailing will be equally successful. I ask for the help of the press, radio, business advertisers, civic groups and all Americans in making it possible for the Postal Service to do its work.

"We urge everyone to buy now, mail in November and mark gifts "Do Not Open Until Christmas."

President Endorses Bible Reading

Endorsement of the American Bible Society's nationwide Bible reading campaign from Thanksgiving to Christmas was contained in the Thanksgiving Day proclamation issued by President Roosevelt.

"To the end that we may bear more earnest witness to our gratitude to Almighty God," the President said, "I suggest a nationwide reading of the Holy Scripture during the period from Thanksgiving Day to Christmas. Let every man of every creed go to his own version of the Scriptures for a renewed and strengthening contact with those eternal truths and majestic principles which have inspired such measure of true greatness as this nation has acquired."

Helpful Bible Passages for Daily Reading

By members of the Armed Forces and people at home, selected by a nationwide canvass of pastors and chaplains as the most helpful in times like these are suggested.

"As President of the Ministerial Association I have been asked by the American Bible Society to present this Nationwide Bible Reading Campaign to the people of Charlevoix and vicinity. We trust you will save this list and use it in your daily family worship," said Leigh H. Hagle, Minister, Methodist Church.

News From The Armed Forces

Jake White, of the Navy Sea-Bees, has been promoted from machinist's mate, second class, to coxswain. In a recent letter to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jake White, he told of the landing in the Philippines, and of visiting a city on the island on which he was stationed, the first visit to a city since he left the States in June, 1943. He said the natives were very happy to see the Americans on their island and were grateful for any food they were given by our men for they seemed to have been half starved by the Japs.

The following article was taken from a recent issue of a Detroit paper. It was written by a Detroit war correspondent in Holland.

If I hadn't met a Detroit paratrooper in the lobby of a Brussells hotel, we'd never have had that incredible trip to Holland with the 82nd Airborne Division—and into Germany. The paratrooper was Pvt. Phillip J. Hebert, who was driving a jeep for Lt. Douglas Gray.

Most paratroopers, being adventurous or they wouldn't be paratroopers like to talk. Pvt. Hebert doesn't. He tried to tell me some of his adventures but it was hard going. He surpressed all the juicy stories and told me everything routine. I'd say, "But you didn't tell me that before" and he'd look surprised and say, "But you didn't ask me".

Either by glider or by jumping he's been in the invasions of Sicily, Normandy and now Holland. It was in Holland he got the German Luger he carries around so proudly. Everyone wants a Luger for a souvenir but few get one.

Pvt. Hebert jumped with his outfit at midnight on September 17. The group was lucky enough to assemble at once and were hidden by Dutch civilians and given food. The next morning he connected with his jeep which had landed in a glider and reported to the medical clearing station he's assigned to.

While getting his jeep fixed for a run, Pvt. Hebert met a German. The German fired at him and missed. Pvt. Hebert fired back and didn't miss. So he got a Luger.

There's more to the story than that—but you'll have to get it from Pvt. Hebert yourself, I tried.

Along with the German Luger he usually goes armed with a German P-38. He says he got that the easy way. In Normandy he encountered a German who was already dead so he collected his P-38 pistol.

In Detroit Pvt. Hebert was a registered nurse at St. Joseph's Mercy hospital. His wife and small son reside in Newark, N. J. He is the son of Phillip Hebert, former Charlevoix resident, who now lives in Detroit and the nephew of Mrs. Harry Gregory and Mrs. Franklin McFarland, of Charlevoix.

Jay J. Oliver has received a medical discharge from the army, after more than two and a half years in the service and has arrived here from Fort Dix, N. J., to make an indefinite stay. Twenty months of that time was spent overseas in the European and Middle Eastern theaters where he served with the medical corps.

Greydon Copeland, CMoM, left Friday to report at Norfolk, Va., after spending a leave with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Copeland.

Pvt. Hubert Olnek arrived last Wednesday from Fort Riley, Kan. to spend ten days with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Olack.

Irving Drost, Jr., AMM3c, accompanied by Mrs. Drost and infant son, have arrived from Pensacola, Fla. Mrs. Drost and son will remain with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Slezak, for an indefinite stay. Mr. Drost will return to Florida after a short leave here.

Eugene Melio, S2c, who is stationed in Washington, D. C., is visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Melin.

Woman's Society of Christian Service Annual Meeting

Thirty-two members and friends of the Woman's Society of Christian Service met at the methodist parsonage, Thursday, p. m., November 16 for the Annual Thanksoffering meeting of the society.

The program was opened by Mrs. L. Hagle who very ably read poems of Thanksgiving by Hartroon Rees Pogue. This was followed by a short talk on the Methodist Crusade for Christ, by Mrs. A. C. Belding. This is a five-point program covering four years, no small part of which is to be the raising of $25,000,000 in the next 14 months to be used in the reconstruction and rehabilitation of our church property and workers respectively wherever war has disrupted them.

Mrs. Dick read an article reminding us of the privileges and freedoms of the women in our country as compared with the women of totalitarian governments. As an expression of gratitude for our better way of life, those present gave freely in their offerings.

A Thanksgiving brain teaser was enjoyed by the guests while the hostesses, Mrs. L. Hagle and Mrs. A. C. Helding spread tables for pumpkin pie and coffee.

It was a pleasant afternoon. The society adjourned to meet again at the church in two weeks for election of officers.

LEGION AUXILIARY HAS MEETING WITH MRS. GOSS

The American Legion Auxiliary met at the home of Mrs. W. E. Goss, Mon. evening, November 20. At the business meeting the vice president, Mrs. Lucy Garn presided, plans were made for the Christmas activities of the organization and for the Auxiliary Christmas party to be held at the home of Mrs. Harry Glossenger on December 18. A social hour and refreshments followed.

The story is an adaptation of the stage play which ran a year-and-a-half on Broadway and based on Eugene O'Neill's drama, one of three which won for him the coveted Nobel prize. Mathew Parks, also of Boyne City, a passenger in the car, was bruised. Both were treated at the Charlevoix hospital and dismissed to their homes. MICHIGAN MIRROR

Whether the American people exercised good judgment on November 7 is invariably a matter of personal opinion. It depends on what side of the fence you happened to be — assuming that you weren't straddling the fence itself.

For example, Michigan voters rejected three of the four state proposals. Home rule for Wayne county again went down in defeat, along with an increase of compensation for state legislators and a constitutional change permitting legislators to run for state office.

The one surviving proposal was the constitutional plan whereby a municipality may supply and sell water to houses outside the city limits. If all four proposals had been defeated, proponents might have concluded that an uninformed public had blindly voted "no". Apparently the people did THINK about these constitutional changes. Whether their thinking was good or bad is another matter — and your answer will be governed by your own opinions.

Consider for a minute the problem of old age pensions. You may pay 1 per cent MORE on your earnings in 1945. It's a social problem that affects your pocketbook as well as your future.

Here is a subject close to the heart of the Townsendites. Public opinion polls have repeatedly indicated a majority of the people favor extension of social security benefits.

Five states voted on age-pension proposals Nov. 7. Washington, Oregon, Arizona and California rejected plans contemplating monthly payments between $45 and $60 to persons over 60 or 65 years of age, these to be payable in some cases from specific sales taxes and in one case from general revenues. The fifth state, Colorado, adopted a modified age-pension act.

Your guess is as good as your neighbor's as to why the majority in the above states voted as they did. Was it to protect the state's finances? Did they believe that responsibility for larger age-pension payments rested on the federal government at Washington?

Inevitably when you try to venture an answer to either one of these questions, you come up against the immediate issue which now confronts the Congress of the United States: Shall the old-age-pension tax be doubled on January 1, 1945?

Senator Arthur Vandenberg has announced he will oppose the tax increase when the measure reaches the Senate from the House where, constitutionally, it must originate.

An additional 1 per cent tax on both employee and employer would realize between $1,250,000,000 and $1,500,000,000 annually. This sum would be added to the social security reserve fund which exists actually on paper, since the money has been loaned to other funds through "government I.O.U.'s."

The law originally provided that the tax on each party — employee and employer — should be gradually stepped up, reaching 3 per cent (total of 6 per cent) by January 1, 1949. It has been the senate finance committee's conviction that present reserves were adequate and that any increase now would only doubly assess the country for the cost of old age pensions.

The Michigan Retail Institute, representing tens of thousands of retailers throughout Michigan, is again opposing the tax increase. Organized labor is friendly to the proposal. Lines are being drawn for a showdown.

However, it is difficult to isolate one of the social security benefits from the others. That brings up the inevitable consideration of the general problem — do you favor an extension of present benefits, as both party nominees recommended during the fall campaign? What are you going to do about suggested public health insurance, for example?

The government of Canada, through a house of commons special committee, has proposed a basic minimum of economic security for every Canadian citizen. This security would cover unemployment, sickness, disability, old age and retirement, widowhood and orphanhood, and family needs (such as extra expenses of births, deaths and maintenance of children). Health insurance would provide complete medical and nursing services, hospitalization, medicines and drugs and dental care.

The government of Great Britain has its own national health insurance program, and the government has announced that it intends to extend this to everyone in the country. The cost would be divided among the government, both local and national, with contributions from employees and employers.

Since the people must make decisions in a democracy, they must be well informed if they are to act wisely.

Secretary Harold Ickes has criticized the newspapers for "failure" to lead public opinion, such as editorial advocacy of this and that.

We believe the chief function of the newspaper is to reflect public opinion through a thorough coverage of the news. The more the newspaper covers the news, the more it truly reflects public opinion. Here is the fundamental honesty of a free press!

As we have said before, you and Joe Doaks have some thinking to do about America's future. Let's weigh the facts.

The huge dryer and the removal of the seeds and dirt from the floss were sources of wonder to the pupils, and we could all have enjoyed a much longer stay, just to watch the floss and seeds being cared for. Mrs. Margie Bare kindly helped on the transportation part, so everyone was able to go.

MONEY ISN'T ALL IN HOME BEAUTY

A word of comfort for the homemaker who doesn't have a large amount of money to spend on home decorations comes from Mary Schell, assistant professor of related art, Michigan State college.

"Beauty in the home doesn't depend upon the quantity of money you spend," she maintains. "Rather," she says, "it is much better to have the home expressive of the personalities of the family than to make it in vulgar display to 'keep up with the Joneses'."

Good design in interiors is more often a matter of subtraction rather than addition. Care, repair, and arrangement of existing things often bring better results than the addition of something conspicuously new.

In beautifying the home, keep in mind that order and cleanliness are primary. Too much furniture often creates confusion and difficulty in cleaning.

Simplicity should be the keynote of every home that is in good taste, but at the same time a little color will do much to brighten a room. Bright curtains or colorful slip covers will satisfy this need.

Other suggestions for home beauty at low cost include dyeing the curtains to harmonize with the wall paper; quilting a bed cover to add interest to a bedroom; or making hooked or braided rugs from discarded materials.

DIPHTHERIA CASES ON INCREASE

The increase in diphtheria in Michigan led Dr. William DeKleine, state commissioner of health, to urge that all children between nine months and 11 years of age be given toxoid to protect them against this disease. October and November are usually the peak months for diphtheria cases, he said. Yet, during the first nine months of 1944 there was 30 per cent more diphtheria in Michigan than for the same period last year.

Toxoid given in two doses, a month apart, will protect children from this disease. The toxoid itself is manufactured and distributed free to all Michigan physicians by the health department laboratories. Parents may make sure that their children will not have diphtheria by taking them to a physician for this protective treatment.

Because diphtheria is specially dangerous for infants, taxoid should be given as soon as the baby is nine months old, Dr. DeKleine stated.

The conservation department hopes to demonstrate with small dams like that pictured above on Clear Creek, seven miles north of Seney, that controlled levels in streams can create pools that will help to increase trout carrying capacities of streams. This "man-made beaver dam" is an improvement over the dams built by beavers in that stream levels can be controlled at will and such man-made dams also allow free passage of fish up and down streams. Clear Creek, entirely on state-owned land, is a tributary of the east branch of the Fox River. The dam is a mile east of M-77 and near the department's Fox River trout rearing station.

A SILVER plaque, to be presented to the ship by Vick Chemical Company in honor of the man who founded "Vicks," Lunsford Richardson—noted industrialist, philanthropist, humanitarian—will memorialize the event. Its inscription reads:

"The S. S. LUNSFORD RICHARDSON carries the distinction of being so named by the U. S. Maritime Commission at the special request of leading Negro citizens of North Carolina 'to honor the memory of a white friend.' While founding an industrial empire of his own, he found time always to be of service to his fellow man."

The S. S. LUNSFORD RICHARDSON has just glided down the way at Brunswick, Georgia, the 55th Liberty Ship to be launched by the J. A. Jones Construction Company at this yard. Sponsoring it was Mrs. Grace Richardson Stetson, granddaughter of the late Lunsford Richardson. Co-sponsor was Miss Mollie Richardson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lunsford Richardson II, who were present for the christening ceremonies. Also present for the event was Watson Law, 71-year-old Negro of Greensboro, N. C., who traveled down to Brunswick to witness this honor to the memory of his white friend, and to a man who had contributed signally to the welfare of his race.

Portrait of a Patriot

He did not become patriotic by putting a flag out in front of his house every Fourth of July, Labor Day and George Washington's Birthday.

He did not fight in France. He did not land on Guadalcanal or Saipan. He was too old to be drafted.

But he did do something of the utmost importance . . .

He has worked out, in black and white, a plan for spending and a plan for saving—and he's living up to them. He is confining present spending only to necessities. He is saving every dollar he can. He is planning ahead to the peacetime years when his dollars will buy more. His plan calls for buying War Bonds. His plan includes a regular deposit in his bank account. His dollars are fighting to win the war and fighting to prevent a dangerous rise of prices on the Home Front. Hats off to a real patriot.

Dowager's Rights

By FAYE McGOVERN

McClure Syndicate—WNU Features.

"LEI MING," complained the dowager from the depths of her silken bed, "you aren't going to work in that hospital again today?"

Her daughter continued fastening her quilted black jacket. "Yes, Mother. They need me."

"But must you degrade yourself? Isn't there something more genteel you can do?"

Lei Ming shook her smooth dark head. "They need every helping hand they can get. The city is full of refugees in need of medical attention."

"But how can you expect me to arrange a suitable marriage if you persist in such associations? No man of character will want you."

"There are too many children who need attention now," sighed Lei Ming, turning away. "Many of them are homeless." She turned back suddenly. "If you would only come with me!"

The dowager settled her plump, perfumed self deeper among her pillows and sighed. There had been a time when the many splendid rooms of her house were filled to overflowing with prominent, notable, important people. But with the war's coming lavish social affairs were frowned upon, and life was exceedingly dull. And Lei Ming was becoming harder to understand.

Tears ran down her cheeks, and with her plump hands curled helplessly on the coverlet, her small mouth drawn into a pout, she fell asleep. When her frightened handmaid shook her she awoke with a start. "Madam! Lei Ming needs you. The rickshaw boy who brought the message waits without. Make haste!"

For the first time in all her sheltered life the dowager hurried. Tottering on her tiny bound feet she arrived at the rambling old mission hospital, her hair awry. The curious eyes of weary, hungry refugees followed her progress across the crowded courtyard. Greedy hands twitched at her silken trouser leg, and shrill voices pleaded for alms. Angry maledictions followed in her wake as she swept past, unheeding.

"I told my brother."

Rushing from the bright sunlight into the gloom of the building she collided with a very dirty-faced little girl who had been standing directly in her path watching her approach with awe.

"Must you stand in the way, child?" the woman scolded. "Goodness, don't shriek so. Here."

She dabbed at the child's tears. Immediately the howling ceased and a radiant smile lighted up the youngster's face. "Mmmmm," she cried. "You smell good."

An odd, half-forgotten warmth swept over the dowager. "Thank you, child," she said abruptly, and hurried on. She stumbled through three crowded rooms before she found Lei Ming efficiently bandaging a man's shoulder. "What does this mean?" demanded the dowager indignantly. "I thought you needed me."

"We do, Mother," Lei Ming said without ceasing her work. "Hand me the scissors, please."

Trembling with anger the older woman obeyed. "I never dreamed you could stoop to such trickery."

"I merely sent word you were needed, and you are. I'm sorry if you were frightened."

"Frightened! Of course I was —" A tug at her clothes caused her to look down. The little girl she had run into was holding a dirty little boy by the hand.

"I told my brother if he would let you wash his face he could smell you," cried the child eagerly.

The small boy grasped the dowager, pushed his face against one leg and inhaled deeply. He smiled and clung, staggering a little.

She stooped and picked him up. His head dropped against her soft shoulder and almost instantly he was asleep. For a moment the dowager looked uncertain. But when the child stirred and sighed, her clasp tightened. Decision brought pink spots to the plump cheeks she hadn't taken time to rouge. "I'll take these two home with me."

"Oh, thank you, Mother," Lei Ming cried. "But are you sure you can manage?"

"With a houseful of empty rooms and servants? Of course I can," was the retort. Then, with vigor, "And tell Dr. Wu if he wants to retain his fees he'll get the rest of the children up to my house—at once!"

A Cottage All Paid For

By Cpl. E. SMOLLETT

McClure Syndicate—WNU Features.

TWO couples were straggling along behind the rest, but the guide shrugged. Nobody got lost in the Broomburg Caves.

That elderly couple had most likely used up their wind climbing the hill from the hotel. As for the towhaired corporal and his pretty bride — they just didn't know anyone existed. Kids like that came to Niagara Falls because they had blissfully planned to come. Once they were there, the rest was hazy. They looked at each other, they ate, they breathed. They toured the caves because the caves lay behind the old Broomburg Hotel, and the tour was free to its patrons. . .

"Look, Hattie," white-haired Sam Smith said. "This one here is called — what's it say? — Acoustics Cavern."

His wife peered into the dimness. "Well, we've missed hearing the guide explain it, haven't we? But, Sam, look. Benches!"

Inside, they sank down and admired the pale grace of the stalactites that coned in silent splendor from the ceilings, and the stalagmites that shimmered upward. After a moment, the Smiths laughed and bent and eased off their shoes.

"I wonder," Hattie Smith mused, "why they call it Acoustics Cavern?"

That was when the younger couple caught up with them. "Some day, booey," the towheaded corporal was saying, "I'll show you the real thing — those big caves down in New Mexico!" He stopped short with his slim bride, seeing the Smiths. The Smiths smiled a little. Then they stopped smiling, in surprise, for the corporal exclaimed: "Heck! I thought we'd be alone in here!"

And his bride replied, just as clearly, "But it's only that old couple, Ted. They look nice, and not snoopy. Let's go sit across from them."

The Smiths turned to stare at each other, catching their breaths a little. Then it struck them both at once, and Sam Smith grinned at his wife. So they called this place Acoustica Cavern, did they? But it was too late to put their fingers in their ears. . . .

"It's beautiful, isn't it?" The girl leaned her bright head on the young corporal's shoulder. "Ted, just look at that pinkish stuff, the way the light hits it. The whole place is lovely. Even . . . even those two people sitting there, Ted . . . Why, it's just like seeing into a crystal!"

"What do you mean, honey?"

"Oh, Ted, I don't exactly know. Just that—Ted, what will you bet they're on their second honeymoon, maybe even celebrating their golden anniversary?"

Sam Smith's hand crept tenderly over his wife's still fingers.

"I'll bet they're not," the corporal said. "I'll bet they always wanted to come to Niagara Falls just as we did, and he got a good war job or something, and it's the first time they could ever afford it."

". . . with the kids all grown up and married," put in the girl eagerly, "and the cottage all paid for, and maybe . . their grandchildren coming to stay every summer."

They looked at each other, smiling. "I guess I understand now what you meant about seeing into a crystal," the towhaired corporal said softly. "All those things are what we're going to have, aren't they, honey?"

"Yes, Ted. All those things . . . You can tell, by the way fate put us here, looking at those two!"

The Smiths sat very still. They heard the corporal say, though he seemed only to be whispering it: "Honey, you mustn't ever be afraid I won't come back. I'll bet they went through a war too, and he came back! So you keep right on looking into your crystal, and everything will come out O. K."

When they rose to leave, the Smiths followed them with their eyes. The corporal and his bride stopped at the entrance. "I wonder," he said, "why they call this place Acoustica Cavern? See the sign? I didn't hear anything funny in there. Did you?"

When they had disappeared, the Smiths turned to each other swiftly, and Sam Smith took his wife's trembling hands in his. She said, "Sam, I'll never forget a word they said. That's . . that's the way I'll think about us from now on. I'll believe in all those things about . . . about our golden anniversary, and our cottage all paid for, and the children staying for the summer —"

Sam Smith grinned. "All right, Hattie; dream if you like, but I'm going to think of us just as we are! Nothing could have been more wonderful than the way you came into my life — not that anything's too much to expect from you war-plant women. There I was, foreman for a good twenty years, with never a female in the place!"

"And there was I," said Hattie Smith as they bent to fasten their shoes, "never finding the right man till I took a job filing books for Navy planes . . ."

The elderly couple left Acoustica Cavern just in time to merge with the other sightseers, now on their way back. The guide glanced at them out of the corner of his eye.

Nice old pair. The kind that always stopped to take their shoes off, to get their second wind.

Kala-azar seems to be transmitted to man by the bite of the desert sandfly, perhaps by the bedbug in India, and also by a mosquito known as the "sinopheles puntipenis." The disease occurs along the Mediterranean shore in West Africa, Mesopotamia, Southern Russia, India, North China, and Brazil. It is marked by fever, progressive anemia, wasting, enlargement of the spleen and liver and dropsy.

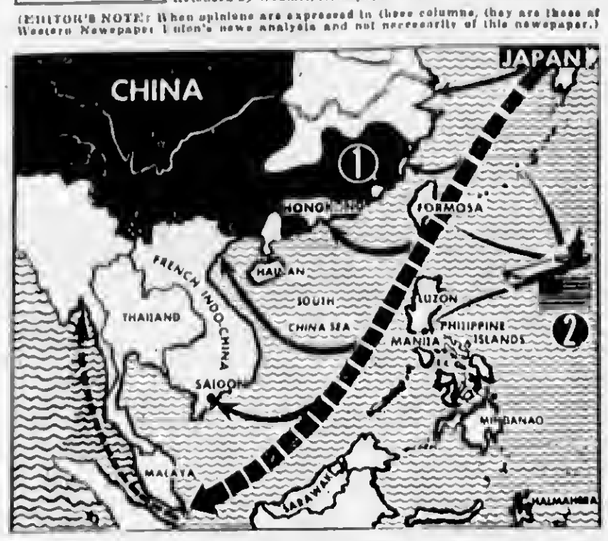
WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Major Battles Shape As Enemy Attempts to Hold Philippines; Shake Nazis' Grip on Holland

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysis and not necessarily of this newspaper.)



With superfortresses operating from China (1) and U. S. carrier forces ranging in Philippine waters (2), important Jap supply line indicated by heavy broken arrow is threatened. Smaller arrows mark ports through which enemy moves material for shipment to homeland to keep war effort going and to supply his troops operating in the far-flung Asiatic theater.

EUROPE:
Holland Battleground

While U. S. forces continued to hit the Germans hard on the central and southern sectors of the 460 mile western front, Canadian and British troops were pressed to clear the Nazis from southwestern Holland and open up the big port of Antwerp for Allied military traffic.

Bitterest fighting in Holland centered about the mouth of the Schelde river, which leads to Antwerp. Here, the enemy occupied two strategical positions, one along the south bank of the Schelde, the other on the islands blocking the entrance to the waterway.

As long as the enemy could hold these positions, so long could he train his big guns on Allied ships trying to move down the Schelde to Antwerp, to unload the vital materials needed by the British forces for their drive around Kleve, at the northern gateway to the industriol Ruhr valley.

Overcoming bitter German resistance, the Canadians gradually wore down the Nazis on the south bank of the Schelde, while Allied bombers joined in the attack on enemy emplacements on the islands, partially flooded from ruptured dikes.

While the Canadians slowly narrowed the German pocket south of the Schelde, the British 2nd army opened a drive to the northeast in an attempt to smash through Nazi lines, race to the sea and cut off the enemy from the rear.

On the central sector of the western front, Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton's 3rd army pushed to the south of the ring of forts guarding the city of Metz, key to the coal-laden Saar basin, while on the southern end of the battle-line, Lieut. Gen. Alexander Patch's 7th army pushed onward against strong prepared enemy positions on the slopes of the Vosges mountains, blocking entrance to Bavaria.

East of fallen Aachen, Lieut. Gen. Courtney Hodges 1st army girded for a smash at the Rhineland, 25 miles distant.

Drive Into East Prussia

In East Prussia, powerful Russian forces massed along an 87 mile front chewed deep into the northern and eastern regions of the province, home of the notorious German military Junkers.

As the Germans fell back before the concentrated might of the Red army, they sought to hold up their lines in the wooded lake country, which von Hindenburg had successfully defended against Russian troops in World War I.

Forced to bring powerful forces into play to guard the southern gateway to Austria, the Germans slowed the Russian steamroller through Hungary as the Reds smashed within 50 miles of Budapest.

News Briefs . . .

One billion dollars in fuel could be saved each year in the existing dwellings of the United States, according to an estimate in the Bureau of Mines Information Circular. Such measures include caulking of cracks and other openings with modern caulking compounds, insulation, storm windows, weatherstrips, and other means.

Southern coastal waters support a greater variety of fish and shellfish than elsewhere in the U. S.

PACIFIC:
Major Battle

After bitter, but minor, battles in the Japs' Pacific outposts, a major engagement shaped in the Philippines, with the enemy throwing in strong aerial and naval forces to back up his ground troops resisting the U. S. invasion of the islands.

Principal land fighting centered on Leyte island, where General MacArthur's forces overran three airfields and sought to battle up the enemy in the broad Leyte valley lying inland from the coast.

Japanese resistance was ferocious as doughboys, paced by medium tanks, worked through the heavy underbrush to strike into the southern part of the valley at San Pablo, while others repulsed enemy counterattacks farther north to push into the valley beyond Palo.

Having routed the Japs from the principal port of Tacloban in the northeastern section of the island, doughboys fought their way up the coast along the San Juanico straits, and reportedly jumped the narrow waters to land on the big island of Samar.

As doughboys battered forward through the heat and mire on Leyte, important sea battles developed, with U. S. carrier planes taking a heavy toll of Japanese warships seeking to move in western Philippine waters to bombard American land positions. In an effort to disrupt reinforcements, the Japs sent squads of bombers after units of the huge convoy supplying MacArthur's liberating troops.

CIVILIAN GOODS:
Allot Production

Nearly 800 plants with available facilities and manpower have been authorized to manufacture $152,441,000 of civilian goods within the next year, the War Production board announced.

Included in the list of articles to be produced are automotive parts, building materials, plumbing and heating items, harvesting machinery, innerspring mattresses, vacuum cleaners, household aluminum, lawn mowers, electric irons, bicycles, silverware, furniture, electric lamps and church supplies.

Use of 44,270 tons of carbon steel, 512 tons of alloy steel, 902,154 pounds of brass mill products, 140,379 pounds of wire mill products, 450,148 pounds of foundry products, and 17,393,563 pounds of aluminum has been approved for the output covered by the report.

Textile Control

Primarily because of short production, WPB will have to maintain textile controls after the defeat of Germany, Chairman J. A. Krug announced. Due principally to manpower difficulties, cotton textile output slumped from 11,200,000,000 yards in 1942 to an estimated 9,900,000,000 yards this year.

At the same time, Krug revealed, already lowered inventories of rationed shoes will be further depleted with production down 73,000,000 pairs from estimated needs of 349,000,000.

In an order relating to domestic cooking appliances and heating stoves, WPB permitted manufacture of oven thermostats and burner valves.

Island Paradise

With a population of nearly 17,000,000, the Philippines consist of more than 7,000 islands, big and little, says the National Geographic society.

In all, the area amounts to more than 115,000 square miles—a tropical spread of luxuriant vegetation and extensive forests, with mountains (many of them active volcanoes) reaching up some 9,000 feet, above the surrounding countryside.

FRANCE:
Recognize De Gaulle

Long the bearer of the banner of the "Free French," General Charles De Gaulle's provisional government was recognized as the proper ruling authority in liberated France, with full power behind the immediate battle-lines.

Effect of the Allies' action was to strengthen the tall, stiff general's hand in dealing with the country's batch of political groups, which previously had been holding out in hope of attracting recognition liberated France's affairs.

Upon announcement of the Allies' move, the U. S. undertook to permit the travel of necessary business or professional personnel in France; unfreeze 1 billion dollars of French assets in this country to supply funds for trade, etc.

Purge Collaborationists

The scene in Paris' court of justice trying French collaborators could have been torn from the page of a story book.

Wearing a scarlet robe with a white ermine collar, Judge Auguste Ledoux sat on the bench, flanked by six jurors. Bailiffs wore frock coats and white ties and police were attired in black jackets, blue pants and red caps.

Unkempt and nervous, ex-collaborationist Editor Georges Suarez stood before the bench to hear Judge Ledoux pronounce the death sentence for contact with the enemy. Suarez's lawyer had argued that since France had concluded an armistice with Germany, the two countries no longer were at war, hence could not be foes.

As Suarez was led away, 1,500 other collaborationists in the Paris area awaited trial.

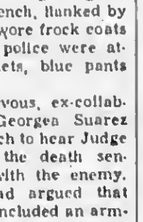
Campaign Platform

Heated issue as the presidential campaign swung into its closing phases was handling of foreign affairs.

Said Candidate Roosevelt: "I will not say to you now, or ever, that we of my party know all the answers. I am certain, for myself, that I do not know how all the unforeseeable difficulties can be met. What I can say to you is this—that I have unlimited faith that the job can be done. And that faith is based on knowledge gained in the arduous, practical and continuing experience of these past eventful years . . ."

FDR

Said Candidate Dewey: "To hear (some people) talk, you would think that the United States had never shown any competence in foreign relations. The names of Blaine and Hay and Root of Hughes, Kellogg and Stimson . . . are linked to such achievements as the good neighbor policy, the open door for China, the Hague peace conference, the disarmament conference, the pact of Paris to outlaw war, the World Court, the policy of nonrecognition of conquest . . . Every one of these great secretaries of state . . . was a Republican . . ."



Gov. Dewey

CROP LOSS:
Hurricane's Toll

As it swirled through Cuba and Florida, the recent hurricane not only took a heavy toll of life and property, but also severely damaged the citrus fruit and sugar crops.

Between 50 and 75 per cent of the grapefruit and 20 to 30 per cent of the orange crops were blown from Florida trees, observers estimated, and directors of the state's Citrus exchange requested an immediate boost in price ceilings.

In addition to the destruction of enough cane to yield approximately 200,000 tons of sugar, machinery and warehouses of several refiners were buffeted by the hurricane in Cuba.

G.I. JOE:
Challenge Pickets

Rallying at 12th and Baltimore streets in Kansas City, U. S. soldiers, including beribboned overseas vets, challenged union pickets twice within three days.

On the first occasion, 75 servicemen stalked to the North American Aviation company's bomber plant where 2,000 employees had struck over protest of a transfer to another department and angrily tore up three CIO pickets' placards and broke their sticks.

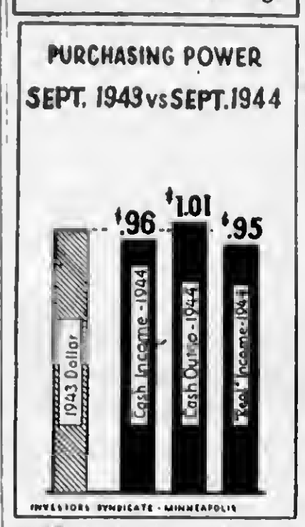
Two days later, another group of soldiers approached an elderly AFL picket protesting over the employment of non-union painters in the decoration of a liquor store, and removed a small American flag atop his placard.

CUTBACKS

With many cutbacks of war contracts representing cancellations of future increases, or reductions of manufacturers' goals to attainable levels, only 83,000 workers have been displaced by the terminations, the War Production board reported. In four months, large cancellations amounted to about $980,000,000.

Because of the continuing expansion in many war programs, however, both manufacturers and employees have been in a position to obtain other work.

American 'Real Income' In September Off 5c On $1 From Year Ago



THE above chart, showing how the average American fared in national income changes in the last twelve months, is based on the monthly consumers' study of Investors Syndicate of Minneapolis.

The American public in September had a "real income" of 95 cents, or five cents on the dollar less than in September, 1943. This "real income" is not a subtraction of cash income and expenditures but an average relative of these figures designed to show how living costs affect adjusted income dollars.

Cash income of the American public in September was 96 cents for every $1 a year earlier. The following changes per dollar were: wages off 8 cents, salaries off 5 cents on the $1.00; other income off 5 cents on the dollar and investment income at $1.07 was up seven cents.

Rents in September were unchanged compared with a year ago. Clothing was up four cents. Food was unchanged. Miscellaneous items were up one cent.

In mild winters, some wild geese remain in Michigan, but the last usually go south as soon as the ice closes the lakes, in late November or December.

The Whistling Swan is a regular and not uncommon Michigan migrant, both fall and spring. When passing over in October and early in November they seem to be in a hurry, seldom stopping for more than a few days.

Trapping by farmers of muskrats on ponds whose water levels have been lowered by drought conditions of recent weeks, to prevent heavy winter losses, is advised by conservation department game men. The muskrat trapping season opens in downstate counties December 1, continues through the month. It opened in northern counties of the lower peninsula November 15 and in the upper peninsula November 1, the season extending for one month in all instances.

Bounties were paid during October on 285 male and 281 female coyotes, five male and seven female wolves, 74 male and 59 female bobcats.

Efforts of individuals to improve fishing in their favorite lakes bring no cheers from the conservation department; may bring fines instead.

Citing the instance of a resort operator who transferred about 80 perch and 25 adult smallmouth bass taken from a neighboring lake to the lake where his resort is located, the department points out that such an act is punishable by a maximum fine of $100.

Shooting of birds or other game from the seat of a tractor-drawn corn binder or other mechanically driven farm implement is an unlawful method of hunting, the conservation department emphasizes. Farm implements are classed with automobiles, airplanes, floating devices or other contrivances "propelled by or using as motive power, steam, gas, naptha, oil, gasoline, or electricity," in the meaning of the law.

The point is raised because a boy recently wounded himself in attempting to bag a pheasant from a bucking tractor seat.

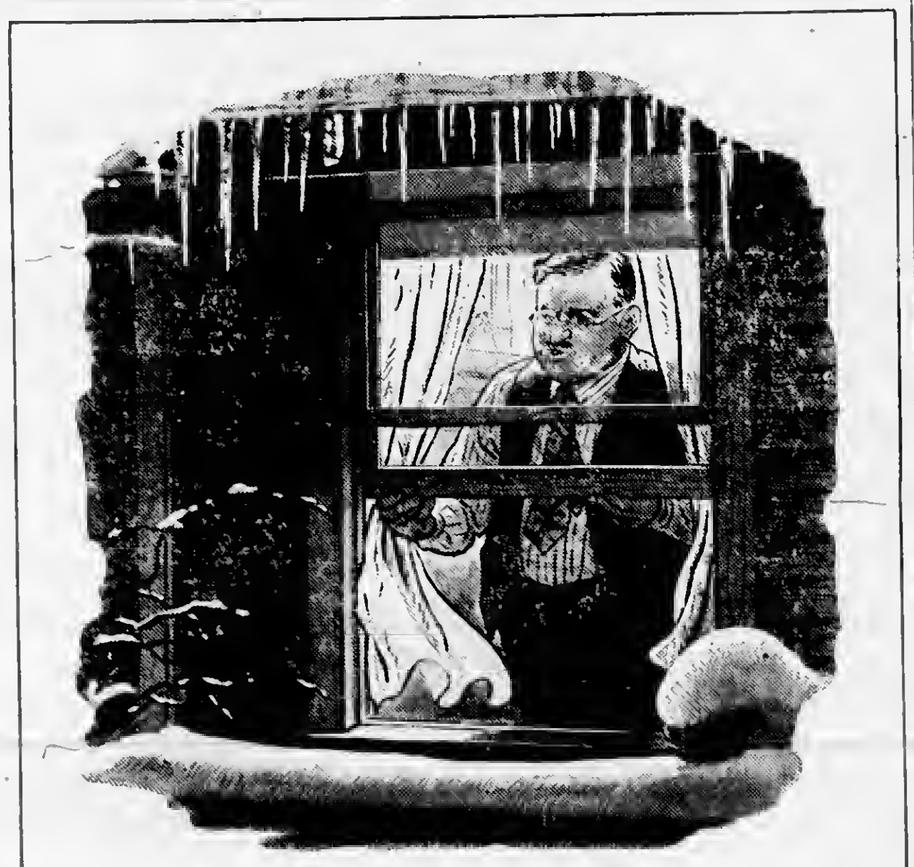
"World's Wonder": A Portable Harbor

ONE OF THE MOST REMARKABLE engineering feats of all time was the designing, building, and towing across the English Channel of two "synthetic" harbors, each the size of the port of Dover, England. The necessary concrete caissons, floating breakwaters, piers and roadways—clearly visible in this picture—were made by Britain from plans [illegible] of the British Admiralty and War Office. One of these two ports was turned over to the [illegible] this picture shows a busy scene in one of these "portable harbors," as ships unload supplies [illegible] beaches for the Allied armies advancing [illegible].



Warm—but not fair!

JOE'S got the house too hot by careless firing of the furnace, so he's trying to heat all outdoors by opening the windows. Through wasteful practices, he isn't being fair to his own family—or to other families using coal. He isn't helping America.

This winter it's vital to conserve coal as never before. This isn't because less coal is being produced. Actually, millions more tons are being mined this year than last—by fewer men. Quite a tribute to mine owners and miners alike!

There are adequate facilities for hauling coal to your city. But certain grades and sizes of coal are needed for war production. And, in addition, your local coal dealer is handicapped by a shortage of manpower, trucks and tires. So be patient with him. Order before you're down to your last shovelful.

And conserve the coal he is able to deliver to you through firing carefully, closing off unused rooms, pulling down shades at night and through other simple precautions. For other suggestions see your coal dealer.

One of the biggest jobs of the C&O Lines is hauling coal from the mines along its routes, so we're in a position to understand the problem, and to know how essential coal is these days.

Skim Milk Fights Costly Pig Parasites

Experiments Prove Value of Diet Plan

Internal parasites that attack pigs may be largely eliminated by liberal feedings of skim milk, according to department of agriculture investigators. During recent experiments some pigs received skim milk daily and others were given it as their only feed for three days at intervals of several weeks. Severe exposure to parasites was provided.

In a 57-day test, the pigs getting milk daily made an average gain of 50 pounds, and those fed grain exclusively gained only 40 pounds, on the average. Examination of carcasses of the milk-fed groups showed less than half as many parasites as the grain-fed pigs, and some of the milk-fed pigs were practically free of such pests in spite of the severe exposure.

A second experiment of 98 days duration, under similar conditions except that intermittent skim-milk feedings were two weeks apart, confirmed the first. The milk-fed pigs gained from 83 to 115 pounds, on the average, and were found to be free from parasites or to have only a few. The grain-fed pigs, similarly exposed to infection, gained a fraction less than 32 pounds to the 98 days and at the end of the experiment were heavily infested with intestinal worms.

It is pointed out that under practical conditions, sanitary practices and general good management should be used to protect animals against exposure to parasites as far as possible. When the presence of parasites is suspected, however, and skim milk is available, beneficial results may be obtained from the latter's use as a parasiticide as well as a feed. Satisfactory gains, the scientists declare, and freedom from severe parasitism can be attained by feeding milk moderately each day or by giving large quantities for a few days at intervals of two or three weeks.

Application of the results of the "skim milk" experiments in war time should be governed by relative current needs for milk and pork. It is pointed out that in the central western area, where most of the country's hogs and many of the cattle are raised, the usual farm practice is to separate the milk, selling only the cream for butter making. Large quantities of skim milk are thus made available.

Agriculture In the News

Money in Feathers.

The discovery that chicken feathers contain 100 per cent protein promotes them from a fertilizer to an excellent material for plastics and other articles of commerce.

Machines have already been perfected for the conversion of feathers into protein and plastics. The value of feathers as a soft, warmth producing material has long been recognized. Many of the Russian army coats are lined with feathers. In the U. S. army feathers have proved of great value in the work of camouflage.

Chicken

Other feather products include a substitute yarn, a plywood adhesive for planes and PT boats, insulation material and a plywood material. The plastic can be used for sewing up wounds, its great advantage being that as the body heals, it absorbs the stitches. Serious attempts are being made in various countries to convert feathers into human food.

Tractor Faults

If the tractor lacks power the fault may lie in lack of compression, improper ignition timing or faulty carburetor setting. Leaky or broken piston rings, evidenced by lack of compression and undue hissing in the crankcase, causes serious loss of power. The spark plug gap setting, spark timing and carburetor adjustment should always be in accordance with instruction book of recommendations furnished by the tractor manufacturer.

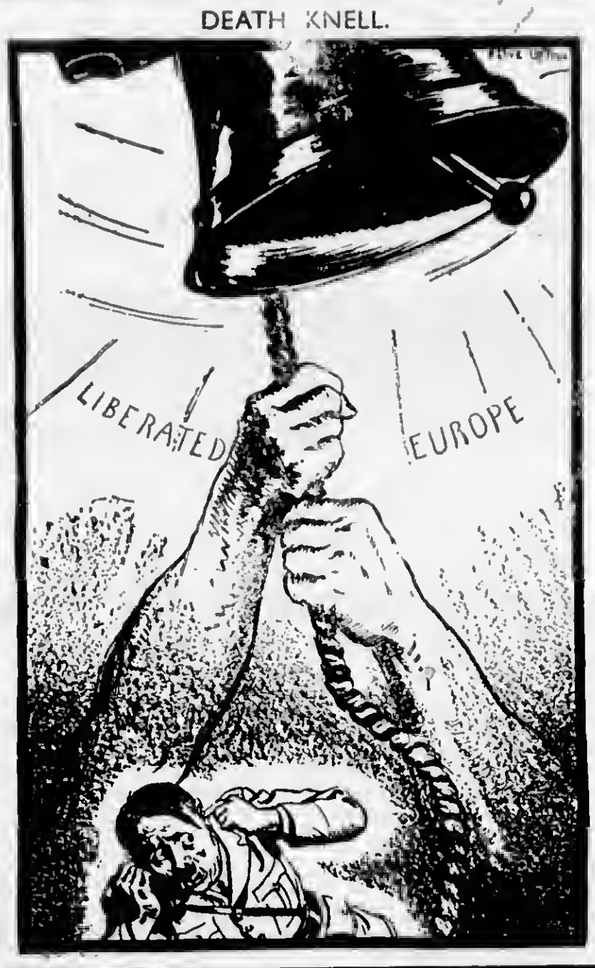
DEATH KNELL.



Ann Arbor Minister, Now Bishop, Shows Banner of Modern Crusade

DES MOINES, Ia.—Dr. Charles Wesley Brashares (left), elected bishop last June and assigned to supervise Iowa's 1,200 Methodist churches, points out to a friend the symbolism of a mantle laid by laymen upon his shoulders during recent installation ceremonies here.

Bishop Brashares explains that the words "1944—Crusade for Christ—1948" refer to Methodism's five-point, post-war program, which includes raising 25 million dollars for relief and reconstruction. The location of the cross on the world map is to indicate the future importance of the Pacific area. The Iowa map divides the state into the conferences and districts under the Bishop's jurisdiction.

For the decade prior to his selection Bishop Brashares was the pastor of First Methodist Church, Ann Arbor, and director of the Wesley Foundation at the University of Michigan.

The paramount importance placed upon dairy products by Government and the fighting forces has imposed gigantic problems upon the entire industry. 1,680,000 gallons of milk each day were required in 1941 to make the whole-milk dairy products for lend-lease and military needs. In 1943, that had increased to 4,910,000 gallons every day. It is still higher in 1944.

To supply this milk, the National Dairy Council points out that all the products from more than 210,000 farms with ten good cows each is required. This is in addition to vast quantities of separated milk necessary to produce the non-fat milk solids for lend-lease and military purposes. Never in the world's history has the dairy industry contributed so much to the nourishment of the fighting forces of its nation.

They Are Buying War Bonds —Are You?

Lt. Leo Klein, 27, Scranton, Pa., hospitalized with burns and compound fracture of both legs, was a B-17 bombardier-navigator with 14 missions accomplished when ordered to a rest home. The train on which he was riding figured in a wreck near London and he suffered wounds that had passed him by on dangerous missions. War Bonds funds are mending his burts.

SCHOOL NOTES

Kindergarten

We are happy this morning to have Glennie Ikens, Arlene Smith, Tracy Curtis and Kathleen Fessenden back in school after being ill. There are still quite a few boys and girls absent, and it will be nice when they all come back.

During the holiday for Thanksgiving, Mr. Powers brought stones from the beach for the fish pond. The turtle seems to like the stony bottom much better, and the pond looks so shiny and clean.

We are quite proud of our exhibit of China, which we have made in connection with our History work.

English II

The sophomore English classes have been and are studying the fundamentals of English grammar. They have begun with the most elementary principles of the simple sentence and will gradually delve deeper into the subject of sentence structure.

In public speaking class, textbook material is demanding the students' attention this week, the content of which deals with the methods of arousing general audience interest.

Latin I

The students of Latin I are engaged in drill practice over the various constructions already learned and are soon to be introduced to verbs of the 4th conjugation.

American History

The War of 1812 gave the United States an opportunity to secure its independence on the high seas as well as secure its borders against occasional attacks of the British and Indians. This conflict was, however, only a sidelight for the bigger war that was being fought between the British and Napoleon. Both the British and the French proposed to put the squeeze on any neutral country that seemed to be aiding the enemy. It appeared that the strength of the British navy enabled it to have a greater adverse effect on the trade of the United States than was the case with the French navy.

This information shows how the old problem of trade advantages leads into war.

Man-Made Earthquake

AT AN RAF BOMBER BASE in England a Lancaster II opens its bomb bay to receive the newest and most destructive air weapon ever used, the 12,000 pound "earthquake" bomb. Combining devastating blast effect with tremendous penetrative power this new 6 ton steamlined blockbuster makes a crater 100 feet across and can drill its way through 12 feet of concrete. RAF Bomber Command used these bombs to blast the U-boat pens at Brest and to breach the sea wall on the island of Walcheren.

Mr. Bennett, who is secretary-treasurer of the Central Trust Company in Lansing, stated that judging from early returns, buyers are increasing their purchases this year, many doubling the amount they purchased last year. The annual tuberculosis seal sale is the sole support of the Association which conducts a year-round program of tuberculosis control by case finding, adult and child education, and rehabilitation.

MARKETING OF WOOD AND WOOD PRODUCTS CONFERENCE DECEMBER 14th

Specialist W. Ira Bull To Meet With Farmers, Loggers, and Mill Owners

A very important meeting will be held in the Boyne City Library on Thursday, December 14, at 2 P. M. Specifications and marketing outlook for wood products such as pulpwood, excelsior wood and saw timber will be the main topics for discussion. Many changes have taken place in recent months in regard to the specifications and requirements, and all folks in any way interested in any phase of forestry should attend.

The war effort needs more wood and wood products. Prices have somewhat increased for certain types of wood products. Farmers can make a very satisfactory income from working in their woodlots during the winter months when the agricultural activity lags. This meeting will be very informal, and any problems pertaining to the subject will be welcome. Remember the date, Thursday afternoon, Boyne City Library, December 14th, at 2:00 P. M. Tell your neighbors and mark the date down on your calendar.

Bonds Over America

CALIFORNIA TOWER

Beautiful and characteristic, the tower of the California Building at San Diego tells the story of a race that ran its course before Europeans saw this continent. Recalling, too, the Spanish conquerors of Mexico and the coming of the first California settlers, it emphasizes the golden legends that were carried back to the Old World. If there was no gold in the streets, there was plenty in the hills. America has made good many times over the tallest tales ever told about its riches. That it may continue to grow and prosper, our men are battling throughout the world. So, too, everyone on the home front can help insure the future by buying more War Bonds to back our fighting men on land and sea and to save for post-war progress and security.

CHRISTMAS TREE SEASON AGAIN HERE

Again we are in the season of the year when Christmas trees are being cut and hauled to towns and cities to take their important part in the Christmas season. Charles Figy, Commissioner of Agriculture, states, that already the department has found that some folks have forgotten that there is a state law requiring anyone moving Christmas trees or decorative boughs on the highway, to be ready for a check up of credentials showing a bill of sale where the trees were purchased. If they are cut from a party's own land he should carry some legal document denoting ownership of said property. The written bill of consent shall contain the legal description of the land where such Christmas trees, boughs, shrubs, vines or native plants were cut as well as the name of the legal owner, and must be signed by two witnesses. This law was enacted in 1933 and was put on the statute books for the purpose of protecting Michigan's Reforestation Program and to prevent the taking of trees from property unknown to the land owner.

C. A. Boyer, director of the Bureau of Plant Industry, states that the Inspection service is being maintained 24 hours per day, at five important locations as follows: Menominee, Iron Mountain, Bay City, Clare and Reed City and that checking is also done by all state police, conservation officers and other law enforcing officials. Up to the present time Mr. Boyer states, not as many trees are being cut as were a year ago at this time.

Pioneer Resident Celebrates His 91st Birthday

George Lord, pioneer resident of northern Michigan, celebrated his 91st birthday anniversary at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Colon McKenzie, on Wednesday, November 29. He received many remembrances of the day including a lovely plant from the Norwood Ladies Aid.

Mr. Lord was born in Ellensburg, N. Y., in 1853. He married Jane Bilow in 1876 and a year later they came to Michigan to make their home. For two years they lived in Grand Haven where Mr. Lord worked as a fisherman. In 1880 the family came to Antrim county and settled on a homestead near Atwood, where they lived until Mrs. Lord's death in 1922. Mr. Lord then retired from farming and lived in Petoskey until coming to Charlevoix to live with Mrs. McKenzie six years ago.

Besides Mrs. McKenzie, he has two other daughters and a son, Mrs. John Recignol of Petoskey, Mrs. Merrill Richardson and Ervin Lord, of Norwood. He also has 16 grandchildren and nineteen great-grandchildren. Three grandsons are in the service. A fourth, Pfc. Delta Richardson, was killed in action in France in June.

Mr. Lord would like to take this opportunity to thank the Norwood Ladies Aid and friends for the plant and cards.

Announce Loans and Price Supports for Potatoes

The loan and price support program for 1944 potatoes is outlined as follows by Walter H. Henley, Chairman of the Charlevoix County AAA Committee.

Support prices per hundredweight for U. S. No. 1 potatoes, in new bags, graded, inspected and loaded, F.O.B. Carrier are as follows: October $2.05; November $2.20 and December $2.30. Dealer margins for selling, inspection, grading, sacking, hauling and loading total 49c per hundredweight. A grower will receive credit for any of the above services which he performs himself. Government loans on potatoes stored on farms or in approved warehouses are now available, and will continue to December 15. For U. S. No. 1 quality the loan rate is $1.39 per hundredweight for farm storage and $1.49 for warehouse storage. A loan of 47c is available on U. S. No. 1, size B and U. S. No. 2 (1 7-8 inch minimum) grades for farm storage and 57c for warehouse storage.

The loans, which will be secured by chattel mortgages and bear interest at 3 per cent per annum, are payable wholly, or in part, on demand but not later than March 31, 1945. Growers may not voluntarily tender potatoes in satisfaction of loans before January 1, 1945, unless the potatoes must be disposed of to avoid excessive loss.

Although the loan rates are less than the full support prices, upon delivery of the potatoes in satisfaction of loans, borrowers will be credited with the full support prices that apply to the condition of the potatoes at the time of delivery.

Full details about the loan program are available at the County AAA Office.

MICHIGAN MIRROR

Re-election of Governor Kelly to a second term has led to a movement among Republican leaders to favor a four-year term for state elective officials by constitutional amendment. Robert S. Ford, director of the state department of business administration, released a prepared statement that he planned to ask the legislature to adopt a joint resolution whereby an amendment would be offered to the voters.

A four-year term for state elective officials is opposed by some 50 members of the board of control of the Michigan Federation of Young Republicans, according to Gordon Walker of Detroit, chairman. He was quoted as follows, "If the officials do a good enough job, the voters would re-elect them to second terms as they did Governor Kelly."

A recess of one month is proposed for the 1945 legislative session to permit completion of budget bills.

Governor Kelly is said to favor continuation of an annual legislative session during the next biennium (1945-1946).

On the ground that the state constitution of Michigan prohibited lotteries, Circuit Judge Guy A. Miller ruled in Detroit that the 1933 horse racing act legalizing betting was invalid. The judge said the "sensible construction of the word (lottery) is that the people of Michigan intended to see to it that the legislature should never permit gambling enterprises in this state whose outcome depended on the operation of chance." He maintained that the state itself was therefore engaged in "criminal operations".

The Michigan State Grange recently asked the State of Michigan "to get out of the liquor business." Under present control, the state holds a monopoly on the distribution of liquor. The net income or profit for the last fiscal year was $24,068,000 of which close to $19,000,000 came from the sale of liquor. Liquor sales increased about 10 per cent from last year's volume.

In the meanwhile, all has not been peaceful at offices of the state liquor control commission. A controversy has existed over division of authority between members of the commission and the business manager, Brig. Gen. Louis A. Kunsig. This culminated recently in the resignation of the secretary, J. F. Richardson, and appointment of a successor, Geo. E. Bullen. Richardson resigned on Nov. 8; Bullen began work Nov. 16, and the news was casually disclosed by Commissioner Felix H. Flynn on Nov. 22.

The civil service commission has its troubles. Members are not in complete agreement over the constitutional power of the commission in the field of salaries of state employees. Alex J. Groesbeck, former governor, is said to believe that the commission has the authority to require legislative appropriations to cover fixed salaries. Groesbeck's resignation has not been accepted by Governor Kelly. Labor leaders have proposed a $1,800 minimum salary and a 40 hour week with time and one-half for overtime.

Post-war construction projects of Michigan local governments total $303,000,000. This information was revealed recently when local governments filed applications with the state planning commission for a part of $5,000,000 set aside by the legislature for state aid in meeting drafting costs. Don W. Weeks is the director.

A survey by Fire Marshal Arnold C. Renaer recently discloses that few court houses in Michigan possess fireproof storage facilities to protect important documents such as property descriptions.

Because the snowfall last winter was not heavy, only 33 counties will share in the 1944 highway snow removal fund, compared to 71 counties a year ago. As the annual $200,000 distribution is based on the previous winter's snowfall, the net result will be to increase the amounts to participating counties. Thus, Chippewa county will receive $14,301 compared to $5,242 last year.

The state conservation commission has agreed to buy the General Motors corporation's holding of timber in the most rugged portion of the Porcupine mountain area. The purchase amount is $476,000.

A sales tax income of approximately $100,000,000 is in sight for 1944, according to Louis M. Nims, commissioner of the state revenue department. Tax payments are arriving at the rate of $97,500,000 a year with the Christmas buying season yet ahead . . . The U. S. department of commerce has forecast a decline in consumer income for 1945. Nims puts his 1945 forecast at $92,000,000.

The state stream control commission has ordered the city of Saginaw to complete a sewage collection and treatment system and to stop dumping raw sewage into the Saginaw river. The commission served its first notice in September, 1938.

Because of war-time conditions, tuberculosis deaths in Michigan are on the increase, so reminds the Michigan Tuberculosis association which opened its Christmas Seal campaign this week.

Anticipating the eventual enrollment of 50,000 veterans in Michigan colleges and universities, the state board of education has approved applications of 25 educational institutions to train war veterans under the Federal GI bill of rights law.

USO Thanksgiving Party

WHITE MEAT OR DARK?—This age-old question, asked in American homes on Thanksgiving Day for three hundred years, will be put to thousands of G. I.'s visiting USO clubs on Thanksgiving eve and the holiday itself, as volunteers slice countless turkeys, hams and chickens for buffet suppers in the clubs. Here Corporal James H. Mason, of Dayton, Ohio, watches a volunteer carve a turkey for the Thanksgiving party at the USO club in New Rochelle, N. Y. All USO club activities are financed by the American people through the National War Fund.

Farm Woodlands Good Income Source

Most Wood Items Can Be Homemade

Farmers make up one nf the largest consumer groups for forest products. Constructinn and maintenonce of form buildings require 3½ billion linard feet of lumber snnually, with another 2½ billion gning into boxes and crates. In addition, pulpwood requirements for cartons and bags, plus wagon wood stock, wood for farm machinery, and other uses take still more lumber.

Spacific uses of forest products on farms include repair of farm buildings, repair of farm implements such as wagons, wood atock for wagon tongues, eveners, wagons, hoxea, hayracks, tool handies, new buildings to house expanded crop, liveatock and poultry production, fenea posts and gates, and new buildings for replacing losses caused by tornadoes, firea and storms.

Marketing the fruit and vegetable crops only in 1944 will require aome 190 million new baskets and hampers, 450 million berry cups, 50 million wirebound veneer boxes, more than 300 million nailed boxes and crates, and large quantities of paper and pulp products for wraps, liners, pads, bags and cartons. Additional containers will be necessary for othar farm crops.

Increasing farm woodland produetion will help in meeting auch marketing needs which are essential to the food production program, aeeording to WFA, which reports that the many veneer mills, basket and crate factories, and pulp and paper mills look to the farmer for a major portion of their supplies of logs and bolts.

Limestone Will Save War Crops

It haa been estimated that farmera in tbe United States, excluding the arid and semi-arid areas whera tha natural aupply of lime is adequate, could profitably use 35 to 40 million tons of ground limastone or its equivalent every year. This goal has never been approached. The nearest that American farmers have come to it was in 1942, when it is estimated that they used almost 21,000,000 tons. Of this, 18,971,000 tons, or about 90 per cent, was applied under the AAA conservation program. Owing to shortages of labor and transportation it is estimated that the quantity used fell off to around 16,000,000 tons in 1943. This year, it is hoped that at least 22,000,000 tons will be available.

The active ingredient of superphosphate is phosphorus, which government soil scientists say is the element of fertility most often deficient in corn belt and other American soils. While superphosphate, like other commercial fertilizers, has long been used on cropland, the need for supplying it to hay and pasture land has been less generally recognized. Yet tests have shown that aeven 1,000-bushel carloads of corn or onts take from the land as much phosphorus as is in the plowed surface of the average acre. Ten 13-ton carloads of mixed hay, or balf that quantity of alfalfa bay, carry away as much phosphorus as seven carloads of corn.

From the inception of the agricultural conservation program in 1938 through 1942, 4,049,000 tons of superphosphate (in terms of 20 per cent available phosphorus) had been applied in the continental United States under the AAA. Of this, 1,073,000 tons were applied during 1942. In 1936, the figure was 121,000 tons.

The estimated United States production of superphosphate, 20 per cent basis, was 5,353,000 tons in 1942. It increased about 20 per cent to 6,400,000 tons in 1943, and • further increaee may be obtained this year.

April Fool Diamond

By RUTH S. MYERS

McClure Syndicate—WNU Features.

IT WAS April 1, 1944, when Lieutenant Jaff Webster left tha jewelry atore with the amall velvat box tucked securely in his coat pockat. In private life Lieutenant Webster had been a salesman and very good one. Perhaps be might have been described aa the high pressure type but, as sucb, he had netted a nice yearly income and that was "very important" as Lieutenant Webster would say. Lieutenant Webster had not been above pinching s penny and in so doing had saved and invested, and saved and invested. He was now in excellent financial circumstances. He had known what he wantod; he had gone after it; and he hod got it! In fact he had been so busy getting it that it was not until Uncle Sam called him that he had ever taken the time to give much consideration to love.

It wsa at a USO dance that he met Becky Clark and fell in love very hard and very fast. There was nothing unusual about Becky. She waa just a pretty girl with a tender amila and nice eyes. When Jeff put on tha pressure he had no trouble at all in selling her the marriage idaa. War was ona thing but with Becky waiting for him to come back, it had a greater significance. Life with Becky would be aimple and eomplete.

It was as he passed the dime store witb its windows full of April fool cards that hs thought about April fooling Becky. He would buy the moat awful looking ring he could find, put it in the little velvet box and give it to her. Then, after a faw minutes, he would sbow her the lovely little quarter-carat diamond, and sbe would enjoy the joke. It was only the night before that he had remarked: "Since we are absolutely certain this is the real thing, Becky, it's about time one of us picked out a nica diamond ring to seal the bargain. How would you like that?"

"Wonderful, Jeff!" Becky's eyea wera starry "Are you sure," sha had asked, "that you want to wait until the war is over before we get married?"

"I'm positive it's beat, honey," he had anawered.

"But bow can we be aure? How do I know you will still want me?"

Jeff had laughed delightedly. "Becky, you allly darling," he replied, "this is the old-fashioned, enduring love with us. It will last forever just lika the diamand you are going to gat! If it will make you feel any better, though, think of it this way. I'm too conservative a guy to sink a lot of dough in a piece of jewalry if I weren't sura I'd bave you to parade it around for the reat of my life!"

"I see what you mean," Becky anawered thoughtfully. As he reaalled that eonversation, Jeff nearly laughed aloud. What would Becky say whan aha saw tha poor littla five-and-ten ring? Of coursa aha would aee through tha joke in a minute, but tha fun would eome whan aha opened tha velvet box.

That night there was an air of exeitemant about Becky that Jaff noticed at once and it pleased him to think that he sensed it and underatood the reason. Well, no use putting it off, ha thought. With an expansive smile he reacbed into his pocket and drew out the handsome case. "Here, darling," he said warmly. "This is hardly a surprise and I just know you'll be crazy about it!"

Becky's expression was quizzical aa she took the little box aod opened it. For a second she stared in perplexity at the trashy-looking ring. "I — I don't understand—" she began, but Jeff interrupted ber with a burst of laughter.

"April fool, Becky!" he shouted and he rubbed his finger against tha real engagement ring in his pocket. Just a moment more of teasing before he would give it to her. He was enjoying bimself so much. "Don't you like my faultless taste?" he asked. "Didn't I pick out a beauty of an engagement ring for you—at tbe dime store?"

Becky began to laugh—ber mirth was a little forced at first and then was real. "It was more of an April fool joke than you think, Jeff," she said weakly. "At first I thought you had really bought me an engagement ring and that would have been terrible!"

"You mean you don't want ona from me?" gasped Jeff, incredulously.

"Of course I do, you gooee," Backy chuckled. "I've got one. I picked it out this afternoon — see?" And she held up ber band for Jeff to inspect. "Isn't it just too beautiful, darling?" Becky continued. "I had it charged to you. It's a full carat blue-white atone. You've got a thousand dollar investment in me now, dear to come back to!" And Becky put ber arms around Jeff's neck and laid her bead against his shoulder.

"Oh, Jeff!" she sighed, "You certainly did April fool me!"

"April fool you!" he choked. "Becky, boney, you've got it all wrong. The April fool is on me!"

5 Reasons Why
You Had Better SAVE This Dollar

This is a wartime dollar. It looks just the same as it did before the war. But it is not the same.

Here are 5 things it can not do:

1. It can't help you buy a new car now.
2. It can't help you buy a new radio now.
3. It can't help you build a new home now.
4. It can't buy the quantity it could before.
5. It can't buy the quality it will later.

But you can make this wartime dollar do these things later just by saving it. Plan your spending, plan your saving. Work it out in black and white, to assure better spending control, greater saving. Saving means helping to keep the dollar sound, to maintain its buying power. And saving means buying War Bonds regularly and putting money in the bank for emergencies.

PLAN YOUR SPENDING FOR YOUR COUNTRY
YOUR FAMILY - YOURSELF
PLAN YOUR SAVING

Help the nation's efforts to keep your living costs DOWN, the buying power of your dollar UP.

SCHOOL NOTES

Kindergarten

We have been making a Christmas present for Mother. It is something we know she will like.

Everyday we practice on our songs for the Christmas program. It is on Thursday evening, December 21, and we hope all our mothers and fathers will be able to come.

First Grade

The pupil on the attendance honor roll for last month are Clarence Peters, Bonnie Wakefield, Billy Bouldin, Marylee Baker, Charles Dennis, Douglas Reynolds, Dan'te Wells, Evelyn Bell, Freddie Donner, Carol Heckman, Shirley Misner, Verna Matthews, Joan Roberts, Dick Weaver and Don Walstad.

Second Grade

[illegible] Beattie and Kay Dalton have gone to Detroit to live.

The Second Grade purchased a considerable number of war stamps. Barbara Todd and Paul Allen bought bonds.

Our spelling still seems to be our hardest work. We are trying to write our spelling now instead of printing.

We are enjoying singing the Christmas songs.

Third Grade

Forrest Beattie has gone to Detroit to live.

Last week's snow caused our attendance to drop, but those who did come really worked. Although ten children were absent Friday, we had 19 perfect spelling papers.

In our geography, we are studying about the necessities all people must have: food, clothing, and shelter. Necessities and luxuries are big words, but we know what they mean.

Some know how important the purchase of war stamps is. They are buying them at the stamp booth in the hall on Tuesday and Thursday.

Fourth Grade

A number of our group were absent on Thursday and Friday. "Old Man Winter" played a trick on us.

Last week the boys and girls practiced writing letters. They all wrote a letter to Frederick Curtis in California.

Debby Bergeon made a cute little Santa Claus out of a spool, some cotton and red paper. John Nordrum, Dean Davenport, and Joseph King are making a Christmas scene in colored chalk for our blackboard.

Sixth Grade

We hope all the students have enjoyed the exhibit we have in the display case in the upper hall. We are studying both the history and geography of the Chinese Republic. Many of our boys and girls have brought from home various things brought to them or sent to them from China.

We are working hard at our tests of the work covered during the past six weeks—and how we are hoping!

Study Shop

We are learning the Christmas carols that we will sing at the program.

Our Michigan history books are nearly finished. We are learning about the leading cities of our state.

We have committees to decorate our room.

Mathematics

Last week we had a great many absences due to the storm. This made it impossible to introduce much new work, but those of us who managed to attend spent our time quite profitably in reviews.

The General Math class is still occupied with practical geometric constructions, and finding it interesting.

In Algebra, we are working with the uses of parentheses. Progress is satisfactory, so the quizzes reveal.

Physics

The new Physics equipment has arrived, although many of the pieces are "back ordered." The unpacking and cataloging of this apparatus is quite a job, but when it is finished, we shall have a very well stocked laboratory.

World History

Students in the World History classes have been investigating facts involving the development of four great inventions: the magnetic compass, gunpowder, cheap paper, and the printing press. They have noticed how the life of the Europeans was greatly changed by the use of these inventions. The Turks closed the old trade routes in 1453. Explorers, in their search for a new route to the Far East, proved that the earth was round.

English I

The freshmen are still writing short themes emphasizing paragraph development.

English II

The sophomores in both English II classes are studying gerund and infinitive phrases involved in sentence structure.

Speech

The students this week are studying material in their text books which deals with developing the plan of the speech in reference to the kinds of material to be used and the methods of securing this material.

Latin I

The students are engaged in drill work over the four conjugations.

High School Bank

More and more of the various school organizations are using the facilities of the High School Bank, finding it very convenient. Under this arrangement, all funds are deposited in a local bank, but the balance of each organization is kept separate.

Girls' Physical Education

The girls in all the physical education classes have started basketball and after another week or two of practice, will be divided into teams for intermural contests.

DEER HUNTING BEST ON BEAVER ISLAND

With less hunters on the island this year, there were more deer shot than in any previous season. The Mary Margaret brought over 68 of the 86 reported killed of which the opening days bag was 22 bucks and one coyote.

Most hunters reported plenty of shooting but tracking was impossible due to the lack of snow. In this region the ground was covered only on the last day of the season.

Among those making the annual trek to Lake Gogebic in Ontonagen County, bucks were shot by Bonnie Nickerson, Clare and Albert Sinley. Mr. and Mrs. George Willis and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hull each bagged a deer on opening day while hunting in the upper peninsula. Others reporting success from that section were: Clarence and Charles Heise, Glenn Ingalls, Frank Courier, Cap't. Browe and Archie Belding, whose companion, Mike Jukubeck, Traverse City, shot a 350 lb. bear.

Fatalities in the state this season were 15 nimrods killed and 20 wounded. There were no hunting accidents reported in Charlevoix County.

MAPLE GROVE
MRS. WM. HAIR
Reporter

The Alfred Allison family visited relatives in Boyne City Saturday evening.

Mrs. Beberg, the County nurse, was a caller in the vicinity on Wednesday afternoon.

Shirlene Allison was a Boyne City visiting the dentist on Monday.

Mrs. Ann Kaskey and daughter, Dolores, were visitors in Boyne City Saturday night.

Bob White, Sr., who recently underwent a major operation at Charlevoix hospital, hopes to be dismissed to his home soon.

Floyd Baker and Clifford Short report getting a fox apiece recently.

Mrs. Bob White and Mrs. Floyd Baker were in Charlevoix Saturday.

Folks are nicely getting "dug out" from the recent snow storm again, though some are still without electricity.

TWO HOSPITAL BEDS PURCHASED BY I. O. O. F.

The I. O. O. F. have purchased two more hospital beds and a wheel chair making a total of three beds and one wheel chair that are available for use in the home. The beds acquired primarily for the use of returning veterans who might need them, are available now to anyone needing them. Call Robert Dickie or Joe Williams for further information.

Burmese Government

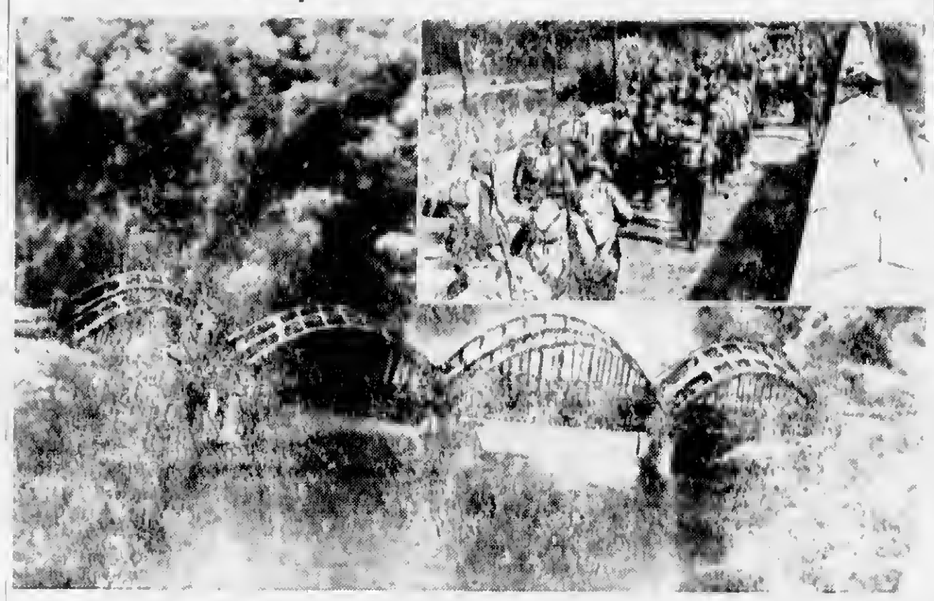
The hill-tracts inhabited by the frontier tribes of Burma are outside the control of the legislature. The tribes are too primitive for democratic institutions, and the system of government is simple, with a minimum of taxation.

LOCAL MAN IS WOUNDED IN ACTION

Pfc. Marvin Pederson, 27, was slightly wounded in action in France on November 17, according to a wire received from the War Department on Sunday by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Martin Pederson. He had been in France since D-Day, June 6, with a field artillery unit.

Pfc. Pederson entered the service on June 8, 1942, and received training at Camp Pickett, Va., Camp Phillips, Kansas, Camp Blanding, Fla., and was on maneuvers in Tennessee and California, before going overseas in April of this year. He was stationed in England until D-Day.

American Troops Continue Advances Into France



The railroad bridge, east of Conlon, was demolished by the retreating Huns as Allied forces continued to push steadily inland on the southern coast of France. The Nazis left little in the way of railroad tracks or bridges or highway for the advancing Allied armies. Engineer units were soon able, too, to repair or refield bridges and roads so that operations were not materially slowed down. The Yanks march past an eight-foot steel and concrete wall that runs the length of a beach in southern France.

Bonds Over America

COL. BLACK'S STAIRWAY

This winding staircase in the Black mansion at Lake Arrow, Me., was built in 1802. Col. John Black, whose father-in-law was aide-de-camp to General Washington, erected his elegant home as a lasting frontier settlement as a token of his confidence in the future of America. Just as courageous are the decisions being approved by our city and town-planners for post-war expansion and improvement. But first the war must be won on all fronts. Continued investment in War Bonds speeds the day of victory and stores up savings for post-war security and expansion. U. S. Treasury Department

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Naval Victories Pave Way for Assault on Japs' Inner Lines; Reds Press Back Nazis in East

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysis and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

Natives on Leyte island in Philippines walk through their smouldering village, caught in cross-fire of U. S. and Japanese fighting.

EUROPE:
Russ Press Nazis

Fighting with their backs to the wall against masses of Russian men and material, the Germans doggedly slowed the Reds' march through East Prussia and Hungary.

In Holland, however, the enemy withdrew from the southwestern portion of the country, with only minor pockets of resistance remaining along the Schelde river, where they had successfully blocked the Allies' free use of the big inland port of Antwerp.

In East Prussia, the Germans only succeeded in slowing up the Russian charge, originally paced by over 600 tanks and swarms of bombing planes, after the Reds drove 14 miles within the province on the road toward the capital of Koenigsberg. As the drive slowed, there were evidences in the Nazi home army's fevered defense preparations in the huge concrete bunkers used to impede the Russian advance.

In an effort to divert German strength, strong Russian forces opened up an offensive along the Nraew river above Warsaw, making small penetrations in bitter fighting.

Gaiety Vanishes

In Hungary, great battles raged along the Tisza river, 50 miles from the capital of Budapest, with the heavy rumbling of big guns plainly heard in the city.

Famed for its spas and sidewalk cafes, Budapest took on somber tones, with the German DNB news agency reporting: "There is no more gypsy music. Everything is rationed. Labor battalions of tens of thousands of men have started to work on entrenchments."

Even though some Hungarian generals were reported to have gone over to the Russians after Regent Horthy's ill-fated plea for an armistice, the Hungarian army remained in the fight by Germany's side, although the Germans themselves were compelled to throw in large forces to bolster sagging Axis lines in the southwestern part of the country.

According to military advices, the German evacuation of the Aegean islands, Greece and lower Yugoslavia was said to have gained them some 18 divisions, or about 250,000 men. The enemy appeared to have withdrawn the major bulk of these forces despite the pressure applied against his communication lines by Tito's Partisans, later aided by Russian and Bulgarian troops.

Escape Entrapment

Their position jeopardized by increasing Allied pressure, some 40,000 Germans streamed northward from southwestern Holland to escape entrapment from the rear by a flying British column moving toward the North sea.

Although subjected to the withering fire of Allied planes, the major portion of the enemy force managed to withdraw, only leaving behind the isolated units on both banks of the Scheldt. As the Allies brought their full weight to bear on these units, they were slowly compressed.

In Italy, the Germans increased their artillery fire in an effort to further slow up Fifth army forces bogged in the mountain mud. Indicative of the Nazis' determination to hold on to the Po valley throughout the winter was their planting of more mines, and their stringing of more barbed wire, across the battle-front.

TIRES:
Increase Quotas

With an increase of 250,000 over the preceding month, the nation's total tire quota for November was set at 1,850,000, of which 890,000 are for passenger cars; 570,000 for tractor-implement machinery; and 390,000 for trucks and busses.

According to OPA, the quota of passenger tires should satisfy normal November replacement needs for "B" and "C" ration holders, but not materially cut backlogs.

PACIFIC:
Japs Humbled

With 60 of her warships sunk or damaged, Japan's once proud Imperial navy no longer dominates far Pacific waters, having given way to a U. S. fleet which is standing prepared for a grand assault upon the enemy's inner defenses.

Staking a major portion of their navy on a brazen attempt to smash General Douglas MacArthur's supply lines to the Philippines, the Japs suffered approximately 24 warships sunk, 13 probably sunk and 28 damaged by U. S. surface vessels and aircraft, which met three enemy forces in the vicinity east of Leyte.

Their supply lines secured, General MacArthur's troops continued their drive on Leyte, crowding surviving enemy soldiers onto the mountainous western end of the island. In establishing their beachheads along the eastern coast, and then driving inland into the strategic Leyte valley, U. S. doughboys inflicted 24,000 casualties on the Japs.

Adm. Halsey of 3rd fleet (left) confers with Vice-Adm. Marc Mitscher before great Philippine sea battle.

In assesssing the full effect of the U. S. victory in the second naval battle of the Philippines, authorities said that the enemy's losses in ships sunk and damaged seriously impaired his ability to resist the American advance for months to come.

Because Japanese repair yards already were taxed to capacity before the latest battle, damaged enemy ships will have to await a long turn before reconditioned for action, it was said.

'Situation Unfavorable'

Speaking at a mass meeting in Osaka, Premier Koiso urged the Japanese people to increase their productive effort, declaring: " . . . officers and men had to die for their nation because we did not send them sufficient material "

Since the Japs were compelled to abandon their outer defense ring, Koiso said, the situation had become "regrettably unfavorable."

CHINA:
Highlights Crisis

Impatient with Chinese Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's slowness in cooperating in the unification of the country and the rehabilitation of its tattered armies, and having incurred the Generalissimo's displeasure for pressing for quick action, Gen. Joseph W. ("Vinegar Joe") Stilwell has been recalled to the U. S.

Stilwell's removal once again brought the critical Chinese situation into full light, with latest accounts stressing the political disunity existing in the country between the Generalissimo's government and the northern Communists, and the Generalissimo's seeming desire to save his military forces to maintain his control after the war.

Ever since coming into command of the China-Burma-India theater early in 1942, Stilwell encountered difficulties in seeking to develop the Chinese war effort, being hampered by inadequate authority, the inefficient handling of equipment and, finally, the Generalissimo's personal hostility to him.

MISCELLANY

No less than 140,000,000 ducks—or 100,000,000 above the whole duck population of the 1935-'37 period—will fly south during the hunting season, Ducks Unlimited, non-profit sportsmen's organization, reported.

Only American organization to go into Canada to increase the duck crop by scientific management of breeding areas, Ducks Unlimited revealed that waterfowl production in its rehabilitated Canadian marshes amounts to 3 cents per bird.

LEND-LEASE:
Food Shipments

Except for a slight increase in milk products, lend-lease shipments of food during the first nine months of 1944 were smaller than in the corresponding period last year, the Foreign Economic administrator announced.

Biggest change was in beef and veal, the FEA said, with less than 1 per cent of the U. S. supply lend-leased compared with 1.7 per cent in 1943.

Shipments included 12.1 per cent of the supply of U. S. eggs; 15.0 per cent of edible fats and oils; 6.9 per cent of canned fruits and juices, and 10.3 per cent of canned fish.

At the same time, the FEA said U. S. forces overseas received large quantities of food from Britain, Australia and New Zealand under reverse lend-lease.

SURPLUS PLANTS:
Government Policy

Even as the U. S. government sought to prevent the fostering of monopoly in the disposal of surplus war plants, the British moved to establish control over facilities erected during wartime with public funds.

U. S. action was reflected in the justice department's declaration that it considered the Aluminum Company of America a monopoly, and, as such, ineligible to purchase three of the 00 million dollar government-owned plants which it has operated during the war.

In Britain, the government announced that it would lease, but not sell, the 1,000 factories it constructed to meet the wartime emergency. The government also said it would turn back to private ownership plants taken over for war work, with the questions of compensation for improvements, or markoffs for depreciation, left open.

DOCTORS:
Army Cuts Call

With approximately 40 per cent—or 60,000—of the nation's physicians in the services and veterans' administration, the army announced it will not recruit any more doctors from civilian ranks, meeting its needs from graduates of its specialized training program and individuals now being processed.

Because expansion in personnel and stepping up of Pacific operations have increased demand for medical officers, the navy, on the other hand, announced that it must add at least 3,000 more physicians to its present rolls of around 13,000.

In addition to the navy, it was revealed that the federal security agency and the veterans' administration also are seeking additional doctors.

In recognition of the sacrifice and contribution made by a family which has lost two or more sons and has only one surviving, the war department has approved a policy of returning to or retaining in the continental United States the sole surviving son of a family in cases where two or more sons have been lost, except where the surviving son is engaged in non-hazardous duty overseas.

AGRICULTURE:
Market Prices

With farm sale of spring pigs rising rapidly, hog prices took a spill in recent markets, with the average at Chicago dropping 40 cents in one day to $14.25 per hundredweight.

Countering the drop in the hog market, however, was a steady cattle market, with the bulk of steers selling around $16. Sheep and lambs brought steady prices.

As 141,000 hogs, including about 115,000 spring pigs,—moved to 20 leading markets October 31, large holdovers were reported at some packing centers at the close of the day's trading. In the previous week, 113,000 hogs had been shipped.

With higher prices for livestock and livestock products balancing a decline for crops, the general level of farm prices stood at 194 per cent of the 1909-'14 figure in mid-October, the department of agriculture reported.

At the same time, the USDA said, prices farmers paid for commodities were 176 per cent of the 1910-'14 level.

Including prices paid, interest and taxes, the parity index stood at 170 for the fifth consecutive month, with the average for all farm commodities still 14 per cent above equalization. Commodities still below parity included wheat, oats, barley, rye, grain sorghums, hay, peanuts and eggs.

While the all-crop index fell to 188 of the 1909-'14 level, livestock and livestock products prices rose to 199. At 177, the feed price index jumped 7 per cent over mid-October in 1943.

STOCKS:
Dividends Up

Reflecting the war boom, dividends on common stocks listed on the New York Exchange showed a 7 per cent increase in the first nine months of this year over 1943, totalling 1½ billion dollars.

Pace-setters were amusement stocks, which showed a 35 per cent increase; automotive, up 33 per cent; rubber, up 29 per cent; petroleum, up 14 per cent, and aviation, up 15 per cent.

MICHIGAN OUT-OF-DOORS
Playground News of Field and Stream

Lengthening of game fish seasons on most inland lakes other than trout lakes is being recommended by the conservation department's fish division.

Closed seasons would be limited to spawning periods of walleyed pike, northern pike and muskellunge, with somewhat longer closed season protection during spawning periods of black bass, bluegills and sunfish.

The division also recommends removal of size limits on bluegills, sunfish, rock bass, perch and crappies.

Supporting the recommendations, the division points out that studies now being carried on in Michigan and other states are yielding information which indicates that in most waters natural reproduction is entirely adequate to replenish and maintain the supply of these fish, and that lake plantings may be actually harmful in some instances.

Recommended is the development of the best possible fisheries management program for each individual body of water.

Hunters shot 1,444 cock pheasants on the Prairie farm, 9,000-acre Farm Security Administration project between Chesaning and Saginaw, during the recent open season. It was the biggest kill since 1941. The conservation department conducts an annual check of hunter success on the project.

Raccoons and opossums live-trapped in recent weeks at the conservation department's game farm near Mason have been released on the Barry county state game area.

Plantings of bass and bluegills in lakes of both Michigan peninsulas, and of legal-size trout in suitable lakes above and below the Straits, will be completed by conservation department fisheries forces by the end of the month.

Trout planting will exceed a half million legal-size fish for the first time this year and may reach 600,000. This year's trout plantings are more than double those of 1943. Bass and bluegill plantings are substantially under last year but fish are larger, many being two years old.

No distribution of perch is being undertaken by the department this fall.

Latest reports of the presence of moose at scattered points in the upper peninsula come from nearby Hiawatha Shores where two cottagers, recently saw a big bull moose, cow and calf. Footprints of the bull measured 11 inches in length.

Moose have been seen recently north of Escanaba and on the Keweenaw peninsula.

Sixty-nine moose were brought to the upper peninsula from Isle Royale by the conservation department between 1934 and 1937 when lack of natural food on the island was resulting in deaths from starvation of hundreds of animals. Moose seen recently may be the last survivors or the progeny of the transported animals.

A bomber crew, training in Oklahoma, has asked the conservation department to supply one skunk, deodorized, for adoption as its plane's mascot.

According to Lt. Edward H. Murphy, bomber pilot stationed near Ardmore, his crew has voted for the skunk as the "typically American mammal."

Murphy's home address unknown wrote that he had spent some time in Michigan, around Roscommon, and that he had nominated the skunk.

The department has instructed Arnold O. Haugen, in charge of the Swan Creek wildlife experiment station in Allegan county, to fill the order.

Rumored presence of a black bear in the Allegan state forest, far south of its usual range in Michigan, gains some authority with the report of a bow and arrown hunter that he watched the animal for several minutes near the shore of Ely Lake. Similar rumors have placed a bear in the Yankee Springs recreational area in Barry county. The hunter's report was made to Arnold O. Haugen, in charge of the conservation department's Swan Creek wildlife experiment station near here.

During 8 years in club work, the girl put up 702½ jars of meats, vegetables, fruits, soups and jellies, and won many placings on her exhibits, including $29.75 in cash prizes.

Paul Grofvert (photo 3), 18, of Kalamazoo, is the winner of the state award in the 1944 National 4-H Meat Animal program, provided by Thomas E. Wilson, Chicago packer. During 6 years in club work, the boy handled 9 baby beeves and 67 hogs. He won many placings on his exhibits, including $101 in cash prizes, which brought his estimated total value of all projects to $3,349.88. Paul also won a scholarship to Michigan State College for his corn exhibits.

Helen Ruhlig (photo 4), 17, of Dexter, received the 4-H Home Grounds Beautification state award, provided by Mrs. Charles R. Walgreen, Chicago. Among her home landscaping achievements were: Helen and her sister planned and worked out a flower garden, doing all of the work themselves. Now they have a beautiful garden with an arbor at the entrance and a trellis at the back with honeysuckle at the base of it. Helen also planted shrubs and trees.

The Clothing and Canning Achivement state winners' award are all-expense trips to the National 4-H Club Congress in Chicago, Dec. 3-6. The Meat Animal and Home Beautification winners receive 17-jewel gold watches. All four winners are eligible to compete for national honors.

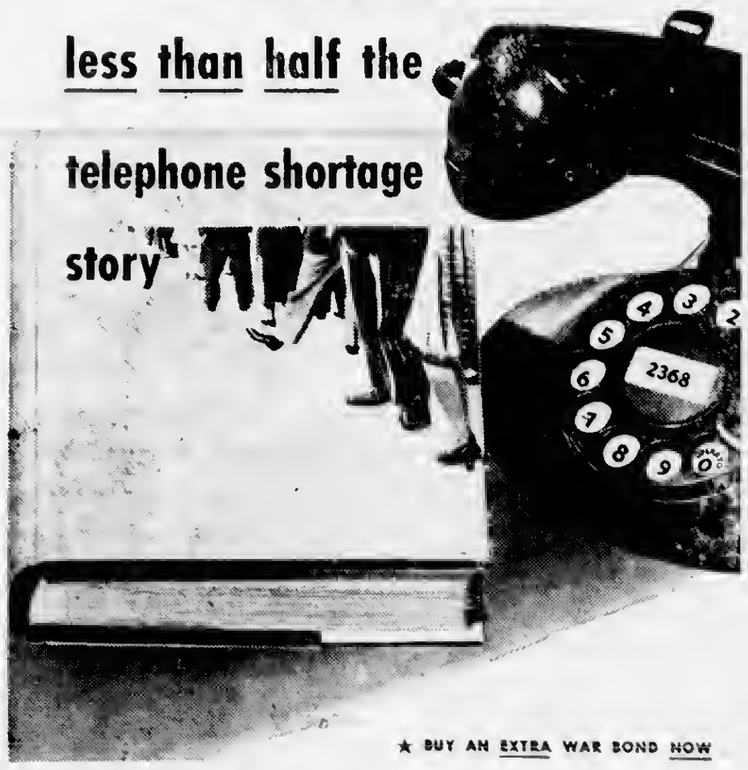
Instruments are less than half the telephone shortage story



★ BUY AN EXTRA WAR BOND NOW

MORE than 90,000 people in Michigan are waiting for telephones today. While we are constantly installing service as present users give it up, still the "waiting list" grows.

We'd like to fill all orders immediately. But we couldn't fill half of them even if we had all the instruments we need. For the shortage of cable and switchboard facilities is much more acute than the shortage of telephones.

When materials, men and manufacturing facilities are available again we propose to launch a vast expansion program that may cost up to $120,000,000, if the necessary investment funds can be secured. That program calls for building new central offices, enlarging present offices, and installing new cables and central office equipment.

All of that will take time. Even after the war, it may be more than a year before all orders are filled. However, you can be sure your telephone will be installed in its proper order, just as quickly as possible.

Liquidated Assets

By WILLIAM MURDOCH
McClure Syndicate—WNU Features.

AT THE office, Henry Bigelow blinked as a sudden thought jolted his attention from his ledger. Laying aside his pen he fumbled around in his coat pocket, his thin face flooded with unhappiness. "It slipped my mind completely . . ."

And at home Mrs. Henry Bigelow vainly tugged at the handle of the gushing cold water faucet in the bathroom wash bowl. If that wasn't just like Henry! "I told him all along that some day this tap would stick for good!" she muttered through tightly clenched teeth.

"And probably he forgot it just as promptly," his scowling wife gasped. But there was $50 at stake, Mrs. Bigelow applied herself with renewed vigor in a frenzied attempt to halt the flow and, for her efforts, was rewarded with the tap handle which came free neatly and cleanly, permitting the water to gush forth utterly without restraint. "Oh!" she wailed.

She glanced at her wrist watch which she had removed and placed on the window sill before washing her face. Eleven-forty. Mrs. Bigelow stamped her foot in exasperation. Only a few minutes before her name had been read over the radio by the Fifty-Dollar-Man. Unless she called in person at the radio station at or before twelve-thirty sharp she would forfeit the fifty dollars which was awarded on the first day of every month to the lucky listener whose name was announced. But what about this water which threatened to overflow the stopped-up bowl at any minute?

Happily, forgetful Mr. Bigelow had neglected to remove from the bathroom the pan in which he had heated his shaving water that morning. Mrs. Bigelow snatched it up and started bailing, transferring water from the brimming bowl to the tub. Then it suddenly dawned on her. "Why, I'll have to keep this up until Henry comes home tonight and turns off the valve in the basement!" she exclaimed in a shocked voice. She couldn't leave even long enough to call for help, because the whole place would be flooded if she did. Mrs. Bigelow dashed a pan-ful of water into the tub.

"Then I can't possibly get down to the radio station in time to collect the money!" she stormed at her outraged reflection in the medicine chest mirror. She bailed again and glared at her watch. Eleven-fifty. Five minutes to finish dressing, and fifteen more to get to the radio station. Add fifteen minutes for the return trip . . . in that time the entire second floor and half the first might be washed away!

It was agonizing. Her feverish ladling gained a good three inches of clear porcelain bowl over the swirling water and she rushed out of the room. If she could only reach the basement in time! But she couldn't. For at the landing she was stopped by the sound of splashing water. Frantically she skipped up the stairs and resumed her task. Eleven fifty-nine. Her arms worked no more furiously than her mind. Someone would pay for this, and his initials were H. B.! If she could see him now, just for a minute. . . .

She would have seen him wince. For Henry, at the office, took an envelope from his pocket and grimaced when he saw the memorandum on the back. He had forgotten that, too. But this other remissness—He gave a sigh, which was closer to a groan, and pulled out the letter. It bore a week-old date.

"Dear Mr. Bigelow:" it read, "According to our records, your bill has not been paid in seven months and you have disregarded our previous notices of delinquency. While this is undoubtedly an oversight on your part, we must serve final notice that unless your account is brought up to date, water service to your home will be discontinued promptly at twelve o'clock noon on the first day of next month." It was signed, "Municipal Water Bureau."

Henry slowly raised his eyes and sneaked a troubled glance at the calendar on the office wall. The first. Then at the clock. Precisely twelve-thirty. He closed his mournful eyes and rested his aching head in his hands. The water had been shut off at his home for the last half-hour. He wondered what his wife was doing right about now.

Amusement Park Fires Greatest in History

Two fires swept New York City's most popular amusement beach parks doing damage of nearly one million dollars and resulting in an injury list of more than 500 people. Left, aerial view of Palisades amusement park fire at Cliffside Park, N. J., favorite resort of New Yorkers. Photo taken from a navy plane from Floyd Bennett field. Right, billows of black smoke, spotted by spurts of live flame, shoot skyward from a roller-coaster ride in historic Luna park on Coney Island. Thousands of men, women and children were routed from the crowded park. The fire at both parks was of undetermined origin.

Clifford G. Riley, S2c Writes This One

Clifford G. (Tip) Riley, S2c, of the Navy, who until recently was stationed at Galveston, Tex., tells of his trip through the Puoama Caoal to San Diego and of his impressions of the west coast port:

We came down through the Panama Canal and up the west coast to Sao Diego where we will be for the next few weeks or longer, I hope. The trip oround through the cannl wns uneventful as far ns excitemeot goes. The only rough weather we had was about five days out of Galveston, when we hit ioto ooe of the worst hurricanes that has ever heen on the Gulf. Believe me, some of the boys were pretty sick of Navy life ond everything in general nbout that time, but they pulled through allright and nre n bunch of salty old sea dogs naw. I was one of the lucky three in the crew that dido't get sick, but I will admit I wns quite undecided for a few hours. I had the duty watch the night we were in Coco Sola, so I dido't get to see the town; however, the trip through the canal itself (incideotnlly, it takes a full day to make it) was one that was reully wurth seeing. Along the banks are palm trees and banaoa trees. For me it wns quite n treat to see bannnas nnd cocoanuts in the oative form. You can buy all the bananas you cao curry for ten or fifteen cents, and the flnvor of tree-ripened fruit is n lot differeot than that you get up home. Wheo we were ready to pull out of Panama City, the army told us they hnd some soldiers to hring bnck to the states for re-assigoment, so we hud 39 companions aboard coming up the coast to California. Don't let anyone tell you that the nrmy is a hunch of crap shooters for there was a big poker game going on every night until the wee hours of the morning, and they held up their eod of it quite capably.

Michigan's system for haodling rehnbilitation of its veterans contioues to be a model for the entire nation, Brig. Gen. Frank T. Hioes, Admioistrator of Veterans Affnirs, said in Chicago last Wednesday.

Michigan, he said, was the first state to have a workable plan in operation and has continued its lead through the work of the State Office of Veterans' Affairs, which was established by the 1944 legislature at the request of Governor Kelly.

General Hines predicted the peak of government responslhility for veterans' enre will bo reached in 1975 and will then cost $6,000,000 a year.

Over 100 local councils of veterans nffairs, sponsored by the Office of Veterans' Affairs, have been ereated in Michigan communities to service the returning veterans.

MY MARKS

By Jerry Ypma

Oh every day I go to school
And study as hard as hard can be
I like my teachers very much,
As anyone can plainly see.

But even though I work so hard
And take my books home every night,
I don't believe I get results,
My report cards don't come out just right.

But every month I try again
To get some A's or B's
And maybe some day I'll come home
Without any D's or E's.

I have some hope of what I've said
And I just know it's true,
This month my folks will know for sure,
What I can really do.

Michigan Highway Department Report

The Michigun State Highway Department road magnet ordered ioto service last fall by Highway Commissiooer Charles M. Ziegler, probably has prevented the ruination of many valuable tires on motor vehicles travelling trunkline highwuys in the stato.

Reportiog oo the results attaioed by using the magnet, a machioe with a magnetized roller that revolves near the road surfoce and picks up metallic objects, then drops them in a receptaele, Commissioner Ziegler said 1,300 pouods of nails, tacks, bolts, pieces of wire, bottle caps and countless other sharp surfnced objects that could puncture and ruin tires, were picked up in a period of several weeks on 1,448 miles of pavements. The magnet also was nsed on 152 miles of gravel roads, but only picked up a few pounds of ferrous metals on these roads. It was explained that the loagnet cannot lift any ferrous meals that might become embedder in a stabilized surface. It will pick up metals from loose gravel, however. It can be used only when road surfaces are dry. A motor on the apparatus dovelops the magnetic force in the roller.

The rond magnet was used on US-16 between Muskegan and Farmington, US-12 from Ann Arbor to New Buffalo, US-24 from Pontiac south to the state line, US-10 from Pontinc to Suginaw, US-23 from Snginaw to Bay City, US-112 from US-24 to Niles, US-127 from Lonsing south to US-112, US-27 from Lansing to Alma, M-60 from Jackson to New Buffalo and M-78 from Flint to Battle Creek, all paved ronds, and on the following gravel roads, M-11 between Nnpoleon and Saline, M-43 from Grand Ledge west to M-50, M-50 from M-43 to Charlotte, and M-79 from Chnrlotte west to M-66.

Writes From England To Express Thanks To CSO and Courier

David N. Coulter, B.M.2c, writes the following from England: It was long ago that I should have written you to express my thnnks for the tie with home and frieods that your paper has sa faithfully onintaioed. I um also desirous of thankiog the CSO for their splendid efforts in behalf of Charlevoix's men and women in the service.

If you will excuse the overase of the first person singular pronoan I'll briefly sketch some of my activities since leaving Solomons, Ind., from there I weot to the famed Pier 92, New York, and near the middle of March, with two others of my crew, sniled on a Liberty ship. After stopping in a Cnnadian port and theo started neross. For security reasoos I cno not detail my crossing but I cno say I became nequainted with the fears of netion. We landed in an achorage in oorthwestern Scotland; were there a few days before lifting anchor and setting sail for an enst England port. After disembnrking we had a few days in Lnodon.

Not long after this and on another type of vessel we three sailed through the Straits of Dover, It's famed white cliffs stood tall and ghostly white in the moonlight and I woodered if some of the vibrntions from my shaking knees might oot dislodge some of their age old rocks.

The oext few weeks were busily spent prepariog our LCT for D-Day. This came quite rapidly aod our only action prior to this wos no air raid. Many fur more gifted reporters than I have attempted to describe the crossing of the chnonel aod the actual landings, so 'Ill just skip that except to say that all the superlatives still are n little inadequate.

FOSTER BOATS TRAVEL FAR

"I guess the worhl is gettiog smaller every day or Charlevoix and the Foster Boat Company are really getting around the world," writes Forsyth Traonel, of Chicago and the Belvedere Club, in a recent letter to Mayor Robert Bridge. He was writing of an interestiog and unusual experience his son, Ensign James Tramel, who is serviog aboard a fleet mine sweeper in the Pacific, had recently. He goes on to say: "It seems he had to go over to some coral island quite a few miles from where his ship was at anchor. He went on a landing barge and sail he was half doziog and happened to see the name plate which read ns follows: Made for the U. S. Navy by the Foster Boat Company, Charlevoix, Michigao.

To me it is quite a coincidence that Jim, who has spent every summer of his life at the Belvedere, would get on a boat built ot a place you can see from the front porch of our cottage. Two years ago when he was in Charlevoix oo a short leave, he saw them testing the boats out in Lake Charlevoix."

I've seen San Diego once (the liberty I had last night) and I don't care to see any more of it. There are about seven or eight servicemen for every civilian you see, and you are liable to see from fifteen to twenty thousand civilians in the course of an afternoon. Those odds are a little too great for me. I did make acquaintance with an old friend from up that way. As we were tying up to the dock just after we pulled into the base here, I was looking over the fellows standing on the pier watching us and I recognized the face of Clifford Mayhew. We went into the Navy together and all through boots together, so if you think there wasn't a couple of happy fellows right then and there, guess again!! We immediately pulled out our wallets (void of any kind of legal tender) and started showing each other the pictures we had from home. The longer we looked at them, the more home-sick we got, but I don't think it was the first time for either of us.

We went into town together last night and he showed me around to all the bright spots; there wasn't one that would have looked nearly as bright as the Argonne or Outside Inn to us at the time.

Our ship plans to be here for a period of at least five weeks and then we will go into availability for overseas duty. We have a lot of repairs to be made on the ship, however, and will be for a lot longer than anyone thinks. We lost part of our bow door in the storm and that will have to be replaced plus a paint job and a hundred other little things that all take time.

I missed bird season this year for the first time in seven years and I'll probably miss out on the deer season too. I may make it home about the first of December and do a little outlawing, but then again, I may not. This Navy department don't seem to give a hoot about any of it's hired helps personal feelings at all. Some of the crews have been getting ten day leaves from here while their ships were in dry dock, and that is what I am looking forward to. I won't be disappointed if I don't make it, nor will I feel like celebrating. I only hope I get a chance to come home once more before they push us over. The situation looks pretty good right now, but you know how newspapers are ! ! No offense.

Keep up the good work on the home front and tell the folks to drop a line to the boys. They may not get an answer immediately, but they have a lot more free time than any of us have, and we seem to find ample time to keep up with the home town pretty much. Thanks to you and the CSO for the Courier and keep them coming. Best wishes for a Merry Christmas and the Most Prosperous of All New Years.

As business men whose individual investments run into many thousands of dollars, Michigan farmers are becoming downright weary over the persistent parade of commissioners of agriculture to and from Lansing, the state capital.

For the past ten years, in fact, Michigan has switched biennially its state administration. The two-year term for governor has permitted a shift of political sentiment to turn the tides, first in favor of one party and then in favor of the opposition, with the result that the post of commissioner has been a transient livelihood in which experience has counted for little.

The turmoil of industrial unemployment, which marked most of the years since 1932, influenced enough independent voters to "demond n change" at Lansing. The farmers have been caught in the middle. They don't like it. They prefer a business-like continuity of policy in the state department, just as they like to have in running their own business.

At the recent annual meeting of the Michigan State Farm Bureau at Michigan State College, East Lansing, farmer delegates arrived by the hundreds. Officers were armed with resolutions from their home bureaus — some 300 resolutions, in fact.

By the time the resolution committee had studied numerous proposals and delegates had been given an opportunity to express their opinions, the following resolution was adopted unanimously:

"We renew our insistance, voiced in resolutions adopted at several previous annual meetings, that the state department of agriculture be removed from politics in order to provide n continuity of administration of the laws with the enforcement of which this department is charged. We feel that this would afford the best service to producers and consumers of Michigan farm products.

"In order to prevent appointment of a new commissioner of agriculture each time the political party in control of the state government is changed, we favor the establishment of a bi-partisan state agricultural commission which would choose a state commissioner of agriculture and exercise general supervision over the conduct of the department. The general set-up of the state conservation commission might well be used as a model on which the new relationships, in regard to the department of agriculture, could be formulated by the legislature."

The history of the bi-partisan commission idea goes back several years.

When Murray D. Van Wagoner was governor, he had a commission bill introduced in the house. Unfortunately, farm groups had not been fully consulted. A Detroit legislator, serving as floor leader, sponsored the measure. The combination was not conducive to favorable action.

Rep. Maurice Post of Rockford introduced a bill whereby the state department would be supervised by the state board of agriculture, the governing body originally created for the old Michigan Agricultural College, now Michigan State College.

Mrs. Dora Stockman, editor of the Michigan State Grange publication, introduced a bill to have the commissioner of agriculture elected by the people. She felt that the commissioner should be a member of the state administrative board.

With three conflicting bills before them, legislators could not make up their minds. And when the next administration took office at Lansing, a new commissioner of agriculture arrived to look over the problems and see what should be done.

In the 1943 session of the legislature, the Michigan State Farm Bureau supported a house bill, introduced jointly by Representatives Rodesiler and Town, which would have created a bi-partisan commission consisting of five members.

The term of office was six years. Of the members first appointed by the governor, two were to serve two years, two for four years and two for six years. The commissioners were to choose their own chairman and secretary and would meet monthly to consider matters of administrative policy.

As in the case of the conservation commission, the agricultural board would employ a permanent director of agriculture. The 1943 bill provided for a salary of $7,000 a year.

Compensation of the commissioners would be limited to $15 a day with a maximum of $225 a year.

Stanley Powell, legislative counsel for the farm bureau, reports that the 1943 bill was received with general favor by state legislators. However, legislation was being limited generally to war-time matters and action on the bill was delayed so late in the session that its sponsors decided to await n more opportune time.

This particular legislative reform is favored by Mr. Powell for several reasons. His father, Herbert E. Powell of Ionia, served as commissioner of agriculture for three terms from 1927 to 1932. And it was the elder Powell's conviction, at the conclusion of this service, that Michigan agriculture would be better off under a bi-partisan commission than under the prevalent political turnover.

While civil service removed inefficiency of patronage, the commissioner still holds office at the will of the governor. That subjects the commissioner to pressure from the governor himself and also from the governor's office. Such pressure may be good; it may be bad.

That the Michigan State Farm bureau again will advocate this reform during the 1945 session of state legislature is taken for granted by Mr. Powell, its legislative counsel. Michigan legislators will not have to go far to study a bi-partisan commission. Wisconsin adopted this system a number of years ago and the farmers there are said to be thoroughly in accord with it.

How to stretch a ton of coal!

CONSERVING coal is going to be a "must" for everybody this winter. This isn't because less coal is being mined.

It is estimated that 29 millions more tons of coal will be mined this year than last—with fewer men. Quite a feat by mine owners and miners alike! And there are adequate rail facilities for bringing the coal to your city.

But certain grades and sizes of coal are needed for war production. And, in addition, your local dealer is suffering from a shortage of manpower, trucks and tires. So be patient with him.

And conserve the coal he is able to deliver to you. You can make your coal supply go at least 10% further—and save that much on your fuel bill—by taking a number of simple precautions.

See that your heating system is clean and in good repair. Close off unused bedrooms. Pull your shades and drapes at night. If you can, insulate. For other suggestions see your coal dealer.

One of the biggest jobs of the C&O Lines is hauling coal from the mines along its routes, so we're in a position to understand the problem, and to know how essential coal is these days.

News of Our Servicemen

T-Sgt. Clarence H. Smith, 24, son of Mr. and Mrs. David Smith, has arrived at the Army Air Force Redistribution Station No. 2 at Miami Beach, Fla. for reassignment processing after completing a tour of duty outside the continental United States. Sgt. Smith was an engineer-gunner in the CBI theater.

Sgt. John E. Connaghan, who is stationed somewhere in France writes: I have heard that Lt. W. L. Freeburn was home on leave. Did he ever tell you the name of the guy from Beaver Island he met in France? It was me. I was on detached service with the navy for two months. I never had a better boss than he was. He sure was a swell boss and a citizen Charlevoix should be proud of.

Pvt. Allen Sterritt sends a new address from the Philippines and the following letter: I would appreciate your forwarding the Courier to my new address. I have only received one copy since going overseas but I realize that is no fault of yours. I can well imagine the tremendous job you have trying to keep up with the boys overseas. If the other boys are like me, and I am sure they are, they're "island hopping" all over the place. Recently I sweated out a 33-day stretch without any mail—not even a bill which would have been welcome altho' I would have been surprised if I'd received one. As for being in the Philippines, our outfit was one of the first to hit the beach. The first four days were pretty rough and it was noisy but now that we have the snipers cleaned out it's becoming more settled.

Helena K. Isaksen S2c, has arrived at the Naval Training School, USNTS, (SK-W) Millledgeville, Ga. This is the only school of WAVE storekeepers in the country. From there, the trainees will be sent all over the nation to fill jobs of supply and disbursing at Naval shore stations. Miss Isaksen is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Isaksen.

Pvt. Robert J. Plumm, son of Mr. and Mrs. Forrest Plamm, who is serving with the Fifth Army in Italy, has been awarded the Good Conduct Medal for fidelity, efficiency and exemplary behavior while in service. He is a member of the 350th Infantry Regiment of the 88th "Blue Devil" Division now serving with Lt. Gen. Mark W. Clark.

T-Sgt. Lyle V. Miles writes from somewhere in Belgium the following: At the present I am in the country of Belgium and tho' it is fairly nice it has it's drawbacks. To be honest about it, the biggest one is that it isn't the States. And of course, it might be nicer if the sun would ever shine on it—instead of this constant rain. The one thing that will always stick in the minds of the Yanks who have been over here is the rain and the slimey mud it creates. It's everywhere you go. Pay your respects to the front line soldier; he even sleeps in the staff. You've got to hand it to them. Don't get me wrong on that. It wasn't meant for myself. I'm not a front line soldier.

May I sound like a chaplain for a moment? Just this: Soldiers like mail—lots of it. A fellow once said "A letter is like a five minute furlough at home". I hope my folks don't misinterpret this: I get plenty of mail but there are a lot of boys who don't.

Haven't seen any of the boys from home since coming over here altho' I've came close to it. Have been close to Keith Wagner and Bob Livingston but not close enough to meet them.

No doubt these other fellows are doing as much talking about Charlevoix as I do. Someone talking about fishing the other day got me wound up this last time.

They call me a one-man Chamber of Commerce. Many of the boys say they're coming up after the war to see this wonderful place called Charlevoix.

Ensign Stanley Shapton sends the following address from Florida where he is stationed with the Navy: Hotel Columbus B.O.Q. Rm. 810, Miami, Fla.

Floyd Harwood, S2c. (RM), left Sunday to report at Camp Brudford, Va., after visiting since Wednesday with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lester Harwood. He recently completed a course of study at the Navy Radio school at the University of Wisconsin, Madison, Wis.

After making the initial assault we retired to a safe position and assumed the role of a shuttle between cargo ships and the main beachhead. Nightly for a few weeks Jerry would drop over for a nuisance raid and eventually we learned to sleep through them. We saw very little of France except for a mile back of the beach. I have little to say of that land, leaving the description to our army men. Some time ago, though not due to enemy action, we suffered damages that required major repairs and for these we returned to England.

Since my return here I have had a week's leave which was spent in and around London. There I visited the usual places and did most of the usual things. In following up leads of acquaintances I was able to establish contacts with an English seed firm and enjoyed a couple of days absorbing English methods in the production and distribution of vegetable seeds. Also, I was lucky enough to secure a mess of green corn which was prepared for me at my Red Cross Club. Here sweet corn is not well known and I had one Englishman ask me, "Say, Yank, wha'ts that stuff you blokes eat that looks like beans on a stick?"

From your paper I have learned of many Charlevoix men in the E.T.C. and naturally I have kept my eyes open for them. I have seen the names of several of the boys in the state registers of various Red Cross Clubs but it wasn't until last night that I met one. While reading in a local Red Cross Club I glanced up at a fellow going out of the hatch (pardon me, the door) and it was Stanley Hammond. We spent most of the evening gabbing and reminiscening.

Before I close there are a couple of things I'd like to get off my chest. First, I'd like to thank and congratulate the nation-wide supporters of the Red Cross. In my mind they are doing a swell job over here, caring for we fellows on our leaves. They have made available fine clubs where food and rooms are very moderately priced and where many forms of entertainment are available. And last I'd like to extend to all my Charlevoix friends both in and out of the services my heartiest wishes for a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

SCHOOL NOTES

Kindergarten

The boys and girls have been very busy this week with their Christmas activities. Most of them have their presents finished and next week they are going to make some Christmas cards. They have their room decorated with Christmas trees and are anxiously waiting for the real tree to come. Every day they are practicing for their program.

First Grade

We are all busy preparing for Santa and are hoping he won't forget us.

We are glad to have Judy and Jana Merica back again. They have been in Floridn for two months.

Second Grade

We have been hearing and telling the Christmas story. Faye Meggison read n Christmns story to us. We have talked about Christmas in other countries. We hope our Junior Red Cross money will help boys and girls in other countries have a Christmas.

We are having nine new spelling words a week, and three words from the past week. We try very hard to have all 12 right on the Friday test.

We are all enjoying making Christmas cards and gifts.

Third Grade

We are working on our Christmas presents for the mothers.

Sue Beandoin drew a large picture of the Madonna and Baby and Charles Bacon made one of the manger scene.

We have been reading and telling the story of Jesus' birth. Many of our pictures have been illustrations of the Christmas story.

In phonics we are learning the long and short sounds of the vowels.

Fourth Grade

Marjorie Bennett, Stuart Walker and Jack Pearl are absent due to illness.

We had a lot of fun making our presents for Mother and Daddy. It was the first time some of the boys had ever used a needle and thread. John Nordrum said he did not see any sense to a thimble. "I just use my desk to push the needle through," said John. Some of the boys did better than the girls.

We practiced our Christmas carols on Friday in Mrs. Warner's room.

Fifth Grade

Barbara Bice and Betty Van Wieren have returned after being away for several days.

Delphia Dustin and Esther Peterson made our Christmas picture for the back blackboard.

We are studying the Southern States in Geography.

The committees for decorating the room are being chosen today.

Sixth Grade

The boys and girls of our room have organized a club which we think will help us to "watch our manners." We call our club "The Sixth Grade Courtesy Club." Our President is Colleen Reed, Vice-President is Dwight Smith, and our Secretary is Dale Suomela. The president appointed John Mathews to be "Keeper of the Records." These are to be records of special acts of courtesy or discourtesy. We meet once each week at our English class time. We are learning how to preside at a meeting, how to make a motion, and how to observe some of the simple parliamentary rules.

Overflow 1, 2, 3

We have enjoyed decorating our room for Christmas.

The first grade wrote a story, "Things We do at School."

The third grade have made and labeled pictures for their Farm Project.

Tommy Goss, Joe McDermott, Betty McDermott were room helpers last week.

We wish to express our appreciation to the Girls' Service Squad.

Study Shop News

We visited the library Friday afternoon.

Ray Noonan, Donna Armstrong and Louise Dixon had eye examinations in Traverse City on Friday.

Our room is gay with Christmas decorations. Ronald Dean is getting our tree.

Clothing

Seventh Clothing finds several girls with first garments, aprons, finished. It is rather surprising the discarded pieces of cloth that make serviceable aprons. There are a few who have begun dirndle skirts, and several more to begin this week.

Eighth Clothing class has completed the study of textile fabrics, and are now busy studying patterns.

Weather conditions rather hindered the class criticism on the first group of completed garments for the Senior High Clothing. Criticism will have to be held over until Thursday or Friday of this week, because of loss of time due to weather holding up construction.

4-H Club girls have decided to entertain 4-H Club boys at a Christmas party. Monday's Tuesday's and Wednesday's groups have plans for the parties well under way. Thursday's group will have to omit the party because the storm kept too many home week before last. But their plans were all made. This week, each girls' 4-H Club entertains the boys' 4-H Club that meets the same day.

Eighth Grade Spelling

Eighth grade spelling group had a spell-down for review. Dorothy Tookalo held the place as the best speller, although Sharon Butler, Betty Feltenbarger, Beverly Loose, Sally Swinton, Donald Van Weiren and Richard Jolliffe won places of honorable mention.

Freshman English

The third hour English I class has just completed its first research paper, which required that the students take notes on their reference reading, make an outline of their paper from which they wrote the final composition, and lastly make a bibliography of their outside reading sources. Although these papers were short in length, they gave the students excellent practice for future work along similar lines.

Sophomore English

The poetry anthologies, which constituted a portion of the required work for the last six weeks' marking period, revealed that a great deal of time and effort had been spent on them by the students. Some for attractiveness of cover, neatness and organization of contents, and cleverness in the originality of their individual poems, received meritorious credit.

Speech

In the public speaking class, the students have been studying the various types of "material" best suited for use in the five general types of speeches; namely, those given either to entertain, inform, impress, secure action, or convince.

Latin I

The Latin students have been reviewing general vocabulary, and nouns and verb endings for the past week in preparation for beginning the study of verbs in tenses other than the present, and of case endings for nouns in the second declension.

World History

Students are figuring out reasons for Great Britain developing into the huge British Empire. Its origin in the British Isles enabled it to have protection from some kinds of continental invasions and problems.

American History

Investigations are being made into the rapid settlement of the original Louisiana Purchase and the Oregon area. The aggressiveness of the early settlers caused them to flow over the legal boundaries into territory not owned by the United States government.

Mathematics

The General Math class is working on methods of finding volumes of solids.

Algebra students are still laboring with signed numbers. We now have equations with unknowns on both sides.

The Geometry people will work mostly with original problems during this week. We shall attempt to apply the principles previously learned to problem solving.

Physical Sciences

In Biology our work deals with wild life and conservation, the need of preserving forests, and some studies about the importance of various birds.

The Physics class is now considering heat, the Fahrenheit and Centigrade scales, absolute zero, and coefficients of expansion.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Relentless Pressure by Allies Forces Steady Nazi Retreat; Weather Slows Russian Drive

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysis and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

EUROPE:
Rhine the Prize

Stiffening Nazi resistance, plus the mud, mists and snows of a fast-approaching European winter had made the road to Berlin a bruising, bloody highway of battle. Yet with relentless pressure, Allied armies were pushing the Nazis steadily back to the Rhine on the front stretching northward from the Vosges mountains of Alsace to the river-studded stretches of Holland.

At the northern end of the front, soldiers of Lieut. Gen. William H. Simpson's U. S. Ninth army had broken into the German Roer river defense line, the best natural barrier before the Rhine. Cologne was the ultimate target of this drive.

Lieut. Gen. George H. Patton's Third army infantry meanwhile had made a new crossing into the Saar basin—second only to the Ruhr as a source of Germany's war might—capturing villages close to Saarbrucken.

On the southern flank, Nazi forces south of the Rhone-Rhine canal in Alsace were virtually wiped out with the capture of Dannemarie and several nearby villages. The Seventh U. S. army continued to press forward in the Vosges through snow and mud, thrusting aside scattered resistance. French forces operating with this army had reported an actual crossing of the Rhine north of Strasbourg by their patrols.

The bulk of the German forces and precious mobile reserves had been deployed on the Cologne plain where many observers believed the final showdown of the war would take place. With General Eisenhower's objective being the destruction of the German army, Allied forces had girded themselves for the battles that would once and for all break Nazi military power.

GEN. GEORGE PATTON
Into the vital Saar basin.

Eastern Front

Russian forces pushing on Budapest had been slowed down by the season's heaviest snowfall, following a severe sleet storm. German and Hungarian troops had been occupying defense positions along a 26-mile curve from the southern limits of Budapest to the rail junction of Aszod. Meanwhile Red forces had opened a new drive into Slovakia, advancing across the Beskid mountains and cutting down behind the southern entrance to the Dukla Pass to sever a highway escape route for the Germans.

LABOR:
Shorter Postwar Hours?

In a move to "assure jobs for all" in the postwar period, the American Federation of Labor urged congress to pass national legislation providing for a 30-hour week.

A resolution passed by delegates attending the federation's 64th annual convention in New Orleans declared technical advances in industry which served to speed production "have developed tensions which cause workers to burn out at an early age." It urged that this wearing out be avoided by shorter hours, which also would serve to spread employment.

Other resolutions called for amendment of the national communications act, "so that freedom of speech over the air waves will be safeguarded from actual or implied government censorship," the establishment of a uniform federal unemployment compensation law, repeal of the Smith-Connolly anti-strike law and wage and hour improvements for postoffice and other government employees.

STETTINIUS:
Keeps Hull's Policies

Favorable reactions at home and abroad to President Roosevelt's appointment of Edward R. Stettinius as successor to Secretary of State Cordell Hull, made it clear that there would be no break in the continuity of the administration's post-war peace and international cooperation program.

While Secretary Hull's resignation came suddenly, it was not unexpected. Continued ill-health had prevented his active direction of the state department's operations. In accepting the 73 year-old statesman's resignation, the president projected for him the future role of elder statesman, advising on foreign policy and taking as active a part in shaping a world peace organization as his health would permit. Specifically, Hull was slated to be presiding officer of the United Nation's first peace conference.

CORDELL HULL

Observers viewed the Stettinius appointment as a highly satisfactory solution. As under secretary of state, 44-year-old Stettinius was closely familiar with department procedure. He had two other prime assets. His former experience as lend-lease administrator had won him the respect and friendship of congress. His dealings with Britian and Russia had demonstrated that he could work in successful cooperation with other leaders of the United Nations. Above all, Stettinius has seen eye-to-eye with Secretary Hull on world problems and worked closely with him.

PACIFIC:
Air Warfare Increases

Attacks by two big fleets of B-29 Superfortresses on Tokyo's waterfront and on rail yards and repair facilities in Bangkok on the southwestern fringe of the Japanese war empire, underscored the fact that air warfare against Nippon would be increased in intensity. The American planes returned to their bases in the Marianas islands and India without combat losses.

Revised estimates of damage in the latest U. S. carrier raid on Luzon in the Philippines showed 20 Japanese ships sunk, 28 damaged and 119 planes either destroyed or damaged. While heavy rains had brought ground operations on Leyte to a virtual standstill, American bombers based on the island struck at Jap targets over a wide area of the southwest Pacific, attacking airdromes at Ceby and Negros.

The continued bombings of Tokyo and favorable progress elsewhere helped balance the grim news that continued to flow from China. Here the Jap armies continued their victorious operations, forcing abandonment of effective U. S. air bases on the Chinese mainland.

Hope for a strengthening of Chiang Kai-shek's forces was seen in the appointment of Maj. Gen. Patrick J. Hurley to be U. S. ambassador to China. Hurley was already in China, having gone there last summer with Donald M. Nelson, former war production chief, to help revamp the Chinese war effort.

DRAFT TROUBLE:
In Canada

As the Canadian parliament moved toward its decision on a previous government order to conscript home defense forces for overseas duty trouble broke out among troops in the Pacific Coast area. Heavily armed, a group of troops prevented another regiment from boarding a train scheduled to take them to a new post. This trouble was quickly dealt with but other demonstrations by troops against the new ruling were reported.

LAND:
War Demands Big

Chester C. Davis, president of the Federal Reserve bank of St. Louis and former head of the Agriculturst Adjustment administration, bluntly warned that present world needs for foodstuffs from American farms may cause permanent damage to our soil unless conservation practices are storted on more farm acreage.

Speaking before the Friends of the Land in Chicago, Davis said that high pressure wartime production of corn, wheat, oats, timber and other farm crops must be tempered by intelligent farm planning to prevent erosion. Among farm practices which he said must be encouraged are contour plowing, terracing, fertilization, subsurface tillage, growing rye and other crops after the summer grain harvests, and reforestation of farm woodlots.

"There are two ways that we can lose our land," he pointed out. "We can lose it if conquered by a foreign military power or by erosion, which steals the all-important farm topsoil and washes it down the flooded rivers."

SHIPS:
Build More, Sink Less

Steadily dwindling shipping losses of the Allies due to enemy action and the phenomenal merchant ship construction record of the United States were highlighted in a British government report released through the office of war information. Total losses from the war's beginning through 1943 were 5,758 vessels aggregating 22,121,000 gross tons. During this time the United States constructed about 30,000,000 deadweight tons.

While no 1944 figures on losses were disclosed, the ratio of construction to sinkings is known to be overwhelmingly favorable. Losses were severest during 1942, and 1,859 ships totaling 8,338,000 tons were sunk. These losses far outstripped American construction. The picture changed in 1943, with losses aggregating 3,646,000 tons and new construction totaling 19,238,000 tons.

CIGARETTES:
Worse Shortage?

Even as Pres. Eric Catamia of the National Retail Tobacco Merchants association predicted that the cigarette shortage would be worse in the next six months than in the past two, house and senate committees began investigations of the scarcity.

Chairman Flanagan of the House agriculture committee branded as "untrue propaganda" the charge that the shortage stems back to a shortage in leaf tobacco. Senator Ferguson of the senate committee said there probably are a number of explanations for the shortage, including increased consumption here and abroad, "but until we find the causes, it will be difficult to find a remedy."

Meanwhile match manufacturers were also predicting a severe shortage of their product in the coming months. Industry sources revealed that raw material supplies had been materially reduced in the past two years and thus the usual amounts of book matches would be limited.

WAR WORKERS:
Face Job Problem

America's chief job problem will be concerned with war workers rather than war veterans immediately after Germany's collapse, according to William Muirhead, president of the Associated General Contractors of America.

Speaking before the association's governing and advisory boards in Chicago, Muirhead said that if the war ends in two stages, with a year or more between the collapse of Germany and the defeat of Japan, "it has been estimated 2,500,000 men will be released from the armed forces during the year.

"War production is expected to be cut from 30 to 50 per cent. An estimate of the number of war workers to be thrown onto the labor market during the interval is between 4,000,000 and 5,000,000."

HOMES:
Britons Lose Third

One out of every three houses in Britain has been destroyed or damaged in five years of World War II, a statistical White Paper revealed. War casualties have totaled 733,030.

The White Paper disclosed that 35 per cent of all British males between the ages of 14 and 64 are in the armed forces and that nearly half of the country's women between the ages of 14 and 59 are in uniform or industry.

Rear Adm. John H. Cassady, assistant deputy chief of naval operations for air, predicted that in the not too distant future American carriers would be sending 2,000 planes in one strike against the Japs. "Today, 1,000-plane attacks from our carriers are not uncommon," he said. "I can foresee the day when we will be sending 1,500—yes 2,000—planes."

Farm machinery has been distributed in liberated areas in France and Belgium which have already started to produce a portion of their food, needs. Serge G. Troubetzkoy of the United States Foreign Economic administration reported. He said that the supply of machinery made through a combined Allied board would be extended to other areas as they were freed.

Win 4-H State Honors

SUPERIOR records of achievement in 4-H activities have won 1944 State championship honors for four Michigan club members. The winners, and brief outlines of their records, follow:

Ardis Stampfly (right), 20, of DeWitt, receives an all-expense trip to the National 4-H Club Congress, Chicago, Dec. 3-6, as a reward from Montgomery Ward for her "all around" achievements in the National 4-H Girls' Record Program. During 9 years as a 4-H'er, the girl planned, prepared and served 183 special dishes, raised ½-acre of vegetables, made or remodeled 30 garments, and canned 480 jars of foods, as well as completed 25 projects. Ardis has an outstanding record as club leader both in her own community and throughout the county. Ardis won many placings in demonstrations and in judging.

Russell Mawby (right), 16, of Grand Rapids, has been chosen to represent the State in the Firestone 4-H Soil Conservation Activity for consideration in the selection of sectional and national winners. His soil conservation achievements include outlining the entire farm to show the lime requirements, types of soil and erosion of the farm land. He won many honors on his map exhibits, which were displayed in many windows in order that others could gain some knowledge from them. Five state co-winners who also each receive a $50 War Bond, are: Donald Patterson, Hartford; Robert Kohler, Brown City; Wendal Smith, Burlington; Edward Dow, Milburg, and Duane Traverse, of Constantine.

Barbara Szymanski (right), 18, of Posen, is the state's entrant for sectional-national honors in the William G. Mennen 4-H Farm Safety Activity. The girl's achievements in safety work include labeling poison bottles and putting them out of children's reach, placing "no smoking" signs in barn, clearing yard of tin cans, fixing loose rung on step ladder, burning oily rags and checking up and correcting every fire and accident hazard on the farm. Three state co-winners who also each receive a $25 War Bond, are: James Clark, Ypsilanti; Fergus Mann, Bay City, and Harold McDonald, of Fenton.

Donald Brinks, 15, of Plainwell, is named state entrant to be considered for sectional-national honors in the Sears-Roebuck Foundation 4-H Victory Garden Activity, which include a trip to the National 4-H Club Congress in Chicago, Dec. 3-6, and a $100 War Bond. For the last 5 years he has led a commercial canning partnership with his brother. The money taken from the garden is shared with the owner and the two boys. The last two years they have had a small fruit program, raising mostly strawberries and raspberries, which they sold from the roadside and home. They hired school children to help pick the berries. This year they raised 1½ acres of sweetcorn. Donald won a scholarship to Michigan State College for some the State Garden champion. He plans to attend college in 1945, become state conservation who also each receive a $25 War Bond, are: Arno Hakkola, Eben Junction; Ross Hedler, Dowagiac; Wilma Miller, St. Charles; Mary Mankowski, Garland; Beverly Watkins, Mason; Mabel Krueger, Bancroft, and Patricia French, of Kalamazoo.

A Jap Lived Here Once

This was once a Japanese pillbox in Burma until our boys came along and Mr. Nip ducked so hurriedly that he left behind his helmet and rifle. It did him no good to run, he went very quickly to his ancestors with an American bullet bought by somebody's War Bond. Time for Making Out Income Tax Return ats Hand: Extension Office Has Farm Account Books and Tax Forms For Your Convenience:

The new regulations relative to filing of income tax returns make it necessary for farmers on the calendar year basis to either mail their declaration of estimated tax or the final report by January 15. Thus it is time for many farmers to get this report ready.

The farm account book is an important instrument in obtaining the necessary information for the income tax statement. These farm account books cost thirty cents and are especially adapted for the use of farmers who need this information. For your convenience, these books may be obtained at your local Coop or bank. It will be to your advantage to secure your book before the end of the year so that you can take your inventory and get set for the new year.

As assistance to farmers who perhaps have never filed a report, and to help in emphasizing the new regulations, it is planned to have a series of meetings either the last week of December or the first part of January.

Codling Moth in Apple Tree Bark Menace 1945 Crop:

Overwintering codling moth larvae lurking under bark scales of apple trees are a serious threat to next year's crop in many Michigan orchards, according to County Agricultural Agent B. C. Mellencamp. As many as 300 larvae per tree have been counted recently.

Several factors seem to contribute to this situation, among them the inability of many apple growers to secure the right insecticides at the right time during the past spring and summer, labor shortages at spraying, and the hot, dry weather in the summer.

One of the best ways to head off this threatening infestation is to scrape the trunks of apple trees and then destroy the scrapings, which can be collected on canvas or burlap placed about the base of the tree. This method, when thoroughly done, will kill from 85 to 90 percent of the codling moths on the trees, is the opinion of Ray Hutson, head of the department of entomology at Michigan State College. This means that if 300 larvae are on the tree and 90 per cent of them are killed, 10,000 fewer moths will be on hand next June.

Scraped trees are also in good condition for the use of beta-naphthol banks, which will substantially reduce the codling moth threat.

Figures over a 15 year period indicate a reduction of from 35 to 70 percent in a medium to heavy codling moth overwintering Banding is not so worthwhile in light infestations, and young, smooth-barked trees should not be banded.

KIWANIS-FARMER GET-TOGETHER, TUES., DEC. 12

About sixty-five Kiwanians and their former guests listened to a remarkable lecture by Professor Prophet of the Michigan State College. Professor Prophet was introduced by B. C. Mellencamp, County Agricultural Agent.
The speaker gave an address that extended through about two hours, every moment of which was crammed with fact after fact related to the geogrnphicnl situation involving the United States forces as they fought against the Japs in the Far Pacific. Much use was made of recently made maps centering finally in the recent action among the Philippines. The United States attack upon Leyte Island was a remarkable demonstration of the foresight and daring that has gone into the planning and execution of military and naval objectives.
As has been indicated by many students of the present conflict, there can be no justifinble hope that the Pacific theater of action will be ended in the near future. There is too much wishful thinking in this hope. We are up against a fanntical enemy who is operating with a single mindedness that must be more than matched by the Allies if eventual success is to be achieved.

TAX FILING DATE EXPLAINED

Joseph D. Nunan, Jr., Commissioner of Internal Revenue, reminds individual income taxpayers that congress has changed from Dec. 15, 1944 to January 15, 1945, the final date for filing declarations of estimated income tax, either original (as in the case of farmers), or amended and paying of installments of estimated tax for the calendar year 1944.
Among the taxpayers affected by this change in dates are: Farmers who exercised their right to defer filing declarations last April 15; others who have really filed 1944 declarations but desire to change their estimates by filing amended declarations; all persons who owe the final installment of 1944 estimated tax.
If a taxpayer who would otherwise be required to file an original or amended declaration of estimated tax by January 15, 1945, files his annual income tax return for 1944 (on form 1040) and pays all tax due by January 15, his return will serve as both a return and declaration and he need not file the 1944 declaration.
Also, if a taxpayer files his final 1944 return (on form 1040) and pays the tax due on it by January 15, he need not pay the final installment which otherwise would be due on his estimated tax.
A bill from the collector for the final installment of 1944 estimated tax may be ignored by a taxpayer who files his annual return (on form 1040) and pays the tax due on it by January 15.
These changes will enable a taxpayer, if he desires to do so, to wind up all of his 1944 income tax obligations by January 15, but it does not effect the filing of his 1945 declaration which will be due March 15. Also, taxpayers who do not file their final 1944 returns by January 15 must do so by March 15.

Double Ring Ceremony For Ann Marie Leitch

Garlands of evergreen and white carnations decorated the altar of Christ Episcopal church for the wedding of Miss Ann Marie Leitch, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Angus G. Leitch, to Roland Lawrence Corbisier, of the local coast guard station, which was solemnized at 8 o'clock Saturday evening, December 16.
The double ring ceremony was performed by Rev. Arthur G-T Courteau. Attending the couple were Mrs. Sheridan Brandt of Manistee, aunt of the groom, who was matron of honor, and Mr. Brandt served as best man. Miss Joan Heise was bridesmaid, while Alfred Hardtke, of the coast guard station, and William and Robert Carey were ushers. Harold Trompour, organist, played the traditional wedding music.
Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of white brocaded satin, fashioned with long sleeves and a full skirt, and sweetheart neckline with net yoke. At her throat she wore a diamond cross worn by her mother and her grandmother at their own weddings. White roses formed her arm bouquet and her floor-length veil was held by rosebuds. Mrs. Brandt's gown was a black velvet bodice with full skirt of white net, and Miss Heise wore light blue crepe. Both had corsages of white carnations.
For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Leitch wore navy blue velvet with a corsage of white carnations.
A reception for 45 guests was given at the home of the bride's parents on Palmer street following the ceremony. A large bowl of white carnations and fern decorated the table from which were served the bride's cake and other refreshments.
Mr. and Mrs. Corbisier left for a wedding trip to Wisconsin, and after Christmas will be at home at 318 Mason street.
The bride is a graduate of Elk Rapids high school, class of 1940, and attended Western Michigan college in Kalamazoo. The groom is a graduate of Algomah, Wis., high school.
Out of town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Brandt, and William Hoopfer and daughter, Wilma, of Alden.

One Friend To Another . . .

"As good a friend . . . as the good old city knew, or any other good old city, town or borough, in the good old world"—A Christmas Carol.

These words of Charles Dickens express exactly what this newspaper tries to be to the people of this community.

Despite the anxiety and worry which the war has brought to many of our homes in the past year, we urge you to remember that the bells of Christmas were ringing long before the warriors of wrong rose up and they will be ringing still when the scars of this generation's conflict are healed and forgotten.

Because it is during the season of Christmas that the strength of friendships is most evident we choose now as the time to express our resolve to continue to be worthy of the friendship you have shown us.

In turn we wish for you the most Merry Christmas ever, with the fervent hope that a year hence the conditions which now curb the merriment of the season will be a part of the past.

PERCY MORTIMER HELD FOR BREAKING, ENTERING

Percy Mortimer, 29, who was held on a charge of breaking and entering the Northern Auto company in Boyne City and stealing the office safe, pleaded guilty to the charge and was arraigned before Justice H. R. Fowler, on Monday and bound over to the next term of circuit court. His wife, Jean, 22, who was being held on the same charge, demanded a preliminary hearing which was held before Justice Fowler on Friday.
Mortimer stole the safe early Thursday morning from the Northern Auto company where he was employed. Finding it impossible to burn the door off the safe, he loaded it into a car stolen from Dr. A. L. Litzenburger, and with his wife and two months old baby left Boyne City.
On the Charlevoix road near Horton Bay, the car skidded and went into the ditch. Mortimer abandoned the car and took the safe to a nearby woods where he pried it open and took $240 in cash and $2,000 in bonds and notes. State Trooper M. J. Kukler, of the Gaylord state police post and Police Chief Pat Roderick, of Boyne City found the family in a barn late Thursday after they had spent part of the night and day in a swamp.
Mrs. Mortimer and the infant were taken to the Charlevoix Hospital for treatment. Mrs. Mortimer was removed to the Charlevoix jail on Sunday where she is now held on a $500 bond.
Mortimer, a former Iowa resident, was on probation in Gaylord on a breaking and entering charge at the time he committed this second crime. He is being held on a $2500 bond.

MICHIGAN OUT-OF-DOORS
Playground News of Field and Stream

In the early 1850's, Sac Bay on Garden Peninsula in upper Lake Michigan was a port of call for sailing vessels that carried kegs of salt fish and cargoes of fuelwood to Chicago markets.

Beds of rock salt, 30 to 442 feet in thickness, underlie nearly all of the lower peninsula of Michigan, except the southwest corner.

Commercial fishermen operating out of Michigan ports on the Great Lakes will take fish more than $4,000,000 this year.

Unless the coming winter produces normal snowfall over the north central area of the state, levels of many lakes will fall to an undesirably low point, according to the conservation department's geological survey division.
Average ground water levels in the area resumed the decline in November which has been in progress since May, interrupted only once by a slight recovery in September. Although the decline from mid-October to mid-November was only sixteen-hundredths of a foot, it was the greatest decline recorded for the period. November levels are one and four-tenths of a foot lower than the record November high stage of a year ago, and only two-tenths of a foot higher than the record November low stage of 1935.

Most of the arrows used by archers who hunt deer in Michigan weigh from 475 to 600 grains, about 1½ ounces.

Largest deer shot on Drummond Island during the recent season, weight 284 pounds, is believed to have been the biggest ever taken there.

The first public sale of lands in the new Michigan Territory was held in Detroit in 1818.

The Michigan legislature first took drastic steps to control methods of deer hunting in 1881; previous to this date the only restriction imposed was the regulating of the length of the hunting season.

Now come the days when the lowly cottontail moves into the spotlight. Hunters may take rabbits in southern counties of the lower peninsula through December 31, in northern counties of the lower peninsula through January 31, and in the upper peninsula through March 1. Seasons are the same for varying or snowshoe hares found in northern counties.

Conservation department game men are not optimistic about prospects of hunter success. The rabbit kill was down to 1,214,883 last year, from 2,034,756 in 1942, and 2,287,748 in 1941, top year of record.

The decline last season may have been due in part to reduced pressure, although there seems also to have been a decrease in the cottontail population.

COUNTY BOND SALES SET A MAGNIFICENT RECORD

The investors and workers in the 6th War Loan campaign are to be congratulated in the excellent showing in surpassing the quota by over 30%, according to figures just released by Robert Bridge, county chairman.
Following the usual custom of dividing the county into three districts, Charlevoix, Boyne City and East Jordan were given quotas of $122,000 each of the $366,000 goal.
Particularly gratifying was the sales of the series "E" bonds, the kind the government wants in the hands of the general public. Sales in this series were: Charlevoix, $78,800; Boyne City, $49,050; East Jordan, $64,525; Clarion, $1,500. "Other Individual" sales were: Charlevoix, $72,975; Boyne City, $9,750; East Jordan, $40,500; Clarion, $6,500, with no final report from Beaver Island.
The county totals in "E" sales were $195,075 against a quota of $129,000; "Other Individual" sales, $129,725, quota $118,000; Corporation sales, $155,000, quota $119,000. Final reports may increase this $489,900 amount sold to a half million dollars.
Charlevoix County should feel proud of the way her people came to the front in this campaign. It shows that the community is aware of the necessity of going over the top in their purchases of war loan securities if they want their boys and girls back home in the shortest time possible.

The regular busiess meeting was followed by a Christmas program in charge of Mrs. Leigh H. Hagle and refreshments. The occasion was also a surprise handerchief shower for Mrs. Jones who celebrated her 83rd birthday anniversary on December 19.

A musical program, under the direction of Mrs. Stewart, Mrs. Joseph Arvilla and Mrs. Dorothy Bliss, was then presented. Christmas carols were sung by the members accompanied by Mrs. Arvilla at the piano, with the history of the carols being given by Mrs. Stewart. Mrs. Bliss and Mrs. Arvilla played several solos.

Gifts were exchanged and refreshments served by the hostess.

SCIENCE NOW KNOWS WHY LADIES MUST CRY

Is the "weaker sex" merely a tradition, or do women actually feel pain more than men? WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Losses Pinch German Economy; Civil Strife Upsets Greece; 4-H Selects National Champs

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysis and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

Displaying awards captured in national competition at the 4-H club's 23rd annual congress in Chicago, Ill., champs include (left to right) Mildred Reed, girls' leadership winner; Donald Mowery, boys' achievement winner; Mary Jo Morgan, girls' achievement winner, and Donald Sullivan, boys' leadership winner. (See: 4-H.)

4-H:
Champs

Left fatherless at 15, with the family deserted by the hired hand, young Donald F. Mowery of Terre Haute, Ind., took upon himself the man-sized job of running a 158-acre farm. At 18, he had earned nearly $14,000, and with it, the 4-H club's boys' national achievement championship at the 23rd annual 4-H congress in Chicago, Ill.

Adjudged the girls' national achievement winner was 19-year-old Mary Jo Morgan of Laurel, Miss., with an income of $6,808.25 drawn from nine years of club work in gardening, canning, clothing, foods, poultry and home improvements. Both boy and girl winner will receive a trophy from the president and a $200 college scholarship.

To 19-year-old Donald F. Sullivan of Potsdam, N. Y., and 20-year-old Mildred Reed of Bristol, Conn., went the national boys' and girls' 4-H titles for leadership in their clubs and communities. Awards for these honors are the same as to the achievement fields.

PEARL HARBOR:
Trials Off

Because separate army and navy investigating boards found that Maj. Gen. Walter C. Short and Rear Adm. Husband E. Kimmel were guilty only of errors in judgment in defensive preparations at Pearl Harbor at the time of the Japs' attack, the war and navy departments decided to drop courts-martial proceedings against them.

Adm. Kimmel

At the same time, the departments declared that the boards' findings would remain secret for the duration so as not to impair national safety.

Although not providing the grounds for courts-martial, the two commanders' errors in judgment were serious enough to warrant their retirement from service, it was said.

LIBERATION:
Political Scuffles

Diplomatic as well as military problems pressed the Allies in Europe, with British troops coming to the assistance of the rightist government in Greece in the latter's fight against leftist elements, and the U. S. condemning Britain's interference in Italian politics.

Of the two, the situation in Greece was the most serious, with many killed and injured in rioting following the leftists' refusal to give up their arms on the grounds that the rightists' were being allowed to keep theirs. With Greece on the threshold of the vital Suez canal passage from the far east, Britain maintained a deep interest in the situation. Said Britain's commander in Greece, Major General Scobie: ". . . I stand firmly behind the (rightist) government, and shall aid them to the limit of my resources. . ."

Although directly slapping at Britain for its resistance to the coming of Count Carlo Sforza as foreign minister in a new Italian regime, the stiffening U. S. State Department also declared that all other united nations should be given full opportunity to develop their own democratic forms of government.

WAR PRODUCTION

To prevent the possibility of incurring shortages in the Japanese war, U. S. arms production will be maintained at substantial levels after Hitler's fall, with only about 20 per cent reduction in output.

As a result of the government's new plans, only about 2,000,000 rather than 4,000,000 people are expected to be released from war industries on V-E (victory in Europe) day, and manpower and materials controls probably will be retained for the most part.

GERMANY:
Army Commands

With the great battle for Germany raging along the western front, the country's top army commanders took over complete control of military operations from intuitive Adolf Hitler.

Under supreme command of foxy Field Marshal Von Rundstedt, close to Hitler since his rise to power in 1933, German generals were using every trick in the book in an effort to slow up the Allies' powerhouse drive to the Rhine. Masses of field artillery were concentrated against vital Allied points; tanks were thrown in in counterattacks to blunt Allied spearheads, and green troops were seasoned on less active fronts and then hurled into the main fighting.

Despite tremendous German losses, the Nazis were reported to have on less than 6,000,000 men afield on all fronts, including supply and maintenance units. Although only about 1,250,000 between 19 and 46 were said to be of crack quality, the high command has shown a disposition to sacrifice the inferior troops in forward and rearguard actions, where they would eventually be written off.

Economic Pinch

Pinched on the military front, Germany will be equally pinched at home this winter, economists predict, what with the reduction in Nazi occupied territory resulting in decreased food and steel supplies.

Prior to this summer, both the German army and home front were well fed as a result of food imports from conquered nations; but with the Allies advancing both in the east and west since midyear, the Nazis have been compelled to fall back before being able to stock up with 1944 harvests. In addition, 1944 agricultural production in Germany has suffered because of labor and fertilizer shortages.

At the height of their European conquest, the Nazis controlled a continental steel industry with a capacity of 60,000,000 tons; but here again, German retreat resulted in the loss of about 24,000,000 tons in Italy, France, Belgium, Luxembourg, the Balkans and Hungary, and Allied bombings were estimated to have chopped off an additional 6,000,000 tons to the Reich itself.

Hard Fighting

Their backs to the wall, the Nazis still fought viciously in an attempt to stave off the steady Allied surge to their homeland. Latest threat developed in southwestern Hungary, where a great Russian breakthrough beyond the Danube carried within 40 miles of the Austrian frontier.

As the Reds rushed onward, the Nazis were expected to reform their lines around 50-mile-wide Lake Balaton, which would appreciably decrease the length of their front at a period of the war when the economy of manpower, rather than of maintenance of territory, was the overriding consideration.

On the western front, most spectacular advance was in Lieut. Gen. Patton's drive on the vital coal-laden Saar basin, but hardest fighting centered east of Aachen, where the U. S. 9th and 1st armies continued to grind forward toward the edge of the sprawling Cologne plain, with the Reich's industrial heart about 20 miles away.

MISCELLANY

Even prisoners are doing their part for Uncle Sam in the war. Inmates have turned out $25,000,000 of industrial products since July, 1942, including steel pontoons, submarine and cargo nets, work garments, blankets, rope, parachute cords, stretchers, camouflage netting and ammunition boxes. In addition, prison farm production has increased to $43,556,343 annually.

PACIFIC:
Real Sailor

Interesting sidelight on the war in the Pacific, which saw continued bad weather hampering the U. S. drive on Leyte, was crusty little Admiral Halsey's postponement of a bombardment of Manila to rescue 38 American pilots forced down at sea.

As Admiral Halsey's Third fleet sailed toward the great Philippine port, it encountered a gusty storm, and 40 of its pilots were caught in the air. When a tabulation showed them to be missing, Admiral Halsey called off the raid, ordering the fleet to search for the fliers.

After an extensive combing of the sea, 38 of the airmen were rescued. Then, the salty little admiral ordered full steam ahead for Manila.

PENSIONS:
For Vets' Widows

Getting together to settle their differences on the subject, the house and senate shaped a common measure on providing pensions for widows and orphans of World War I vets and sent it to the White House for approval.

Under a bill passed by congress, widows of World War I vets, having an income of less than $1,000 a year, would be eligible for a $35 monthly pension, while widows with children, with income of less than $2,500 annually, would get $45 for the first child and $5 for each additional. The bill also provided payment of $18 for one orphan and $36 for three, plus $4 for each additional.

Although passed four times before by the house, such pension bills previously were pigeon-holed before they could reach the senate floor.

Death Run

Hit by anti-aircraft fire after attack on German switchyards at Munich, this B-24 burst into flames, slipped over on its side, and plummeted to earth.

STATE DEPARTMENT:
More Changes

With Big Businessman Edward Stettinius taking over as secretary of state, other big business names were added shortly after to the state department's roster, with the appointment of William Clayton and Nelson Rockefeller as the new chieftain's assistants.

Formerly surplus property disposal head, Clayton, prominent southern cotton broker and business associate of Secretary of Commerce Jesse Jones, will be in charge of foreign economic affairs. Son of John D. Rockefeller Jr. and presently coordinator of inter-American affairs, Rockefeller will handle U. S. relations with the Latin republics.

In other big shifts in the department, career-diplomat Joseph C. Grew was named undersecretary of state, and Archibald MacLeish was put in charge of public and cultural relations. U. S. ambassador to Japan from 1932 to Pearl Harbor, Grew, who repeatedly warned of the aggressive designs of the Nipponese, served as undersecretary for a time under Calvin Coolidge.

WORLD AVIATION:
End Confab

Amid much reciprocal compliment and bowing, the international aviation conference came to an end in Chicago, Ill., after 37 days of continuous sessions in which framework for a world civil air organization was constructed and certain flight principles established.

Permanent acceptance of the program, however, will be dependent upon ratification by the 54 allied and neutral nations after the war, with an interim organization to be situated in Canada maintaining the basic structure during the length of the conflict. Powers of the organization will merely be advisory, except for authority within its own body.

As a whole, delegates favored the principles of allowing flight over their territories and landings for other than commercial purposes. Great Britain, for one, however, balked over the proposal to permit places from different countries to operate commercially in any particular nation unless quotas were established for each one.

COTTON

With U. S. cotton hard pressed by cheaper foreign production, Secretary of Agriculture Claude Wickard proposed a plan under which the government would subsidize the small planter with the view toward financing his entrance into new agricultural fields. As another approach to the problem, Wickard suggested a two-price system under which parity would be paid for domestic consumption, with exports disposed of at prices prevalent in the world markets.

Good Year Ahead For Foster Boat Co.

Foster Boat Company officials are very optimistic over the prospects for the coming year with order already on file in both the local plant and the Petoskey canvas division which will tax plant capacities for the first half of 1945.

One recent order of 600 storm, or assault boats for the U. S. Combat Engineers will require additional carpenters and woodworkers to enable the company to produce this order alone before mid-summer at the local factory.

Several new orders have been received at the Petoskey Canvas division for 75mm and 30 cal. shell-bags, cover assemblies for half-track vehicles, and a new tarpaulin order for U. S. Army Ordnance, the largest yet received which will require about six months full capacity production.

Whenever opportunity afforded, the drafting and engineering departments have devoted time toward development of post-war products. Just a peek at "what's new in boating" is enough to cause the yachting fraternity to become enthusiastic. Contemplated products, in addition to boats, are: oars, paddles, anchors, life preservers and jackets.

About the years gone by,
You have never been forgotten
Since you left to dwell on High.
God knew you were tired and weary
Although you never complained.
He knew your work on earth was done.
And He kindly spared you pain.
I called you on Christmas Day
Four days before you left.
I can hear your voice so plainly say,
Have you written this week yet?
I need no pictures on the wall
To remind me of your dear face
For your vision is always before me
Tender, loving and full of "His Grace."

PLAN YOUR SPENDING FOR YOUR FAMILY YOUR COUNTRY - YOURSELF PLAN YOUR SAVING

Are you a Dollar SABOTEUR?

Every time you buy goods you do not really need, you help force prices up, help make critical shortages of merchandise even more critical. Any one of us who is spending as high a percentage of his income on "unnecessaries" today as he was before the war, is just that—a saboteur.

But when you buy War Bonds regularly—when you go to the bank each pay day and make a deposit—when you save according to a plan—you help build a backlog of saved dollars which will help keep prices down and will help assure continued prosperity after the war.

Protect Children From Disease Is Public Health Advice

The fact that many diseases may cause deafness in very young children is given as one reason for protecting infants from disease, by Dr. Lavinia Mae Kaye, pediatrician of the University of Michigan. Her article, "The Conservation of Hearing", appears in the January issue of "Michigan Public Health," official publication of the state health department.

Scarlet fever, measles, meningococcic meningitis, mumps, diphtheria, influenza, whooping cough are among the disease Doctor Mae Knye lists as being especially dangerous to infants.

She also states that almost half of adult deafness can be prevented if school children are tested and prompt treatment is given to those found to have slight hearing losses.

For two years the state health department has offered schools the services of a hearing consultant. Since January 1, 1944, this consultant gave group hearing tests to 28,887 children in 825 Michigan schools. These tests discovered 1,086 children with hearing losses who were referred to our specialists.

41 MONTHS OVERSEAS HAS SEEN ACTION

Pvt. Sherlund O. Pixley, 26, who returned recently from 41 months overseas duty, has reported at the Army Air Force Redistribution Station for reassignment after spending a furlough here and in Boyne City with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John A. Johnson.

Pvt. Johnson began his long tour of duty which extended to more than three years when he left the United States in June, 1941, for Panama via Bermuda. In telling of his travels in a recent letter he writes. Some of the most interesting things in Bermuda was the fact that there are no cars, the rooftops which are painted white and from which all water is saved and, of course, the beautiful girls.

I was stationed at France Field, Canal Zone, until the outbreak of the war, when I went to South America and was assigned to a field in Ecuador until March of 1942, when I flew to Australia and joined the famous 19th Bomb Group, 28th Bomb Squadron as an aircraft engineer and mechanic on a Flying Fortress.

On September 12, while on a bombing mission, we were shot down over New Guinea. After dodging the Japs and walking for 14 days four out of the nine men were rescued and returned to our base in Australia. After that experience I spent eight and a half months in the hospital recovering from the ordeal and malaria.

After that I was grounded and only did routine work on Flying Fortresses. I returned to the States in November and after a furlough at home reported here for reassignment.

By the way, I was married while I was overseas to an Australian girl whom I hope will be joining me soon.

Pvt. Pixley was awarded the Air Medal and the Presidential Unit Citation while in Australia.

Health Unit News Reported

Dr. A. F. Litzenburger, Director of District Department of Health No. 3, reports results are fairly good in connection with 57 milk samples taken during this quarter for the counties of Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet and Otsego.

Among others, the "Butter Fat" test average is as follows:

County	Percentage
Antrim	4.
Charlevoix	4.1
Emmet	4.2
Otsego	4.2

Dr. Litzenburger went on to say that 131 drinking water samples were collected, tested and reported on, during this same period, with results as follows:

No. and Name	Good	Bad
68 Schools	59	9
13 Private	3	10
50 Municipal	42	8

Many private, together with some school water supplies are contaminated, and at the same time the owners assume that, because the water is "sparkling clear" it is pure.

Contaminated water could be very dangerous, so if anyone is in doubt about their supply, they are urged to contact the Sanitation Department of this unit, soon as possible.

BARTHOLOMEW WRITES STORY FROM BELGIUM

Major Clair J. Bartholomew writes to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Bartholomew, from somewhere in Belgium. Same location as last time and now it looks as though we'll stay for a while. We are in a town of 5,000, a fairly good-sized city, situated in very beautiful surroundings. Six of my men are in another town about 20 miles away as I have no use for them at present and no quarters for them in this town. At present they are quartered in a Catholic school and have heat, but no beds. At least they can keep warm so will leave them there for the present.

The first two nights were spent in hotels but are now quartered in private homes. Each of the three of us are in a different house but all on the same street. I have a very nice room and comfortable bed, but no heat in the room. These people must get by on very little coal so they heat only their kitchen by means of a coal range. I am allowed to sit in their kitchen as much as I want and so am very comfortable. I am writing this in their kitchen.

Their name is Remy and they have three children, two boys, age 10 and 8 and a girl who is 6. At present the family and some friends are playing hearts. They play it exactly as we do except all queens count 13 against the person who takes them. I have played hearts with them two evenings. Some evening we are going to have a bridge game. I have been asked to eat with them, but have refused knowing how difficult it is for them to get food.

The weather here has been very nasty so far. We have had rain almost continuously. It is no wonder the war does not move faster. Our boys are fighting in plenty of mud. I just wish the people in the States could realize 1-10 of what our front line troops have to put up with. It is our opinion that most of the people in the States consider the war almost won. We are not nearly so optimistic and do not believe this winter will see the end of the war by any means.

I went to the Protestant church service today, at the only Protestant church in the town. The service was all in French and of course I couldn't understand it but their service was very similar to our own with the same number of hymns, prayers and the same length of sermon. The pastor had a real heavy beard. Several of the congregation shook hands with me and made me feel as if they were glad I was present. The church, of course, was without heat.

We were able to get our jeep repaired recently and now it's in good working order. No antifreeze yet, so we must drain the radiator each night. At present we park the jeep in the railway station at night. Standard procedure before leaving it for the night is to remove the distributor rotor and to lock the steering wheel with a chain and padlock. American soldiers are particularly bad about stealing jeeps for joy rides. Civilians don't bother them.

MICHIGAN MIRROR

Dear Joe:

Parapl Gettysburg, the world n tal wor note nor long re- we folks in Michi- membe ecember, 1944. gan do, however, cannot forg ighthunt sons of Michi- gan dn, the you and a half mil- lion your buddies, too, from oth games—are doing on fight- ts around the world in the defense of America's fu- si tny, isn't it, how we have so in common — you on the ing front and we in Michi- on the home front? Just be- se we are separated from you an ocean and half or more of continent, don't think for one minute that we're not a member of your team. For we are! We're all on the same team together, Joe. That makes it so difficult for both of us.

As we read your home-town newspaper and note what you have been doing, we are moved by several kinds of emotions. Of course, we are proud of you. News from your letters is being printed every week or so, telling your friends of what you are doing—that is, what the censors will permit you to write.

Then we try to imagine what it must be like, over in France or Germany, or Italy, this December, 1944. The mud is ankle-deep. It is cold. We remember that well from our teen-age experience in France back during the first World War, and that war was a picnic compared to yours today.

We try to picture in our mind what it must be to live in a trench or foxhole—maybe a tent, if you are lucky, or perhaps an old building—without heat and without any of the conveniences we have back here in Michigan.

You know, Joe, it's not easy for us to picture all this. The war isn't being fought in the United States. Sometimes we wonder if that isn't the reason why we sometimes act as we do—we just cannot comprehend the reality of modern war because the war is so far away. It gives us a feeling of frustration.

No, the enemy airplanes never arrived. But again we had nothing to say about that. The Office of Civilian Defense got a lot of us in Michigan to prepare for possible air attacks. Thousands of people in north Michigan and Canada volunteered to scan the skies in details 24 hours around the clock, summer and winter. Fire wardens organized to combat incendiary bombs.

In those days after Pearl Harbor our military experts at Washington were genuinely concerned over this menace. But the Nazi airplanes never arrived. No bombs were dropped on our homes.

Why? Well, it just didn't work out that way, it seems. The Germans were too busy fighting the Russians, and then there was the British navy guarding the Atlantic ocean while we recovered from the loss at Pearl Harbor.

Try as we do, we still cannot picture what a bombing raid must be like.

Last summer after you and your buddies landed on the beachheads of Normandy and the Allied break-through resulted in the great German withdrawal to the Siegfried line, Washington officials were pretty optimistic about a quick victory.

You know, Joe, the newspapers still print the news as Washington gives it out. Officials at Washington possess vital war information. Much of it is censored and not disclosed to newspapers at all.

For example, don't blame us back at home for any failure to send over enough shells. If the military experts couldn't foresee the tremendous consumption of shells by MacArthur's men at Leyte or forecast the amount of munitions to be consumed in the big push into Germany, how could we back here in Michigan be expected to produce it?

Quoting from the United Press: "The present shell shortage is explained partly by the fact that while Gen. Dwight Eisenhower has asked for two-thirds of the present mortar shell output, Gen. Douglas MacArthur has used more mortar shells on Leyte than in all his previous action. In addition, there are the demands of other Pacific and Mediterranean fronts."

We understand fully why you are sore at the war workers who quit their jobs because of some grievance—higher wages, for example. It is true that Michigan has had a lot of unauthorized strikes. They were unauthorized because the leaders, in many cases, could not keep the workers on the job. Unions have pledged not to strike. So the workers, now and then, get mad and quit.

The daily newspaper prints the word a labor strike is news.

Did you ever think that same Michigan labor strikes [illegible] only a small fraction of the total army of Michigan men and women who work in war plants? Or did you know that several hundred thousand folk from other states have come to Michigan since Pearl Harbor—men and women who do not own property in Michigan? They are interested in their paychecks, and when the war is over, they expect to go home.

It's our observation, Joe, that the great rank and file of Michigan residents are working faithfully and buying war bonds and otherwise doing their part pretty much as the experts at Washington have asked them to do. Why shouldn't they? These same people have sons in the service, too.

Yes, Joe, as the Christmas season returns once more, we hope you will be patient with us on the Michigan home front. We're trying to help win the war, but you must remember that the war is still a long ways off for us. Maybe you'd rather have it that way—to return to a home that has not been demolished or scarred by artillery shells or robot bombs.

The war is coming home to us, however, in the long casualty lists. Many stars on the service flag have already turned to gold. At Ironwood the residents of that mining community dedicated an honor roll on the third anniversary of Pearl Harbor. On it were 43 gold stars. The names of those men sound like an American melting pot—English, Finnish, Polish, Irish, Swedish as well as other nationalities. They were all Americans—remember that.

In our hearts we all honor you.
So keep up the good fight, Joe.
America won't let you down.

Oversens, 1,600 hospital workers acquaint the wounded with government benefits and Red Cross services which will be available on their return to this country. At home, hospital workers filed 96,000 claims for veterans of this war from October 1943, through April, 1944.

Red Cross hospital workers are helping to prepare the family of the disabled veteran for his return by explaining the man's handicap, detailing further treatment recommended by the medical officer, and by advising the family how best to help the serviceman make his readjustment.

OF INTEREST TO FARMERS

By B. C. MELLENCAMP

Extra milk from careful feeding:

Many Michigan cows are producing much needed extra milk because they are being fed proper rations. October records for the state show a considerable increase in milk output, with 15.9 pounds daily per cow compared with 14.9 pounds for the same month a year ago.

Many unproductive dairy herds can show a proportionate increase by use of low cost rations fed in conjunction with good green alfalfa or brome grass, asserts County Agricultural Agent B. C. Mellencamp. Here are several mixtures recommended by A. C. Baltzer, extension dairy specialist at Michigan State College: 500 lbs. cornmeal, 200 lbs. wheat, 150 lbs. course ground cull beans, 150 lbs. soybean meal; or: 350 lbs. corn, 350 lbs. wheat, 200 lbs. oats, 100 lbs. soybean meal. Go light on feeding silage if plenty of quality hay is available. Low grade, late cut, weathered hay needs a different type of grain mixture, which might include either of these two formulas: 350 lbs. wheat, 400 lbs. oats, 250 lbs. soybean meal; or: 300 lbs. cornmeal, 200 lbs. wheat, 200 lbs. oats, 200 lbs. course ground cull beans, 100 lbs. soybean meal, add 1 lb. of salt to each 100 lbs. of grain.

Hospital Equipment

Complete equipment for 5,000 civilian hospital patients in ten hospitals in the U. S. S. R. soon will be provided by the American Red Cross for priority shipment aboard Soviet government ships to Russia, where hospitals are badly needed.

Ship Bottoms

It has been estimated that about 20 million dollars each year are saved to owners of wooden ships alone by the use of ship bottom paint which discourages the entrance of two species of marine creatures, the teredo and limnoria, which bore into wood and are credited with being able to honeycomb it and destroy its structural strength within two or three years.

HOME ACCIDENTS

That home accidents have increased during the war is indicated by reports from the Kansas Board of Health cited recently by the American Red Cross in its nationwide effort to teach homemakers how to avoid falls, fires, burns and similar preventable mishaps.

Statistics from the latest edition of the Kansas Accidental Death Report reveal that home accidents during 1943 took the lives of 602 Kansans — more than twice the number who lost their lives in motor vehicle accidents in that state during the same period, and almost three times as many as died from occupational mishaps.

Falls, which have led the list of causes of fatal home accidents for the past 12 years, accounted for more than half of the home accident deaths.

Burns and conflagrations—second only to falls as an annual cause of accidental death in the home — killed 112 Kansans, an increase of 26 over the previous year.

One hundred and twenty-six children of less than five years were killed in home accidents during the year. This is a marked increase over preceeding years, and has led the Kansas Board of Health to point to a mounting lack of proper supervision of children too young to be responsible for their own safety.

OF INTEREST TO FARMERS

By B. C. MELLENCAMP

GOOD LEASE KEEPS FARM PRODUCTIVE

A good farm lease is important if both the tenant and landlord are to maintain satisfactory relationships and the farm is to be kept in productive condition, points out County Agriculturnl Agent B. C. Mellencamp.

Many rented farms in Charlevoix County and other counties in Michigan are becoming less productive year by year. The fault often lies with unsatisfactory leases and lack of proper understanding between landlord and tenant.

E. B. Hill, head of the department of farm management at Michigan State college, emphasizes that when the leases is first made out the landlord and tenant should reach an understandiag as to the crops and soils program to be followed. Includod should be agreements for the use of commercial fertilizer, lime, barnyard manure, cover crops, and new seedings.

Living conditions often are not designed to encourage good tenants to operate farms in the best manner. Many landlords do not maintain good tenant houses; but on the other hand some tenant families neglect proper care of the dwelling and landlords become discouraged in attempts to furnish good living quarters. The lease can be used to avoid such difficulties by providing for maintenance of the tenant house.

Every farm lease should arrange for a fair division of expenses and income. Changing tenants is expensive for both tenant and landlord, so it pays to make every effort to draw up a fair contract.

WESTERN UNION ANNOUNCES NEW MESSAGE SERVICE

The Federal Communications Commission has approved a "Homeward Bound" telegraph service which will be offered by Western Union to military personnel returning from overseas, it was announced today by M. E. Wakefield, local manager of the telegraph company.

The new service, providing fifteen fixed-text messages, will be available at certain debarkation hospitals, reception centers thru which men returning from overseas will pass, and separation centers from which they will receive their final military discharges. The "Homeward Bound" messages may be sent at a special 25 cent rate from these debarkation points to any Western Union destination in the United States. One of the messages reads:

"Leaving here soon. Home for good. Get my civilian clothes ready. Love."

Mr. Wakefield stated that the "Homeward Bound" service will provide the first domestic fixed telegrams offered since the discontinuance of fixed-text greeting messages in 1942. This service at a special rate for the armed forces, he said, is comparable to the present low, flat rates on telegraphic money orders to and from members of the armed forces.

SGT. M. F. OLMSTEAD WITH 15TH AAF IN ITALY

Sgt. M. Franklin Olmstead is serving as an aircraft mechanic with a heavy bombardment group, which recently was awarded a second War Department citation for outstanding performances in the Mediterranean Theatre of Operations.

He is now authorized to wear an oak leaf cluster on his Distinguished Unit Badge. This second citation was for a daring and successful attack on the Concordia Vega oil refinery at Ploesti, Rumania. The first was for an attack on the railroads at Bucharest, Rumania, during which 40 enemy aircraft were destroyed.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Miles Olmstead. His wife resides in Lansing.

Coleman Addresses Kiwanis Meeting

For the edification of the Kiwanians, Stewart Coleman gave the local club an insight into the workings of the Charlevoix Board of Commerce at their regular Tuesday night dinner and meeting.

It is doubtful if any member, or the public in general is aware of the many services being performed by the local board. Mr. Coleman showed samples of the various pamphlets issued by the city and county which are mailed to all prospective Charlevoix visitors and outlined the advertising campaign carried in resort magaziaes in an effort to attract tourist trade. A record of 214 requests in one day for information and assistance has been courteously handled in the summer Board of Commerce building.

Mr. Coleman has accomplished many noteworthy things in the few years he has acted as the City's "Good Will Ambassador", but he has two warranatable complaints. If we are to accommodate the trade, which is brought here through the efforts of his office, we must cooperate by furnishing information where housing is available. The other, of which most of us are cognizant but do very little about, is the lack of courtesy and Charlevoix hospitality shown many of the summer visitors.

Charlevoix, the beautiful, is a part of the second largest business in the State of Michigan. We will remain a part of that business only as long as we treat our customers with the same consideration politely granted by any other first class institution.

Playground News of Field and Stream

"Little Adolf", the deodorized skunk that was sent to an Oklahoma-based bomber crew as a mascot, has disappeared.

The conservation department has received a letter from the bomber pilot describing the circumstances of "Little Adolf's" escape. A jealous Air Forces member is suspected and there are threats that he'll be peppered with gravel if he can be maneuvered into a slipstream of the plane piloted by the skunk's erstwhile master.

Meanwhile, the department is moving to secure another skunk as mascot for the crew.

JUNIOR FARM BUREAU

Charlevoix County is justly proud of its Junior Farm Bureau organization. It consists of the most devoted and public spirited young people of the county.

Regular meetings are held once a month, but because of considerable activity and aim far in advance of the program of the moment, often two or even three special meetings are held during the month.

The immediate happy task, assumed and undertaken by the Junior Farm Bureau, is sponsoring and managing the campaign workers dinner to be held at the Marion Center Grange hall on January 9th.

Bill Gilkerson of East Jordan is the very able president. His fellow officers are well chosen and cooperate nicely. Robert Behling of Wilson Township, a senior of Boyne City High School, is vice-president. Bob is level headed. Nancy Block of Charlevoix is a good secretary and a senior in the high school there. Robert Nachazel of Eveline Township and a graduate of East Jordan high school is treasurer. Raynor Olstrom of Eveline Township is the reporter. Raynor is an enthusiastic and practical young farmer and a graduate of East Jordan high school.

Nothing short of most helpful Senior and Junior Farm Bureaus is the aim of this organization. The enthusiasm of its young members is beautiful in its spirit of unselfish interest and fair play. The boys and girls are determined to make country life in Charlevoix County second to none in Michigan. Their courage, aggressiveness and sparkling good humor are highly contagious.

★ BUY AN EXTRA WAR BOND NOW

YES, BUT A TELEPHONE ON THE PREMISES DOESN'T ALWAYS MEAN WE CAN FURNISH SERVICE

If you move into a vacant home or apartment and find a telephone already there, you'll probably wonder why we may not be able to give you telephone service. Here's the reason:

As soon as a present customer moves out, even though the instrument may not be removed for several days, his service is disconnected at the central office. Then the equipment and switchboard space that telephone required are put right into use for war-essential or other priority service or for the next person on the waiting list.

With the armed forces taking most new telephone equipment, and with more people wanting service than ever before, we're following this fair and equitable plan provided for in governmental orders.

We'll be glad when we can again give all the service everybody wants—wherever and whenever they want it.

Interment was at the Brookside cemetery. Mr. Elliott had died at his home on Wednesday following two years of ill health.

A short time later they moved to Rhineland, Wis., and lived there until returning to Michigan about 1899. They resided at Central Lake before coming to Marion township in 1900. They have since made their home there. Mrs. Elliott preceded him in death in December, 1939.

FORMER CHARLEVOIX RESIDENT KILLED IN ACTION NEW YEAR'S DAY

Flight Officer Clifford S. (Jim) Newton 22, formerly of Charlevoix and Petoskey, was killed in action overseas on New Year's Day. He had made his home in Petoskey with his brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. George Zipp.

A member of the Royal Canadian Air Force, he was a pilot of a Lancaster bomber. His flying squadron had sunk the German Battleship Tirpitz, the largest battleship then afloat, and had received commendations from King George VI, the British admiralty and other notables. He had completed a tour of 60 missions.

Besides his father, Archibald Newton, who resides in Detroit, he is survived by four sisters and two brothers.

PRECIOUS FATS ARE BEING THROWN AWAY!

A program to stimulate rural used fat collections has been announced by War Food Administration.

WFA, in assuming complete responsibility for the fat salvage program, has put the full weight of its Extension Service and its County Agents behind the drive, instructing them to work with meat dealers and renderers in straightening out collection problems.

It is believed there is an additional three to five million pounds of used fat monthly in rural and small town markets. A recent survey in the middle west placed rural fat salvage at approximately one-fifth of a pound per month per occupied dwelling. United States Army and Navy, on the other hand, are saving fat at a rate of more than four pounds per man per year, or almost seven times as much as the rural survey figures.

Fat salvage can no longer be regarded as a volunteer service. It is a serious wartime obligation that must not be neglected until every Jap is driven back to Tokio and the South Pacific Islands again become exporters of commercial fats and oils.

Dickens Once a Factory Hand

Fall Seedings Aided By Use of Fertilizer

Early Order-Delivery Increases Availability

Extra supplies of fertilizer may be available for farmers for the 1944-45 season if they order early and accept early delivery, according to the War Food administration.

Farmers are being urged to order and take delivery before December 31 of six bags of fertilizer for every five ordered last year.

Storing of fertilizer from fall until spring is entirely practical wherever dry space is available.

Yields of fall-seeded grains, winter cover crops, hay and pasture will be increased by proper use of fertilizer during the early fall, agronomists point out. That means more food for humans, bigger feed supplies for animals, and more grain essential to industry. Fertilizer is more readily available in the fall since it is usually the slack time on sales and distribution.

Experiments over long periods have shown that a net acre increase of a ton of hay may reasonably be expected from the use of the equivalent of 100 pounds of triple superphosphate per acre on alfalfa. Potash deficiencies should be made up at the same time superphosphate is applied.

Increases in legume cover crop growth, which when turned under brought better yields of succeeding crops, are amply supported by research data as well as actual farm experience reports. Yield of corn immediately following the vetch are also increased an average of more than 11 bushels per acre on four of the state's major soil types without the use of additional fertilizer.

Farm Cooling of Eggs Will Insure Quality

Cooling to a safe temperature is an important factor in the care of eggs on the farm. The germ in fertile eggs can grow when the temperature is above approximately 68 degrees F. Eggs when laid are about the temperature of the hen's body, 104 degrees F to 107 degrees F.; therefore, prompt cooling is essential.

In very warm climates, special care must be taken to cool eggs promptly. In cold climates they must be protected from freezing temperatures. In arid regions it is essential to supply moisture to cooling rooms to prevent the eggs from drying out excessively.

For cooling eggs, producers make use of cellars, springs, caves, ice houses, and numerous home-made cooling devices. A popular and inexpensive cooler is made by covering the sides and ends of a frame with coarse burlap and moistening this cloth by keeping one end of it in a pan of water.

The Milo Kane family spent Christmas with the Shearer family at Charlevoix.

Mrs. Ann Kaskey was a Boyne City shopper last Saturday.

Mrs. Peter Winnick, son Peter, and daughters, Dolores and Dorothy spent the holidays with relatives in and near Chicago. They are expected home some day this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Allison and sons, Kenneth and Alfred, spent New Year's Eve in Boyne City.

ARE YOU IN?

Mr. J. J. Lacey of the American Farm Bureau Federation writes that there are 130,000 more Farm Bureau members in America today than a year ago, and prospects indicate that by the end of the fiscal year on November 30 there will be 850,000 members. Northeastern Farm Bureau leaders also tell me that the enthusiasm for Farm Bureau work is the highest ever, and that memberships in nearly every county are growing by leaps and bounds.

Similar reports come from the Grange and from many farm cooperatives.

That is just as it should be. The farmer's only hope of surviving the gigantic problems of agriculture which will follow this war lies in organization.

—American Agriculturist, November 4, 1944.

FARM BUREAU REPRESENTS ALL FARMERS

The charge is sometimes made that the Farm Bureau serves 'big' farmers; is not interested in the 'little' farmer's problems.

The size of its membership alone refutes that statement. There are not nearly a million 'big' farmers in the United States, and if ever there were any inclination on the part of big farmers who belong to the organization to use it for selfish ends, they are so utterly out-numbered by the others, that they could not do so.

Whether a man owns 5 acres or 5,000; whether he is owner, tenant, hired man or share-cropper, his membership in the Farm Bureau gives him one vote and that vote is worth just as much as that of any other member of the organization.—Missouri Farm Bureau News.

DRESS UP TO IRON; IT BOOSTS MORALE, SAYS MISS POND

If it's ironing day, it will help a lot to approach this hot, tedious job with your morale uplifted by an attractive appearance, says Miss Julia Pond, Michigan State College extension specialist in home management.

Before you start ironing, comb your hair, put on a little powder and rouge, and get into a clean, attractive and comfortable dress, is her advice. By so doing you'll not have to worry or be upset because of an unexpected caller, and you'll probably end the day being less tired.

Moreover, there are ways of avoiding a lot of ironing, if you know how, says Miss Pond.

Iron only the articles that need to be ironed. Select easily ironed fabrics, styles and finishes. Starch properly. Wring, hang and fold carefully to avoid unnecessary creasing and wrinkling. Select the best equipment you can get and group it in the most convenient manner.

Either too little or too much water used in dampening prolongs ironing. Use warm water, sprinkle it on evenly, and roll the dampened garments lightly to prevent wrinkles. Some articles can be ironed without sprinkling to save time.

A well padded portable board of the proper height is essential for efficient ironing. Sitting, if convenient, is more restful, but if you prefer to stand and your feet get tired, a mat of rubber or fibre is a comfort.

FARM BUREAU ROLL CALL JANUARY 9th

In keeping with the practice begun by other Michigan counties, Charlevoix county, too, is staging a membership campaign during month of January. The drive is patterned after the methods used in other places where they have proven successful.

The county board of directors have chosen a man to act as campaign manager in the county. Assisting Mr. Blanchard are several men from different communities; Vern McGhan of Marion, Clarence Murrey of McGeagh, Mark Saunders of Ironton, Leo Berg of Hayes, Delbert Ingalls of South Arm and Clarence Healey of the Peninsula. Captains for other communities are yet to be named.

Each captain is held responsible for securing workers for the drive in his district. He must also keep them informed of meetings of instruction and other matters of importance.

The goal of 200 members which was set by the county board has since been revised by the state office to conform more closely with the statewide goal of 40,000 farm family members.

If you have not been contacted by January 15th please contact one of the above mentioned committee.

YEARS TAKE TOLL, AS CARS BATTLE 4TH WAR-WINTER!

Many a car owner finds himself bedeviled with car troubles this winter . . . because ordinary care isn't enough for older cars in this 4th War-Winter. Rationed driving, with its short trips and necessary slow speeds, drains battery life and power. It also builds up sticky sludge—which tends to clog oil lines and screens, and may lead to burned-out bearings, to stuck rings and scored cylinders. The older the car, the greater the danger.

"Nurse" and "coddle" your car for the balance of the winter. It will pay you handsome dividends in smoother, more economical operation and longer car life. See your Standard Oil Dealer frequently.

U. S. HAS OVER 5,000 FROZEN FOOD LOCKERS

Every State in the Union now has one or more frozen food locker plants, according to K. F. Warner, extension meat specialist of the U. S. Department of Agriculture and War Food Administration.

In Iowa, which has the most, the number of locker plants is 580. Minnesota is second with 470 and Washington State is third with 404. Altogether there are 5,282 in the United States or an average of about 110 per state.

These figures are from the seventh annual count of locker plants made by state extension services during July of this year. In the seven years the total number of such plants has more than quadrupled.

POST-WAR DROP IN FARM PRICES ANTICIPATED

Indications that government officials anticipate a decline in farm prices in the post-war period is seen in statements contained in a publication just issued by the Department of Agriculture discussing the possibilities of farming after the war. Entitled "Shall I Be a Farmer?" the booklet discusses problems which must be solved by the would-be farmers in the post-war period and contains this word of caution: "The prices paid for the farm must not be more than you can pay back from your earnings after you have met your living expenses. Remember that prices of farm products in the future, as in the past, are likely to rise and fall. Wartime prices are not likely to continue indefinitely. If your hogs, milk or cotton should bring only half as much as they do now, and they might in the future, it will be hard to pay off your debt, especially if you paid a wartime boom price for your land."

PRICE PROSPECT GOOD ON FED CATTLE, HOGS

A favorable price outlook for fed cattle and hogs is indicated by the Dept. of Agriculture in its current review of the livestock and wool situation. Marketings of fed cattle, the Department says, will be sharply reduced this year and hog marketings, while increasing, will advance at a slower rate.

With the War Food Administration still in the market for substantial quantities of pork during the coming months, it is expected that hog prices this winter will be higher than last year.

Hog prices have been maintained at well above peacetime levels despite the fact that slaughter in July and August exceeded that of any year except 1943. With seasonal marketings of grassy cattle increasing, the price on these is expected to continue declining, although at a more moderate rate.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

French-Russ Treaty Highlights Political Activity in Europe; Hem In Japs on Northern Leyte

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysis and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

Stark with realism, this picture from the western front shows a doughboy looking on the shelling of Saarlautern while a chicken struts about the feet of a dead German soldier in foreground.

PACIFIC:
Springing Trap

Fighting on Leyte island slowly but surely developed into a knock-down, dragout battle at close quarters, as Yanks compressed the enemy on the northwestern hump of the island from three directions.

As a result of the 77th division's landing below Ormoc, the Japanese main lines not only were threatened from the north and east but from the south as well. Although broad mountains impede passage from the east, and form a narrow corridor from the north helpful to the enemy defense, the country flattens out above Ormoc, offering opportunity to roll up the Japanese lines from the rear.

Despite the danger to their lines on Leyte, the Japs signified an intention to fight it out, with battle slogans including:

"In serving on the seas, be a corpse saturated with water.

"In serving on land, be a corpse covered with weeds.

"In serving in the sky, be a corpse challenging the clouds.

"Let's all die by the side of the sea-ocean."

WORK OR FIGHT:
Tighten Draft

Aimed at replacing soldiers released for war production and stemming a growing movement of workers to nonessential industries with postwar employment opportunities, the government ordered the drafting of all men between 26 and 37 not engaged in necessary occupations.

At the same time, the government announced that truck and tire workers would go on a seven-day week, with time and a half pay for the sixth day and double time for the seventh, in an effort to speed up the production of cords for the army. On the western front alone, it was revealed, no less than 500,000 trucks are operating in supplying the troops.

So far, several thousand workers have been released to help relieve a critical manpower shortage in important areas, but a shortage aggravated by the growing movement of 26-37 year old men to nonessential industries with the feeling that the reclassifications of those under 26 made them relatively draft-free.

Also [illegible] Selective Service's push to [illegible] draft rolls was the [illegible] ordered by Army Replacements. Maj.-Gen. Hershey said with inductions slated to rise 10 to 20 per cent within the next few months.

FOOD EXPORTS:
Europe's Needs

Except for Russia, the food situation in Europe is in better condition than anticipated, and postwar needs chiefly will center on items with a long production cycle or those requiring processing, a WFA official said.

Although the Russians may return to normal production of grain, peas, beans and similar crops in their famed "bread-basket" province of the Ukraine by next year, WFA Deputy Director Col. R. W. Olmstead said, it will take three years to bring output of meats, fats, oils and sugar to prewar levels.

Because of the Germans' inability to remove bumper 1944 harvests from France during the lightning Allied thrust across the country this summer, that nation has a relatively good food supply, Colonel Olmstead said. In Italy, the problem primarily is one of straightening out shattered communication lines, he stated.

Battle Fare

The famous soldier who said "An army travels on its stomach" never had the food supply problems faced by General Hodges' 1st army.

The menu of an army in the field doesn't always come from standard cans of hash and wax covered packages. Fighting and chasing an enemy often requires a soldier to feed himself with compact food kits which he can stuff into his pocket, but portable stoves, mobile bakeries, coffee roasting units, and huge refrigerator trucks move behind.

EUROPE:
Politics

Politics continued to dominate e Europe heading for a climactic year, with both countries end parties jockeying for favorable positions for the vital postwar era.

Gen. de Gaulle

Biggest news was Gen. Charles de Gaulle's French government's entrance into a treaty of alliance and mutual assistance with Russia, important insofar as it reaffirmed the age-old policy of collaboration of major powers, and rejected the recently advanced proposal for the organization of a regional security bloc consisting of small nations clustered around a large one.

As a result of the treaty, France, backed by Russia, may be assigned an important role in the postwar control of Germany, with respect given to its demands of occupying the entire left bank of the Rhine and removing industrial machinery from Nazi factories.

In Athens, Greece, there was none of the tranquility which reigned in Moscow at the signing of the French-Russ treaty, however, what with Leftist guerrilla forces strengthening their ranks for their fight against Premier Papandreou's Rightist elements supported by the British.

Behind the fighting, which started when the guerrillas refused to give up their arms on the grounds that the Rightists were allowed to keep theirs, was London's interest in the political situation in Greece because of its strategic position in the Mediterranean, British life-line from the east.

Britain's disposition to back the friendly government of Premier Papandreou with armed might indicated its determination for a protection of its vital interests in that country in any settlement.

In Rome, Premier Ivanoe Bonomi reorganized the Italian government with Count Carlo Sforza, vigorously opposed by the British for his anti-monarchial tendencies, missing from the cabinet. In opposing Sforza's appointment to the cabinet in another country fronting the Mediterranean, the British charged that he was a "troublemaker" in a nation where the existence of a half dozen political parties furnishes wide grounds for differences.

I. Bonomi

In an attempt to compose such differences, Premier Bonomi decided to share his leadership with influential Christian Democratic and Communistic officials.

War

In the midst of the political shuffling, Allied armies maintained their relentless pressure on the Germans, with main interest focused on the western front, where the U. S. First and Ninth armies girded for a mighty thrust across the Roer river before the Rhineland, and the Third army hammered into the Saar.

As U. S. forces advanced, they continued to encounter the most stubborn opposition, with the Germans continuing to convert every town into a fortified stronghold.

On the eastern front, the Germans swung back to new defense lines based on mountainous terrain in both northern and southern Hungary as the Red steamroller crunched onward.

MISCELLANY

Egg production in the United States is expected to be from 8 to 12 per cent lower in 1945 than it has been in 1944. The reduction will be due mostly to fewer hens on farms in west north central states and in far western states. The eastern and middle western states have more nearly maintained the size of their poultry flocks.

CIGARETTES:
Distribution Plan

With the cigarette supply about 70 per cent of normal and little possibility of improvement in the situation for the duration because of manpower shortages, the nation's wholesalers are planning rationing of stocks to assure an equitable distribution throughout the country.

Under the trade's plan, it was said, each retailer would receive an allotment based on his normal sales. In so doing, wholesalers would try to adjust deliveries to meet shifts in population, which have complicated the problem of adequate distribution.

According to one trade official, the estimate of a 70 per cent supply of cigarettes is an overall figure, since stocks vary. Since the cigarette famine started, one midwestern center has received a 70 per cent supply of two popular brands and about 52 per cent of two others, it was said.

EGGS:
WFA Sells Stocks

In an effort to speed the movement of eggs into consumption before production seasonally increases, the War Food administration announced that it would sell its remaining government owned stocks 10 per cent below authorized ceilings.

Of more than 6,000,000 cases of 30 dozen each bought during the heavy production period of 1944 to hold up prices, an estimated 575,000 cases remain, it was said.

The government stands to lose $10,000,000 from its 1944 egg operations, it was said, despite the fact that it expects to net 5 to 7 cents a dozen more on its last batch than it paid for them since prices are higher now than at the season of peak output.

Inventories are sufficiently depleted to enable buyers to absorb its present offerings, WFA said.

This Pen's Like Home

"We have an inmate here who doesn't want to leave," a guard told wondering Warden Joseph E. Ragen at Illinois' Stateville prison. "He says he likes it here and asks if he can't stay."

Noted for his fair but disciplined handling of convicts, Ragen visited the inmate, completing a sentence of 1 year to 15 months for obtaining money under false pretenses. "I have no place to go and I would like to stay here," the man said.

"I'm comptimented," said Ragen, who returned as Stateville's warden following the sensational Roger Touhy break. "But I'm sorry I can't accommodate you. Under the law I may not keep you here one day longer than the court's order calls for."

FAIR SEX:
Want Privileges

U. S. women, it seems, not only want their cake but they want to eat it, too!

So must have thought Thomas A. Johnstone, director of the General Motors division of the United Automobile Workers Union, upon addressing the first national women's conference of the UAW in Detroit, Mich.

Said Johnstone: "If women insist on getting the same rate of pay plus rest periods, which men do not get, then the men will raise h— "

The 150 delegates sat on Johnstone in a hurry, typical comment being: "Brawn should not be considered more important than brains, etc., etc., etc. A man worker would not expect his wife or sister to do heavy lifting, etc., etc., etc."

Among other things, the delegates asked continuation of the fight for equal pay; abolition of special job classifications for women, and opportunity for advancement to top positions.

SOUTH:
New Farming

Because of the use of new strains of sweet potatoes in feeding cattle, southern agriculture is gradually changing from a basic cotton economy, J. F. Percy of Alexandria, La., told the 26th annual convention of the American Farm bureau in Chicago, Ill.

At the same time, A. D. Brownfield of Deming, N. M., president of the American Livestock association, assailed the development of a postwar export program for the sale of manufactured goods through the importation of products already raised here in surplus or in adequate volume.

Not only is the feeding of sweet potatoes enabling southern farmers to increase dairy production and fatten up cattle, Percy said, but it also is forcing them to put more acreage into supplementary pasturage of hay and forage crops, further reducing the planting of soil-depleting cotton.

MEAT LABELS

Because many primal cuts carried no labels under previous marking procedures, thus enabling some butchers to collect ration coupons for point-free meats, OPA ordered slaughterers to stamp all carcasses of beef, veal, lamb and mutton at least every two inches along all primal cuts.

OPA also revealed that many consumers purchasing up-graded meat were charged for a better quality than received.

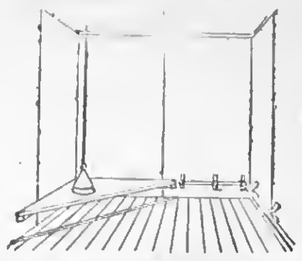
Fixing Up the Farm
by BURTON WILLIAMS

Convert Stall to Pen

NOW is the time to get those jobs done that will make next spring's work easier and more profitable. For instance, a double horse-stall may be turned into a serviceable farrowing pen by the addition of studs and asbestos board.

Light studding run from the sides of the stall to the ceiling joists will serve as a frame work on which the asbestos board can be applied to form the necessary partitions. A couple of 2x4's can be set at the end of the stall for wall studding and the door jamb.

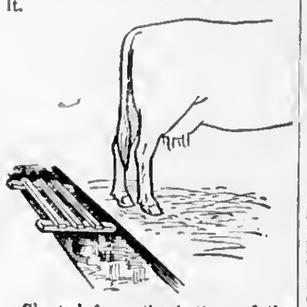


Add a guard rail along one side of the wall to prevent crushing of young pigs. A simple brooder can be installed in one corner by fitting in a triangular piece of asbestos board about a foot from the floor. Cut a circular hole in the center of the board and suspend a bulb in a reflector above this. The light and heat will attract the pigs to the brooder and keep them safely in the corner except when feeding.

Dairy Cutter Guard

I HAVE known farmers who would spend a lot of money to put their barn in shape to meet the necessary sanitation requirements, then neglect the simple, inexpensive things which are essential for clean dairy products. One of the most important items, of course, is to keep the cows as clean as possible. They should be clean when they enter the barn, and care should be taken to see that they remain clean during milking.

Illustrated below is a simple device to break cows of stepping back into the gutter. The rack is made of 2x2's, spaced about five inches apart so that the cow's dewclaws will catch if she steps back through it.



Slanted from the bottom of the gutter immediately behind the cow and running to the top of the opposite side, the rack will help eliminate one of the big problems in keeping milk sanitary.

KNOW YOUR CO-OPERATIVE

Know your Co-operative and the services that it is equipped to render you. The more services and supplies you can secure through your Co-operative, the greater will be the yearly saving returned to you in the form of patronage dividends.

The fixed charges of operating a Co-operative, such as rent, taxes, heat, upkeep of buildings and equipment, and labor are the same in the volume of business is small or large, so the greater the volume the smaller the operating cost per dollar of business to the patron. When your Co-operative does a small volume of business the greater will be your cost and the smaller will be your savings.

Wonders have been accomplished in many ways through well patronized farm co-operatives. Marketing problems have been worked out and large savings made in the purchasing of all farm supplies.

The field of co-operation is just scratched and there are many improvements to be made in the services now rendered.

A few activities that should be tackled co-operatively (and one of the best ways to get them are through local Community Farm Bureaus) are local political problems, rural adult and youth education, methods of helping the youth reduce juvenile delinquency, and last, but not least, have a workable plan ready to help the returning GI Joes get acclimated to civilian life so that they can live in a happy and prosperous way.

An Estimate of the Farm Bureau

By Hon. Fred Bradley

In unity there is strength. To build an economic republic that will match our political republic has been the aim also of our farm organizations. Under the necessities of our modern life — many of them arising out of the revolutionary discoveries of science — agriculture has had to give more and more attention to economic and social prolems. With our changing world agricultural problems have increased. Agriculture, as it developed in our nation, realized that if it were to prosper and develop in step with other industries in this nation it must organize, because in organization there is strength to reach a set goal and to solve problems as they develop.

One of our major farm organizations is the Farm Bureau, which grew indirectly out of the agricultural extension system established by the Department of Agriculture just prior to World War I. In the beginning our farmers organized a few County Bureaus to back up the educational work of the County Agricultural Agents. Some of these Bureaus federated into state organizations and in 1919 a mere dozen State Bureaus decide to get together and form a national organization, known as the American Farm Bureau Federation, of which presently, Mr. Edward A. O'Neal is the president.

Very shortly after this American Farm Bureau Federation organization was established, came the long farm depression of the 1920's. During this depression the Farm Bureau, originally organized to educate farmers in better production, branched into the economic problems of agriculture and worked to bring about the enactment of legislation by the Congress of the United States for price parity, production control and marketing agreements.

The American Farm Bureau Federation takes the position that the crux of the economic problem in our country is parity between agricultural and industrial prices and believes that when this is achieved, our problem of unemployment will be solved.

The Backbone of our national economy is the man who tills the soil; that is as true today as it was when our country was founded. Today our farmers, just as industry, face the most tremendous task in history—that of producing in ever increasing quantities—food for war. To figure how to produce more and more food with less manpower, less equipment and in the face of curtailed transportation is a tremendous problem which farm organizations are trying to solve. With industry prospering during this time of war our farm organizations believe the farmers of our land ought to be able to get a market price for their goods that meets their costs and the Farm Bureau is ever ready to work with Congress to bring this about.

Of all the farm organizations, the American Farm Bureau Federation holds the respect of many national legislators. It believes in sanity in government. Simplification of government has been urged by the Farm Bureau during the past decade. Government red tape, extending right into the home of every farmer in this nation, is causing confusion and curtailing production. The Farm Bureau, with an eye to the future, is doing its part to bring about the return of sane and sound government. The Farm Bureau, representing many thousands of hard-working farmers in America, realizes that some centralization in war time is necessary but does not hesitate to let Washington know that it wants to see Congress, State and Local governments re-assume the powers they have given up, during this emergency, as soon as peace shall have come about.

COMMUNITY FARM BUREAU

Community Farm Bureau is a distinct part of the Farm Bureau set-up. Through the medium of these small groups, which meet in homes of the members, ideas are brought up for discussion and action, they are sent through the county F. B. to the state board by means of resolutions adopted in our own homes and by our own people.

Thus our ideas get to the lawmakers, and because we have a large statewide membership, our small voice is heard tou In the halls of government along with labor and other organized groups.

There are now five community farm bureaus in Charlevoix Co.; Marion, Ironton, Barnard, Hayes and South Arm. Others are to be organized after the current membership drive.

Mr. George Block is community director for the county and is willing and ready to help in this important type of work.

STABILIZING FORCE OF A MILLION FARMERS IS NEED IN WASHINGTON

Now, more than ever before, this voice of the nation's farmers is needed in solving such problems as getting:

1. A fair price in the market place for your farm products.
2. An orderly disposal of government-owned foods so as not to upset markets.
3. A stable price level in line with production costs.
4. A fair share of surplus war equipment suitable for use on the farm.
5. A tax policy that will promote and encourage private enterprise.
6. A medical program that will improve rural health.
7. A school program that will give rural boys and girls equal opportunity.
8. A farm credit program that is farmer controlled.
9. A voice for the farmer in public affairs.

Dear Mom and Dad:

By the time you get this it is hard to say just what the situation may be. But at least some folks back home may come to the conclusion that everything isn't going our way, and the war certainly won't be over by Christmas. It's going to take a lot moro roonds of ammonition and tanks, tires and a few less stoves and refrigerators before it will be over for good. If we only had all the ammunition we could shoot all the time instead of waiting for a counter attack, there is n lot more to it that doesn't meet the eye.

I am sleeping in a house tonight so I tblnk I will make the most of the opportunity. Will probably be plenty busy, letters may be scarce.

SENIOR CLASS TO TO PRESENT PLAY

Cherlevoix high school senier class presents "Nothing But The Truth", a dolightful comedy thet revolves nround a young man, "Robert Bennett", portrayed by Gordon Clement, who hae promised to tell the truth for twenty-four houre becnuse his girl "Gwen Ralston", Marien Craig, has to raise a large eum of money. In doing this Bennett gets into a husiness deal with Dean Fiedler, se "E. M. Ralston", Ronald Ahfaltter ae "Dick Donnelly", and Richard Haggerty ae "Clarence Van Dusen." To complicete matters they vieit tho home of "Mr. Ralaton" and make the acquaintance of Linda Bowman as "Mrs. Ralston", who is entertaining a wealthy young woman, Eileen Hagle, as "Ethel Clark". Mrs. Adeline M. Bellinger, 89, widow of C. R. Bellinger, died at the Charlevoix hospital, Sunday evening. She had been in failing health for some time.

Adaline Minerva Hodge was born at Oak Point, New York, on April 4, 1856. At an early age she came to Michigan with her family and settled on a farm near Maple City. She was a member of the Methodist church and the Charlevoix chapter of the Order of the Eastern Star. She has been active at an earlier date with the Women's Relief Corps.

J. Junior Boss Entertains Royal New Zealand Flight Sgt.

Many American servicemen have been entertained in the homes of peoplee in the cnuntries in which they are serving, but it isn't often one of those greteful Yanks is given an opportunity to return the hospitality shown him in a distant lend. That chunce did como recently, however, to J. Junior Bose, formerly of the Navy, when he entertained Flight Sergeant Douglas B. Smith, of the Royel New Zealand Air Force, at hie home last week end.

Boes, who was hospitalized in New Zeeland nfter suffering an injury aboerd ehip, met F-S Smith while recuperating near the Smith home in Wanganui, N. Z. He wae entertained at the family home and when leaving the country he extended an invitntion to Smith to vieit him if he should come to the States.

In Septemher, F-S Smith, an air ferce instrument maintainance and repair man, wns sent to the States to study the manufacturo of instruments used in American planes and was etationed in Cleveland. One of the first things he did was let Junior know he was here.

His first opportunity to come to Charlevoix cnme at Christmes time when he came north to spend a real "white" Christmas with Junior at the home of hie parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Boss Sr. Since Christmas comes in the middle of n New Zealand summer they do not have Christmas trees so he enjoyed his first real Christmas tree. The snow was also something new to him and he enjoyed it very much.

Christmas at home, he explained is a very quiet dny when family gatherings are held, gifts are exchanged and everyone attends church. December 26, Boxing Day, however, is their largest national holiday and is comparable to the American Fourth of July. Everyone plans a holiday and attends the races, regntta, concert or picnic on the beach much the same as Americans on a vacation.

F-S Smith was impressed by many American things. He liked the great highwnys and had enjoyed riding on the Pennsylvania Turnpike. He said they had a few great highways in New Zealand. Another thing that he admired greatly was the machinery of every description which we seem to have here. All machinery is imported to his country, he said, and they do not have the great machines for construction that one sees here. He though that New Zealand should manufacture more machinery after the war for that seems to be their greatest need.

He likes American girls but is never quite sure whnt they mean when they say something for they use such "odd' expressions.

He likes American food and was impressed by the variety of foods, especially vegetables, which are served here. Sweet corn was something new to him and while here, he had acquired n taste for it. He hoped to carry some seed corn home with him to be planted in the garden of his parents' farm, or 'farmlet', as he called it.

Ameng the other things he was taking home with him were gifts for his family which included clothing, for, as he said, the styles are better here. F-S Smith is one of a family of nine and has two brothers in the New Zealand Air Force.

New Zealand, having been at war for more than five years has suffered many shortages but the two that are felt the most are petrol and electricity. One is allowed 1½ gallons of gasoline a montb for a small car and 3 gallons for a larger type car. In order to conserve electricity, radio stations are off the air for two hours every day and tbere are many rules concerning the use of electricity for all purposes.

F-S Smith is returaing to his homeland this week and is taking back many happy memories of bis four months bere which include trips to all the large American cities like Detroit, New York, Milwaukee and visits to bomes of other Americans he had met in bis country. He has some very definite plans for the future too which include a return trip to the States after the wnr. He plnns to travel the length and breadth of the land, find a place he'd like to live, marry an American girl and after a honeymoon to New Zealand, return here to make his home. That's one way of promoting the good neighbor policy.

Coal Inventory Dangerously Low

Less than 100 tons of coal are in the hins of the coal dealers in Charlevoix, which is probahly the lowest inventory in the city's history!

Floyd A. Supp, Charlevoix County Defenso Council Chairman called a meeting of 50 local businessmen at the Council Chambers, Monday evening, at which coal dealers explained the need of the strictest economy if suffering is to be avoided.

Fnllowing discussinn of ways and means of conservation, it was decided, effective immedlately, to estahlish new hours for businese places.

Storee will remain closed all day Thursdeys.

Opening hour will be 10 a. m. and closing hour will be 6 p. m., Saturday evenings included.

The City Hall will also observe these houre, closing Thursdeys, and at noon on Saturdays.

The County Building will be open at 10 a. m. and close nt 4 p. m Mondays through Frideys, and will ho closed Saturdays.

The Chamber of Commerce has supplied each merchant with a display card with business hours shown thereon, and furnished the schoole with hand bills for distribution to the homes.

Each county newspaper carries a notice of the Court House hours.

It is suggested that all lodges and public meetings be eliminated or curtailed as much as possible where special heating is required.

Churches are asked to combine meetings or use the same house of worship.

St. Mary's Recreation will be closed.

No opportunity to conserve coal should be overlooked. Hold temperatures to 68 degrees, turn off heat in unused rooms, draw shades and drapes and plug all air leaks.

Save every pound of coal you can to avoid possible hardship.

EDITORIAL

Plowin' Deepen', Organizin'.

When we think of farming over the part of this country we think of farming. Putting in long hours harvesting and selling. Ever since our forefathers freed the country we have been doing a good job of farming. Putting in long hours producing big crops and enjoying a small income. Our record is historic, it's a glorious one from every angle of producing and helping our country.

Only recently this idea of a broader view that farming is to include organizing, has been accepted.

Now thousands of farmers realize that we are in an organized society. That all great groups organize and promote their interests before the high court of public opinion. Great battles are waged in the Hall of Congress, the outcome which may affect our way of life. The farmers have always been the ones who have saved democracy and will again, this time through organization.

We are now facing the greatest challenges of our whole history. Shall we determine our whole future by accepting subsidies and regimentation while others have free enterprise? Shall we continue to work longer hours for less pay than others?

Shall we have a voice in determining what is right and good for agriculture and what we should contribute? On the answer to these questions depends the future of farming. Will it be a life of slavery, of peasantry, of drudgery or of free enterprise?

If the farmers rally to a good sound organization and work together they will retain the right to the Freedom our forefathers gave us.

For we know
"What we have of freedom
What we use and know
This our forefathers got for us
Long, long ago"—
Wesley S. Hawley.

This is as Rudyard Kipling said: "The leave to live by no man's leave, underneath the Law."

LAND BOOM

The behavior of land values now is very similar to what it was in the last boom. Since this war started farm values for the United States as a whole have risen at almost exactly the same rate as they did during the last boom period. Values now stand at almost two fifths above the average immediately before this war. To say that we are not on the road to highly inflated land prices now would be to deny that we had a boom before. Then, as now, purchasers just refused to believe that prices were inflated because they thought they would always have a market for their products at high prices. But it wasn't hard to convince those same purchasers in the middle twenties and early thirties that they had paid too much for their land during the last boom. Two million farm foreclosures tell the tragic story.

—Claude R. Wickard,
Secretary of Agriculture.

WHY Michigan Bell Will Go to Court

The Michigan Bell Telephone Company plans to appeal to the Ingham Circuit Court for relief from an order of the Michigan Public Service Commission directing the company to refund $3,500,000 to its customers. A permanent injunction will be sought to restrain the Commission from putting the order into effect.

We have no liking for litigation. It is a time-consuming process that is as distasteful to the company as it must be to the public.

An order that jeopardizes our ability to provide good service by whittling away at our already inadequate earnings, however, cannot go unchallenged. The public interest impels us to seek the protection of the courts.

The order is based upon the theory that excess profits taxes should be returned to customers rather than to the Federal Treasury as intended by the tax law. One out of every five tax dollars collected by the Treasury today comes from excess profits taxes. In this case, the Government would take a loss of $3,000,000.

Although the Federal Treasury would bear the brunt of the loss involved in such a rebate, one-seventh of the amount would come from the company. The order for 1944, unless restrained, could be repeated for 1945 and other years. Such a whittling process takes on the aspect of a permanent rate reduction to the jeopardy of the service rendered the public.

If we are to take our place in the expanding national economy anticipated after the war, and once again provide service on a basis of "when and where wanted", the Michigan Bell must undertake a postwar construction program requiring the expenditure of $120,000,000 in 5 years. That program will provide jobs not only for its 3,000 men and women returning from the armed forces, but for many others as well.

The telephone industry has no royal road to money to finance its postwar program. It must compete with other industries in the open market for capital. To attract the investor's dollar, our earnings must be comparable with the average for other industries—not at a rate one-third lower, as is the case today.

The Michigan Bell has no desire to profit at the expense of war. It hasn't. The company's wartime earnings today are a quarter lower than in the pre-war period, 1936-39.

The price of telephone service is one of the few things that has not undergone a sharp wartime rise. On the contrary, rate reductions since 1939 are resulting in current savings of nearly $4,350,000 a year to our customers.

There is one thing our customers want, and that is good service. The telephone bill for the best of service is so small a part of the customer's budget that he does not want anything less than the best even though he might get it at a lower cost.

For these reasons, we believe we're under the strongest obligation to seek our day in court. We believe our cause to be a just one in the interest of those served by the company, those who own it, and those who depend upon it for their living.

Returning veterans who want to engage in fur farming in Michigan are given scant encouragement by conservation department game men.

Many letters written by veterans inquire about regulations covering breeders' operations. Others nsk advice. Information about regulations can be supplied easily enough; it is n less pleasant tnsk to attempt to discourage a veteran who believes he cnn raise fur animals successfully.

The department points out that few fur farms ore operated with profit, that risks are great, and that investments nre likely to be heavier than nnticipnted. In fnct, only the mink and the fox are recognized at the present time as reasonably safe commercial enterprises.

Muskrat farming, for instance, is conducted in only two plnces in the United States — in Maryland and Louisiana.

The sport of fox hunting is nearly as old as cilization. Early drawings in ancient tombs and caves depict "the chase" although it is not known definitely that foxes were the quarry. It has been determined, however, that during the middle ages hunters indulged in fox chasing.

Now Alaska is Promising Flowing Gold. The old gold rush country, scienti-ts believe, will provide our future oil — and may even do it in time to offset our rapidly diminishing sources of liquid treasure, so hard hit by the war. BIGGER MANGERS NEEDED IN BARNS

One of the great needs in berns on many Michigan farms is larger mangers, mnintains Carl F. Huffman, of the dairy department of Michigan State college. By this he means that many dairy farmers are overlooking a good method of producing milk cheaply — thet of feeding large quantities of roughage.

Somo mangers just aren't big enough to hold ell the roughege that a cow should eat, and others are hig enough but don't get enough hay put into them, he insists.

The buying of protein supplements cen be avoided almost entirely by feeding plenty of high quality alfalfa or alfalfa-hrome hay, Hoffman points out. By high quality, he means hay that has been early cut, if leafy, high in color and of good aroma.

Hay can vary from 300 to 400 per cent in its milk-making capacity, depending upon its quelity. The averege cow should receive up to 20 to 30 pounds of roughage per day from October through March. Those getting that amount come out of the barn in better health, give more milk, and give better results on spring and summer pasture.

Only a minimum of grain is necessary for cows fed with good roughege, and millions of dollars worth of feed could be saved by this practice, Huffman says.
